GETTYSBURG A HEALTH RESORT

Returns to Local Board of Health Show almost Perfect Conditions in the Town during the Month Just Closed. One Nuisance.

If the records of the Board of Health are to be taken as an indication Gettysburg is almost a health resort this summer, the figures showing practically a perfect state of affairs during the month of June just closed.

But one case of contagious disease was reported during the thirty days of the past month and that was of the uncomfortable pet of mumps. There were but four deaths out of an estimated population of 4500 while ten births were recorded. Several other births during the month are yet to be added to the list, a limit of ten days being given to make this returns.

Only one complaint was received by members of the board concerning nuisances and that was regarding the condition of The Diner at Carlisle street. The matter has been before the town council several times but no relief has been given and the board of health will send a representative there Tuesday evening to lay the condition before the councilmen once more.

People living in the immediate vicinity of the stream complain vigorously of an objectionable odor from it and the general supposition is that one or more of the old sewers in the western part of town is defective and does not connect properly with the main sewer system. It is expected that council will give the matter its attention and that it has come to be a rather serious nuisance.

The report also showed for the year, which is now half over, show a fine condition in every month. But one large nuisance was there, reported and that of the uncomfortable, though comparatively harmless, whooping cough which attacked both young and old during the winter. This has abated now and no illness requiring quaran tine prevails.

DAMAGES FIXED

Award Granted Turnpike Company for Four Miles.

An award of $9077.50 was granted the Chambersburg and Gettysburg Toll Road Company by the viewers Wednesday morning for the four and three-tenths miles of highway between the Cashtown Country Inn and Willow Grove taken over by the State last summer. The turnpike company gave $10,371 as the appraised cost of the highway and annual earnings at five per cent. Highway Department engineers placed its value as from $6,000 to $8000. The route of the Gettysburg and Petersburg Turnpike Company for the section from Willow Grove to Littlestown will be heard on Friday, July 10.

SCOTTISH FLAG ON BATTLEFIELD

The flag of Scotland flies to-day at the monument to John Burns on the First Day's Field. On either side floats the Stars and Stripes while on the memorial is placed a wreath to the memory of the noted Gettysburg hero and a bouquet of carnations in the memory of Barbara Burns, his wife.

At the request of J. W. Johnston, of Rochester, a veteran of the Civil War, who spent a week here last July at the time of the battle anniversary, the flags and floral tokens were placed with simple ceremonies. It was his intention that the service should be conducted on July first, the anniversary of Burns' shouldering his old musket to go to the defense of his native town when the invasion of the Southern troops became a reality. The shipment missed, however, and the placing of the memorials was consequently delayed.

But few were present when Rev. P. E. Taylor, pastor of the local Presbyterian church opened the modest exercises by reading Bret Harte's poem on "John Burns of Gettysburg," and the size of the audience in no way detracted from the impressive character of the ceremonies.

The story of the part Burns played in the battle, the fame which he acquired through his action, the tales told of his life and reminiscences of subsequent years, were narrated in interesting fashion by Hon. William H. Tipton and the tokens were then placed by Prof. J. Louis Bowers at whose home Mr. Johnson, the donor, visited last July.

The inscription bore this inscription "In memory of John Burns, a Scottish American, who fought for the preservation of the part he took in the fight near the McPherson Barn". No inscription was placed on the stone to the memory of Barbara Burns.

An informal flag raising marked the conclusion of the ceremony and another interesting incident in Gettysburg's historic field came to a close.

TO IMPROVE ROOMS

Two Modern Store Rooms in Spangler Corner.

J. W. Kadel is preparing to make extensive improvements in the Spangler corner, Baltimore street and Centre Square, which he purchased several months ago. The room formerly occupied by the Spangler store a large, plain structure, will be cut into two, each side with a corner entrance. The present stairway will be put in the rear of the building and another in Square, and the space occupied by the present stairway will be added to the vacant room formerly used by the Five and Ten Cent Store. The two will also be given a fine large plate glass front. The occupants of the two store rooms have not yet been announced.

ON THEIR VACATIONS

Few People Take Advantage of Low Rate to Seaside.

Only nine tickets were sold at Gettysburg Station for the low rate excursion of the season to Atlantic City. Among those who went from here were Mrs. Charles W. Stock and sister, Miss Mary Bell, Mrs. J. C. Kendlehart, Miss Helen Kendlehart, William Kendehart and Norman Warren. A few others went to Cape May and Asbury Park.

MANY FIGHT FOR LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Nearby Towns in Heated Arguments over the Route, All Wanting it through their Sections. Gettysburg Sore of Road.

Fighting vigorously, nearby towns are waging a bitter war for the route of the Lincoln Highway, hope for a change from the original route being given when President Wilson made a request that the road go from Gettysburg to Philadelphia by way of Washington, rather than by York and Lancaster.

The matter what may be the route it is a foregone conclusion that Gettysburg will be one of its principal points, so that this place need not worry over the contentions of our neighbors. It is believed by those who are in touch with the question that the original route east from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia through Gettysburg will be chosen, with a connecting loop built between Philadelphia, Washington and Gettysburg. This method has been adopted in some of the western states in order to avoid the cities which do not on the route but which would divert the road from a comparatively straight course, if placed on the main line.

The way the general argument now stands is that Gettysburg, Carlisle, newspapers of Cumberland and Philadelphia counties is shown in the following from the Chambersburg Public Opinion:

"One of the worst mistakes that could be made, from a historical viewpoint, would be to route the proposed Lincoln Highway from Gettysburg by way of York and Lancaster. Washington, Lexington and Altoona instead of by way of Chambersburg, Carlisle and Bedford. The latter is the old original stage coach and wagon road to the west, and the only highway traveled across the state to this day which in any way represents nothing but a dirt road, as now and always, and the most direct the route from one of the most interesting sections of the State during the period when the Revolutionary war was at the head of the Government.

"What rot this is. Washington, South Mountain, Frederick, Antietam, Harpar's Ferry, Gettysburg, Abe Lincoln visited and knew well, and, lacra when he was a boy, Washington hid behind the Civil War, they are the areas for the road to pass through."

And to this the Carlisle Herald, with much spunk, replies:

"That the arguments introduced are manifestly absurd is the opinion of those who are acquainted with the history of this section. Not only does Carlisle and the route through it possess as interesting a war history as the other sections, but it has many more glorious colonial and Indian War memories.

"On the route which might come to Carlisle from the south, travelers on the road would have the same route taken by Ewell's men after the bombardment of the town on their way to Gettysburg. In Mount Holly were guns and ammunition first manufactured.

"In going through Carlisle they would pass the site of the historic old Fort Louther from which Colonel Stanwix went forth to the conquest of the Ohio valley. They would pass the Indian School, one of the oldest in the country, the Dickinson College and Guard House and on the route to Harrisburg would pass by Carlisle prior to Chambersburg and kindred localities."

Meanwhile Gettysburg may be sure the road will come through here no matter what course towns it may skip.

VIOLATED PAROLE

Eugene Bieler, Mollbertytown, and Campbell, Wesley Taken to Reformatory.

Eugene Bieler, 19 years old, of Mechberrytown, with two other youths, was arrested Tuesday morning in Buffalo, New York, while entering a drug store in that city. The boys had violated the parole of Elmire State Reformatory.

FAIL TO ENFORCE THE SCHOOL LAW

And Some of the Districts of Adams County are not Entitled to their Annual Appropriations. Compulsory Attendance Law.

Several of the school districts in Adams county will have trouble with their state appropriations unless the presidents of some of the boards of school directors can find a way to clear up their alleged neglect. The school code provides that in order to secure state aid for the schools, amounting to considerable money for each district, the compulsory school law must be enforced and that every boy and girl has attended school at least 10 per cent. of the term.

A group of facts brings it requires that each pupil attending the school has been successfully vaccinated and that the schools were kept open according to law.

It is a well known fact that the vaccination law has not yet been enforced in every district of Adams county and in some of the districts the compulsory school law has never been enforced.

It is the duty of the president to see that the compulsory school law is enforced, and if he neglects this duty he is in the hands of the county solicitor to secure the appropriations, and the latter can be held personally, if not legally, responsible to the state for the appropriations.

In many of the districts of Adams County a truant officer is absolutely necessary, consequently there can be no means of compelling children to attend school.

The enforcement of the vaccination, law is in the hands of the county commissioner, but with an accident which has been reported almost daily, there is accustomed to carry matches and a lot of kerosene about the boy's trousers pocket. He was slightly burned before the fire could be extinguished. The trousers were destroyed beyond repair.

Mrs. Harvey E. Smith, of Mechberrytown, met with a peculiar accident yesterday morning in opening and washing of her right arm in a mastiful way. She was standing on the porch of her home when she noticed a small hammer on the second step. In attempting to pick it up she leaps for the hammer when in some way she became dizzy and fell to the ground, the hammer striking her right arm just below the elbow of which four feet. In addition to the above injuries she received several severe bruises about the body.

HUNTERS' LICENSES

County Treasurer Spangler Starts to Issue them for this Year.

John Bream, of Cashtown, took out the first hunter's license in Adams County for this year when he lifted No. 1 at the office of County Treasurer Spangler who has received a preliminary supply of 2500 tags. This year the license will be on a white background. Last year the background was yellow. They will be practically the same this year as last except that justices of the peace cannot issue the licenses but must forward applications to the county treasurer through whom all permits to hunt must be issued.

Mrs. Roy Hartzman and daughter, of Springfield, Massachusetts, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Hartzman on Hanover street.

NEW DIRECTOR FOR TOWN BAND

Leo McDonald, Widely Known Musician of Carlisle, Engaged to Direct Citizens' Band One Evening Each Week. Much Experience.

Leo McDonald, one of the best known musicians in the Cumberland Valley, has been secured by the Citizens' Band of Gettysburg to direct that organization for one evening of each week.

Mr. McDonald has been actively engaged in musical work for nineteen years and has been located in Carlisle since 1902. During that time he has conducted McDonald's Orchestra, which has played here frequently. He is the leader of the regular summer orchestra for Mt. Holly Park. For four winters he has been leader of the orchestra in the Majestic Theatre, Harrisburg, and he has also been trainer of the musical clubs at Dickinson College and Carlisle High.

His experience with bands has been successful. He was formerly leader of the Eighth Regiment Band and has inducted the Oakville and Wellsville bands in Cumberland county. He directed the Indian School Band in its performance for the annual exercises of commencement week during the spring.

Mr. McDonald is best known, perhaps, through his connection with the annual minstrel shows given in Carlisle by Elks of which for three years he has had entire charge of the musical end and directing all preparations for the event which has come to be regarded as one of the best amateur productions given in the state.

The management and members of the local band consider themselves very fortunate in being able to secure Mr. McDonald's services

ON PENSION ROLL

Charles W. Kline, 68 years old, of York, for 48 years an engineer, and an engineer on the Northern Central railroad, made his last trip from Lancaster to Littlestown, Pa., on Monday Tuesday evening, before going into retirement.

During his entire term of service Mr. Kline experienced only two wrecks. The first occurred about 30 years ago, when his engine broke a driving rod at the York fair grounds, and the second when he ran into an open switch at Columbia and hit a 15 inch wall of the Columbia ribbon mill. On both occasions the crew escaped without injury.

BUSY FILLING RECORD ORDER

Gettysburg Bricks to Build Baltimore Sewers. Local Plant Gets Order for 3 Million. Thirty Two Men Employed.

Securing the order for the majority of the bricks to be used in the sanitative enlargement of Baltimore's sewer system, the plant of the Auburn Shale Brick Company in Gettysburg has obtained the largest single contract let in this section this year. The order is for 1,000,000 bricks to be delivered on a twelve month period. This is approximately 100 carloads.

The Gettysburg brick was selected after testing samples from many firms in Pennsylvania. The specifications demanded that the absorption should be not more than one and one half per cent.the total weight of the brick, while the Gettysburg product tested only one half of one per cent and four fifths of one per cent—an almost perfect condition and one which largely secured the big contract.

The sewer bricks, which are being shipped from Gettysburg to the Monumental City, are of the finest material and will doubtless meet much additional business of that sort from other municipalities.

Busy days are spent at the local plant since the huge contract is but a small part of the business. W. F. Oswald, the manager, is enaeavoring to turn out 1000 bricks during the year or a total of 600 carloads.

Many of the bricks are shipped into Penn township where they are being used in the construction of houses in and about Chambersburg. The local plant has received other contracts for the bricks for the large new Allison Hill School building at Harrisburg. Other smaller orders from this section are coming in, the keeping the plant working full time and thirty two hands are all kept on the jump to get the work on on time.

ADAMS COUNTY CASES

Detective Harry J. Bentley, of Carlisle, arrested Harry Kuhn, of Mt. Holly Springs, charged with assault and battery on oath of John K. Snavely, proprietor of the hotel at York Springs. Kuhn struck Snavely with his nose open. The fracas occurred while Snavely was watching a baseball game, it is said. Snavely was in charge several days as the result of the assault, which occurred June 27th. Kuhn gave bail in the sum of $400 and hearing on July 13th.

Officer Bentley also arrestes C. K. Kauffman of East Berlin, who is charged with false pretense by Austin Eppley, of near Carlisle. Kauffman obtained a horse from Eppley for $250, and gave his note claiming the horse was worth $3000. It was learned that he did not own a horse, but that it was his wife's. Attorney Kauffman went into bankruptcy in Adams county. He gave bail in the sum of $400 for a hearing July 7.

RETURNED MONEY

The local in yesterday's Times advertising the loss of a purse by Charles E. Little secured the desired results and Mr. Little has had in possession of the valued pocket book which contained $76. It was found by Wesley Kelly who saw the ad and returned over the purse and money this morning.

MISS IDA G. HORNER

Miss Ida G. Horner, a niece of Miss S. P. Horner, late of Gettysburg, died Sunday in Chambersburg. She leaves one sister and three brothers.

The funeral was held in Chambersburg Tuesday.

RADIUM FROM ADAMS COUNTY

Local Ores when Reduced at Laboratories in Harrisburg Show Presence of Rare Element. Shipping Material from the County.

According to H. B. McCaskey, of the United States Geological Survey, no production of gold, silver, lead, or zinc has been reported from the mines of Pennsylvania for many years, but there has been annually a production of copper yielding small quantities of the precious metals in refining. There are copper prospects in Adams and Franklin counties, but the greater part of the output has been obtained from copper ores separated from magnetic ores of the Cornwall iron mine, in Lebanon county.

The production of copper in Pennsylvania in 1913 amounted to 503,-792 pounds, valued at $78,088, compared with 471,000 pounds, valued at $70,805, in 1912.

The South Mountain section of Adams county is in a bustling mood. They are now shipping to Philadelphia four large freight car loads a week of chlorite schist, copper colored, which three years ago was held to be worth less commercially.

This industry is to be materially increased in the near future. The optimistically inclined declare that the output of this mineral will be increased gradually until there will be a maximum shipment of more than twenty carloads a day.

Various minerals from the older rocks of this and other counties on the south and east are being chemically investigated at Harrisburg for radium, and some of the chalcopyrite (copperpyrite) has produced a small fraction of this most wonderful element.

Silhalte has also been located in the South mountains, a rich antimony ore.

Copper ores are again receiving some attention; but an expert said recently that good pay copper ores, and a steady output, will never be reached until shafts are sunk to a depth of six hundred to one thousand feet. In the northern Michigan mines some of the shafts are down over five thousand feet.

GONG RANG VIGOROUSLY

Stroke of Lightning Starts Railroad Alarm Gong.

Residents of New Buford were awakened Sunday morning about five o'clock by a sharp report of thunder. A moment later the warning gong at the Western Maryland crossing started to ring and continued for a quarter of an hour until it was turned off. The lightning had struck in the rear and started the apparatus to work.

His Daily Supply of Cake.

Whitin attorney is very fond of a certain kind of cake his wife is expert at making. Recently she left for a visit with her parents and before going baked a large cake. She knew that if she left the entire cake where her husband could find it he would eat it all in one day, so she cut it into slices and hid them in various parts of the house. Each day she writes her husband, and in the letter she tells him where he can find a piece of the cake.—Kansas City Star.

Fewer Study for Ministry.

Statistics show that in the early days of American colleges about one-half the graduates adopted the ministry as a profession. At the present time only about five per cent of the college graduates become ministers.

Marvelous Works of Art to be Shown at San Francisco

Thirty-six of the World's Navies Will Participate Officially Upon a Stupendous Scale—World's Most Noted Architects Create City of Palaces the Like of Which Man Has Never Beheld—England to Exhibit.

The photographs upon this page reveal just a few of the thousands of marvels that will be seen by the millions who visit the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco next year.

The opening of the Panama canal is regarded by the nations as one of the most stupendous events in the history of the world, and in recognition of the great work at Panama there will be exhibited in San Francisco such a display of the world's progress as has never been seen before.

The news that England will exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in evidence of the amazing interest that is everywhere taken in America's Panama canal celebration.

Thirty-six of the world's great nations will officially participate in the exposition. Here is the list: Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bolivia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Canada, Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, France, Guatemala, Haiti, Holland, Honduras, Italy, Japan, Liberia, New Zealand, Nicaragua, Panama, Peru, Portugal, Salvador, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Turkey, France, Venezuela and Great Britain. The nations have appropriated enormous sums. The Argentine, for example, has appropriated $1,500,000 and for its display Canada has appropriated $500,000 and contributions in far advance of the great Canadian pavilion.

The natives of every civilized country on earth will be enabled at San Francisco to behold a surpassing view of the progress of their native land.

Throughout the United States and in foreign lands millions of people are planning to visit the exposition next year. At a recent meeting of the Transcontinental Passenger association it was decided to make great reductions in railroad fares. The exposition opens on February 20 and closes on December 4, 1915.

The exposition today is one of the sights of the world. The panorama on a steamer through the Golden Gate beholds the vast domes of the exposition palaces risen like new dawns and minarets of a fabled fairyland city. Before the main group of exposition palaces, which lies north upon the harbor for more than one mile, a great sea esplanade has been constructed; this has been wonderfully landscaped with thousands of rare trees and shrubs brought from distant parts of the world. Here multitudes will gather during the exposition to view by day the assembled warships of the world's navies and at night a wonderful series of colored illuminations visible forty or fifty miles away. The entire exposition grounds parallel San Francisco harbor for about three miles.

A HANDSOME book of sixty pages, illustrated profusely in colors and giving detailed description of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held in San Francisco from February 20 until December 4, 1915, and of the Panama canal and the canal region, will be mailed by the Panama-Pacific International Exposition free of charge to all inquirers. The booklet is intended as a general guide to prospective visitors and will also contain information concerning the great engineering feat which the exposition is to celebrate. Write to the Manager, the Bureau of Publications, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Exposition building, San Francisco, for the booklet.

FIRST NEWS PICTURE OF THE WONDERFUL PALACE OF HORTICULTURE

The huge Palace of Horticulture is set in the South Gardens of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition and will be one of the most striking features as the visitor enters the main exposition gates at Scott street. The dome will be covered with glass, and at night colored searchlights within the palace will cause the great globe to gleam with all the colors of the rainbow. The lighting effect will be visible from the harbor, crowning the dome may be seen the flower parks. This is 26 feet in height and weighs more than one hundred tons. This photograph shows the progress of the building as it appeared early in May. The exposition will open in San Francisco February 20, 1915.

Directly overlooking the scene at the left (at the entrance to the Court of Honor) is the Tower of Jewels, rising some 435 feet into the air, its architectural lines marked with thousands of glittering lamps and crystals of many colors and the whole scintillating gloriously with the reflected light from the area which are hidden from the spectator. Further down the facade, in the center of the picture, may be seen the two smaller towers which guard the entrance to the Court of Palms and directly in front of the Tower of Jewels is A. "Ant Is Long and Time Is Fleeting."

The sentiment, "Art is long and time is fleeting," in Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," is adapted from one of the aphorisms of Hippocrates, the celebrated physician of antiquity. "Ars longa, vita brevis." "Art is long, life is short." This sentiment, of course, is that the time required to attain perfection in any art is long, while the span of human life is short, and we must therefore make the most of it if we wish to accomplish anything.

Sheep as Weather Prophets.

What animal is more sedate than a sheep? And what more frolicsome than a lamb? The gamboling of lambs and the fighting of their elders is an old sign of a change in the weather. Then, in a spell of frost, if lambs are frolicking and skipping, while the sheep keep one another soberly fighting, the watchman has a certain sign of a thaw where none other is visible.

Unmusical Sensitiv.

Evidently the neighbors didn't think much of the singing of Antonio, a Sicilian (Cal.) fisherman, for he was arrested and fined on a charge of disturbing the peace. "Does your ma like to sing, Antonio?" said Antonio sadly, in speaking of his young daughter. "Does pop'y ma or sistina? New York she govern da Carus' $5,000 for hoop'y cough? Does da Chicago council for nothing and do judge my treat'-d' feel bet'?"

THE BEAUTY SPOTS OF HALIFAX, NOVA SCOTIA.

Point Pleasant Park and the Public Gardens Notable Examples.

Point Pleasant park in Halifax, N. S., has been left in a wild state. Its good keeping the roads in order and repair and trimming out the under growth so needed an attempt has been made to improve on nature. In addition to the winding, shady roads, there are many alleys and bridle paths which all together make a woodland maze. The tide is constantly flowing in outside wind waves, and even in winter (for comparatively little snow falls in Halifax) a walk through one of the sheltered avenues with the tide coming in over the shingle just down the bank is a passage to be remembered. The main entrance is from Young ave nue through a fine gate of iron given by the late Sir William Young, a forty-shilling fee at the present, will be remembered for many beneficent-

TOWN MERCHANT TAKEN BY DEATH

G. W. Weaver Died at his Home in Gettysburg after an Illness of Many Months, in Business here for 29 Years.

G. W. Weaver, senior member of the firm of G. W. Weaver and Son, died Sunday evening at twenty minutes past five at his home on East High street after an illness of many months with heart disease. He was aged 62 years, 7 months and 10 days.

Mr. Weaver's condition had been critical for some weeks and several times it was thought that his hopeful affection was going to prove fatal. He always rallied, however, and he was not until Sunday evening that death actually came.

Greenburg W. Weaver was born in Dachman's Valley, Carroll County, Maryland, on April 19th, 1852. His childhood and youth, until his marriage, were spent on his father's farm, near his birthplace. In 1885 he married Miss Amelia Rhoads, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rhoads and the newly wed went to farming on their own account.

After three years Mr. and Mrs. Weaver moved to Silver Run, where he kept a general store and was postmaster for a period of ten years. Afterward he again took up farming near Carrollton, Maryland, for six or eight years.

In the year 1885 he came to Gettysburg and opened the gift goods establishment, with his son, Hornie T. Weaver, which has grown to its present size largely because of his active interest in the business. This interest continued almost to the time of his death.

Always progressive and anxious to cater to the best interests of his customers, Mr. Weaver, with his son, built up the largest gift goods store in Adams County. Up to a few months ago, with ill health prevented, he was at the store every day, greeting customers with his well known cordiality and keeping in touch with the business of the establishment. He was keenly alive to all questions for the betterment of local conditions generally, and was a great reader of local and city papers, evincing a lively interest in all public affairs.

He was a member of Trinity Reformed church of Gettysburg and promment in all church activities, serving as elder for a number of years. He frequently attended sessions of Classis and Synod and was much interested in the welfare of the church at large.

Mrs. Weaver died several years ago and he leaves his son, Hornie T. Weaver of Baltimore street, Gettysburg. He also leaves two brothers and two sisters, Dr. J. F. Weaver, of Manchester, Md; Dr. S. B. Weaver, of Littlestown; Mrs. John Ogden and Mrs. Cassa Wine, both of Manchester.

THE POULTRYMAN

Don't let the bad weather will from ambition

Don't try for a good growing month but the youngsters need more than the ration of milk they've been fed during the burning days of the sun.

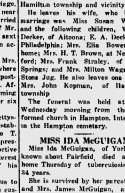
If the chicks still need room, run put outdoors at daybreak. They can see enough to market at any hour after the dew of the day arrives.

A hopper of bran is always advisable. Keep it filled. The whole flock should have access to it.

A clean floor means more eggs and will better become a short lived if decidedly more profitable flock.

It does not require any great ability to fatten poultry, but there is a great waste in well fed poultry that is not fattened.

CARE OF POULTRY IN WARM WEATHER



The portable cooling house for poultry shown in the accompanying illustration is one of the latest devices in use in the United States government poultry plant at Beltsville, Md., this year. This may be found as a valuable addition to the equipment of the large poultry keeper and breeder generally. Each of four close compartments is provided with a fan of sufficient size and strength, a layer of cracked ice and a screen. The fan draws the air through the ice and the screen removes the dust.

There are various things that may combine to bring about such discouraging results in poultry raising, but in general one rule differs little from another in the care of fowls, and more or less common to this particular season, which is the warm weather period.

The increased heat, tending to putrefy the meat, makes the possibility the most potent factor in causing them to cease, while other causes have more significant meaning from the position of the fowl. Thus the sudden change of the flock and makes even normal conditions appear unfavorable. Lice and mites thrive best where filth is found and the heat hastens their growth and laying hens never inhabit the warm shade, or seem to enjoy same.

So there's just one sensible course to pursue if you would get rid of these disagreeable and keep them cleaned out. That is to provide a dry, clean floor covering this earthy through which the fowls delight to scratch and dig. Do this by throwing in the litter of any sort. Dirty boiler—because every straw of old bedding and manure is of it. Carry out the roosts and brush them with a stiffwire, washing of with hot water. Then spray or paint over with some of the coal tar dip that is now on the market. Whitewash the walls and ceiling with lime to which has been added a little crude carbolic acid to the above and the whole interior of the house will be out of the poor lay house. Spray or paint the roosts with a little of the dip and inches in order to carry the lice from the roosts to the floor.

This done, replace the roosts under the dropping boards. Put in the floor about inches of something heavy, such as dry loam, dry leaves, dry chaff, coarse sand, or cut straw that they have not been sprayed with. Put in about inches of this and scatter whole grain over it, so that the fowls will be compelled to work for it. Keep this litter fresh and sweet by adding more as it becomes necessary.

Hang a head of cabbage for beak and the litter disappointed in the forest at a time when it is not available. Although he really secured it by making it unnecessary for him to go to the forest and hunt the neighborhood of the water.

An Exciting Chase.

Three of the boys in the school were by this time swimming the river, leaving the others yelling on the opposite side, and as soon as they were across the river they were out on the night's fruit and gathered after Mr. Spring's bungalow.

In a couple of minutes we saw the night take to the waters for mysterious, and after it the others, two and the outside could see through the window. Mr. Spring, Mr. Bates, the last fortunately some of the dogs had come also to the river's edge at the very point where the night was about to land. Two or three of the dogs were swimming. We were more than half the breadth of the river away from the night and somewhat down stream when the night, in the middle of it, tentatively took action towards the water that was in front of it. It was not a hippopotamus, for it paused completely, and then our enemy rose on his hinder legs and the other head. I shot it, the night dropped back into the water and a thirty or forty yards from shore. It sank at once.

Dangerous Peccaries.

The small peccaries go about in droves of from twenty to thirty, and will refuse to leave or bolster logs, where they are lying, until they are shot. The peccaries go in herds of considerable size, and are very dangerous when they are reluctant to run and prefer either to stand their ground, or charge with open and grunting, or else actually to attack.

Where much cornerned the navvy runs considerable risk of being bitten by a run, but their business is not to run, but to meet the enemy and endeavour to their mates action for safety. They invariably form a line, presenting their bags. They often charge the hunters, and it have been known for a man to be wounded by them, while almost every one has been bitten. I have myself actually served to arrumpike a tree to escape from them, and I have seen a hound of a mare being killed by them. They are extremely courageous, and on which the man has taken refuge they will stand at the foot.

There is one occasion in Costa Rica when they are to be met with in large droves by a great herd of 300 or 400 of these peccaries, and this occasion is during the season when the figs are ripening. Then they are to be met with in great numbers.

Ugly Looking Objects.

Soon we heard the unhappy grunting of the herd in front of us, and presently on each side. Then Benedetto joined me, and the two stood back to back, while we moved slowly forward toward the herd. It was a most unpleasant moment, which were rushed at times by a contemptible of the enemy. Then we were out on the other side of the herd of peccaries moving slowly to the left.

Mr. Spring and Mr. Bates were to shoot at need and pointed out one for a level as I did not like to fire, for fear of hog through the vines, tortoise and branches which intervened. Then I saw three more steps at other hogs, and I fired into the mass of bristly, evil-looking. Walking and trotting, with sudden rushes, sometimes through the thick bushes, they disappeared into the jungle. Then we came back to our own country, and not one was left dead. But for some time we heard across one of my wounded ones stand up to bay a quarter of a mile off, and it furiously.

Colonel Relates More of His Adventures With Jungle Denizens.

The most important part of our trip was the hunting of the tapir, or the Brazilian tapir. In many ways this takes about this time of the year, perhaps to make this short statement in order. The only account of our trip down the river will be given in the succeeding November numbers of Brothner's Mag azine.

We put upon the map an unknown river, the River of Doubt, discovered and corresponding to the Rio, the Rhine of Brazil, which is the River of Doubt. In the course of this river, where we went in a little of the unexplored country, I saw more of the interesting country visited by our expedition than in the previous four years known to the rubber hunters. It is a beautiful country, and only of Europe and the United States will it be known. It is practically ignored as it is that part a bit of its existence is in the Amazon valley. It is practically the map of South America furnished on to the government of Natural History, an excellent publication of the kind, but one which is not known widely, and as good as any other map. Some of the rivers are the upper waters of the river, but not even a name for the latter portion of the river. Probably it was meant to indicate the course of the river, but apparently the Madeira to a Brazilian map I saw was indicated nothing given the name to which it is known to the Brazilians. Anyhow, not it was still left in a rough form, and the river was known as the whatever of its size or importance.

Colonel Tells of Exciting Hunt.

Telling of an exciting tapir hunt, Colonel Roosevelt says:

The tapir was coming downstream at a great rate, and the moment I saw a shore water, while the dugouts were pushing madly to the bank to avoid getting boat ashore. As the tapir turned slightly to one side or the other the long, slightly notarized snout and the strongly pronounced arch of the crest showed the latter's species, and that it was a marked and unusual aspect.

The tapir was not in the least alarmed by the whole uproar of the hunting dogs, the bobbing of the dugouts, or the angry, shouting men. It was evidently accustomed to all of these things, and the only thing that seemed to disturb it was the sight of the dugouts. It was a most unusual sight

RESIDENTS HAVE MANY MISHAPS

Long Chapter of Accidents and Other Misfortunes which Have Befallen Adams County People. One was Struck with Bullet.

John H. Fitts, residing in Hamilton township, was seriously injured by the kick of a horse, when he attempted to make it stand to a stable in the stall. The animal suddenly kicked with both hoofs, striking Mr. Fitts on the lower part of the body, thereby inflicting him unconscious. After being carried into the house, a physician was summoned and upon examination it was discovered that the man, besides sustaining a fracture of both bones, received a gash torn into the flesh that required a number of stitches to close. Mr. Fitts is confined to his bed, and while his injuries are considered of a very serious nature, recovery is expected unless some unforeseen complications arise.

William Guise of Huntington township will be unable to do any work for several weeks on account of an injury he sustained. He was hauling in a load of hay on a set of wood ladders when the load tipped and he fell to the ground on his right shoulder fracturing the small bone and knocking it out of joint.

Leander Boose, residing in the William Boose house, Union township, fell from the loft floor to the floor of the barn, landing upon his head and shoulders. He was rendered unconscious by the descent but only came slightly in contact with a load of hay which checked the force of the fall to some extent.

Guy Strasbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Strasbaugh, near Orrtanna, fell, has been suffering from a very sore foot for the past week, caused by an aggravated and penetrating the sole of the foot.

TOOTH REPLANTED AMAZES DENTISTS

Many Odd Operations Were Displayed and Carbolic Acid Introduced as an Anaesthetic.

Philadelphia, July 3.—The transplanting of a tooth, a dental curiosity so rare that some dentists refuse to believe it possible, was shown to members of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society in the city dental hospital yesterday and children, from Tioga.

Members of the state society, who, including Dr. Alfred C. Fones, are investing this week at the Bellevue-Stratford, were invited to attend a meeting at the healthy condition of the boy.

Dr. McCullough explained that he had identified the tooth beyond doubt as one before performing the operation, and that it had been taken from a sterile salt solution. Not more than fifteen minutes had elapsed after the old position became it found lose attached to a new socket, thereby forming a satisfactory union. The operation had

ANNUAL SESSION OF DEMOCRATS

County Committeemen Meet at Lincoln Way Hotel, Adopt Platform, Elect Officers, and Hear Speech on by Rudisill and Brodbeck.

The annual meeting of the Democratic Committee of Adams County was held Saturday at the Lincoln Way Hotel with a good representation of party workers from the various boroughs and townships.

The business transacted included the re-election of former officers as chairman, D. H. Guise, Liberty township; secretary, D. P. Delap, Bendersville; treasurer, Paul A. Martin, Arbutus.

Rules were adopted to conform to those of the State Committee, and to come up for final adoption three months hence.

The platform adopted included the unqualified endorsement of the Wilson administration; an endorsement of the conduct of the office of congressman as carried out by the present incumbent, Andrew R. Brodbeck; the endorsement of the state ticket, and of the candidacy of D. Calvin Rudisill as candidate for the State Legislature.

Mr. Rudisill was present at the meeting and, when called upon, responded briefly in thanking the Democrats of the county, through their representatives, for his recent nomination, and promising, if elected, to vote for the reforms of large disputed questions to the people for their decision, and honest judgment as the thing which should determine his own vote where matters were to be decided directly by the legislature.

Congressman Brodbeck responded for a half hour when he was introduced upon. He spoke at length of the work accomplished since the inauguration of President Wilson and the election of the Democratic Senate and House. He laid particular stress on the passage of the tariff bill, the currency bill, the Panama Canal tolls repeal and the rural credit legislation. He urged the support of local Democrats on the state ticket, to the candidacy of D. Calvin Rudisill and to Mr. Brodbeck himself.

His speech ended with an earnest plea for unity in the party and the meeting was adjourned after the adoption of the resolutions committee report.

FREDERICK COMPLAINS

Did not Want Western Express Sent through Gettysburg.

In response to complaints from Frederick, that the Pittsburg Express was removed from the Baltimore and Hanover division of the Western Maryland Railroad, C. P. Sweger, General Passenger Agent, frankly states in a letter that the train did not run that way:

"It is with sincere regret that I am forced to make the statement that our Train No. 5, leaving our night Baltimore-Pittsburgh train, has not in the past been a success of operating of and for what appeared to us to be good and sufficient reasons. It was found necessary, in the change of schedule effective June 14, to operate the train via Gettysburg in the hope that it might prove profitable, and that we might be able to retain it in service.

"I am sure that you, yourself, and the people of Frederick must appreciate the strenuous efforts the Western Maryland is making looking toward establishing through limited passenger train, but, unfortunately, on account of the great business depression, the patronage of these trains has not been anything like sufficient to warrant their operation, and while it is our wish and purpose as at all times operate our trains to meet the convenience and view of our patrons and the traveling public wherever we can consistently do so, yet we cannot continue to operate the great amount of passenger service heretofore received."

HANOVER MAN DEAD

Charles M. Winebrenner, one of Hanover's most highly respected citizens, passed away in his home Thursday evening at 6:15 o'clock. He was aged 73 years, 4 months and 4 days. He had been ill for a year, his death from a complication of diseases.

He is survived by a widow, three daughters, Mrs. Bertha M. Smith, Mrs. George M. Forney and Mrs. Charles L. Myers, and two sons, Paul Winebrenner, treasurer of the Hanover Saving Fund Society, and Harry Winebrenner, assistant postmaster. There are also eight grandchildren.

The funeral was held Monday morning at 10 o'clock from his late home.

A Medieval Ghost Story

By F. A. MITCHEL

There is a story concerning one of the Jay Gould's a powerful Tipperary family, which, if not true, at least resembles one with mediæval flavor. The man I think he was Owens de Medici, first broke off a love affair with a young actress as it is possible for a man to be—one of the most fickle of human beings. Soon afterward his brother and Owens killed the offending boy with a duel. Owens fled to the continent, left in love, and her father, who claimed that the duel was not fair, followed after her alone. His wife did not long survive the tragedy, and Owens' estate grew almost up to six hundred a year. Then he married the actress and brought her home to his castle.

Years dimmed to the environs of Florence during the seventeenth century, near the spot where Owens was killed and his son, a wife which in his time had been a traveling actor. It is well known that the duke's conscience troubled him greatly because of the unrelenting life after his wife's death was known. He had a fine hunting lodge, where it was supposed he was happiest when he was not there, and his demise was for many years unexplained. The story is that in the duke's will that clause which referred to the lodge read, "The lodge where I sojourned when I found it necessary to withdraw from the turmoil of life in the house of he" Medici he punishing his conscience for the duel.

No one could be found who was willing to buy the place under such a title, and it was left to fall into decay and was shunned as great was the horror of his memory. Then, after many years, at last, however, an inviting gentleman, a descendant of the duke, was induced to convert it into a villa. He was a young man, and was said to be rich and beautiful wife.

They remained shortly before dinner—it was during the gloaming, before the candles were brought—when the duke was in the library trying to read in the fast fading twilight. His wife was recently above, making her toilet. Suddenly the door behind heard a chime, it merely over his head as of a body falling from a great height. He turned around, there his wife was lying prostrate before him in a corner, in a heap, as if she had been thrown there by some unseen force. She was unconscious and beautiful wife.

WIFE FAINTED AT THE FUNERAL

Tennytown Woman Sends Flowers for Man She Murdered, Goes to Funeral but Faints on Body is to be Taken to Cemetery.

Falling in a faint by the side of the coffin which held her husband, was the grief that overcame Mrs. Edgar H. McCauley, of Taneytown, created a sensation at the funeral which took place in Hagerstown on Friday.

Services were held at the home of Mrs. McCauley's brother-in-law, Rev. Howard King, pastor of the Reaver Creek Lutheran Church, Hagerstown, and the funeral continuations resting on the coffin was a floral piece sent from the home of Mrs. Long and two other designs sent by his wife.

The funeral was largely attended, among those present being his wife, a sister and his two young children by his divorced wife. Mrs. McCauley, after viewing the corpse for the last time, fell to the floor in a faint, and could not get to the Dunkard Cemetery, where the body of Mr. McCauley was laid to rest.

Mr. Long was related by Attorney Emory Stinebrenk, of Baltimore on Friday, to the murder of Mr. McCauley, and the case against her of shooting her husband, that Mr. McCauley left not a will, but left a life insurance policy and his entire estate will go to the widow.

Mrs. Long, it is said, has lost the minds of those familiar with the shooting of her husband as to what action the Grand Jury is going to take in the case. George Hartman, the lawyer employed by the prosecuting attorney, seemed to take exception to the action of the coroner's inquest in exonerating Mrs. McCauley on the charge of shooting her husband. Mr. Hartman, it is said, has the jury over-stepped its rights in returning such a verdict in favor of the defendant.

GLASS CUT EYES

While washing his Ford automobile at the garage of Wm. Hughes, Jr., on Springs avenue Saturday Returning Visitor, Dr. Wm. Hamilton, received severity cut about both eyes and the nose.

The accident occurred in a most unusual way. Mr. Douglass had about completed washing the car about the rear lawn and after cranking it started to turn around. He failed to notice a wire clothes line hanging in his way and in a moment it caught his glasses. They were snapped over, the sharp pieces cutting both eyes.

His wounds bled rather freely and he was taken to the office of a local physician where his injuries were dressed. It is not believed that any serious consequences will follow the accident. Only slight harm was done to the automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglass arrived at the Slaybaugh home Friday evening for a visit of several days.

POULTRY NOTES.

At the approach of a storm see that the chicks are tightly shut up in their coops till all danger is over.

It is now well known that sour skimmilk is the best preventive of sweet bowel trouble in young chicks, but it is not a cure for all.

Sloppy or mushy food should not be given to chicks during rainy or cold. Their digestive system is at a certain time so delicate that it is impossible to live on solid food, like the grown fowl.

Clean out the poultry houses, scrape and scrub and disinfect them, disinfect them. Keep this in mind and put the matter into practice from time to time regardless of circumstances.

Lice are a pest and must be killed at this summer season.

MONEY IN POULTRY FOR THE FARMER

Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The farm is the ideal place for establishing a poultry business. Here are all successful poultry operations rest in conventional ideas. Without a certain degree of health it is utterly impossible to progress with poultry. Disease, and the cure, now here are conditions so conducive to poultry success as they are on the farm.

Generally the farmer has some old building that can be fixed up for poultry at little expense and will make a good beginning. If he has no building, then a limited amount of space to put the poultry house or houses on a certain part of the farm will be made. Sufficient for this purpose, with the necessary equipment, will be the very advantages upon a good deal to the success of the venture.

In addition the farmer has the additional advantage that his table scraps, the only scouring bugs, insects, grass seed and grit in abundance, the equivalent of which, if it had to be purchased, would amount to considerable in the course of a year. In most localities the corn crop is also grown around the garden instead of growing it. This is a great advantage in the way of producing lines of strong constitution, eggs from such stock being fully

ASSESS DAMAGES FOR TURNPIKE

Viewers Meet to Hear Arguments of Turnpike Company and State Highway Department. Many Witnesses are Called.

Viewers appointed to assess damages for the 4.5 miles of the Chambersburg-Fayetteville Pond Fork section extends from the Franklin county line in Willow Grove to Adams county held a hearing in the Court House here today. The turnpike company was represented by Sharpe and Sharpe, of Chambersburg and D. Jay Smith, of Gettysburg and D. P. McPherson, Senator John Price, of Chambersburg, appeared for the State Highway Department.

The board of viewers is composed of S. D. Beck and W. T. Ziegler, of Gettysburg; G. W. Koser, of Biglerville; J. E. Gilmore, of Oxford township; and J. U. Neely, of Fairfield.

By the privilege accorded it during the past session of the state legislature, the State Highway Department has charge of the turnpike for a time. According to this act, action to determine the damages to be paid the Turnpike Company may be instituted after the seizure of the property. At the first hearing a number of witnesses were examined, showing what the revenue of the company had been for some years previous to the State's acquisition of the road.

The section of road from Willow Grove to Littlestown, by way of Gettysburg, was owned by the Hanover company known as the Gettysburg and Petersburg Turnpike Company. The two roads over the Highway Department last June at the same time as the section below.

Monday was the day fixed for taking evidence in the condemnation proceedings, at the court house here, but to the taking of the Chambersburg & Gettysburg road by the state. The viewers met last Fall and after examining the property adjourned to meet at a later date. The case was then continued until Monday when it was again continued until Wednesday of this week because of the illness of one of the viewers, Samuel Shank. The other viewers are Henry Grove, J. E. Boyd, David H. Trelle, and I. David Snyder.

BASE BALL NOTE

Management of Local Team Asks Public to Co-operate.

The management of the Gettysburg base-ball team states that all persons attending games of the team will be asked to use the Washington street entrance to Union Field as the by-law authorities object to the campers being used as an approach to the park. They will be asked to pay the admission fee has been paid and the public is asked to deal kindly with those who refuse to pay. Boys in knee pants will be admitted free of charge but will not be allowed to occupy the benches. The team needs revenue and feels sure asked to co-operate in the management by paying their admission without dispute.

MORE RESIDENTS

Reading Puts on Two New Crews at Gettysburg.

The Reading has put on two new crews when will start from Gettysburg every day having a twenty-four hour lay off here on the alternate days. The two will eventually result in bringing the eight Gettysburg crew members of the crews to this place as residents. Two crews will be put on the train from here for Philadelphia, which further does not run, because of a combined milk and passenger train.

The Reading pay car was here today for the first time in five years, the local men being paid direct instead of through the local agent as has formerly been the custom.

NOW IN VAUDEVILLE

William Ingersoll Appears at Keith's in Playlet.

William Ingersoll, the Philadelphia actor who has spent much time on the Player's Lodge west of town, is now in vaudeville. The Philadelphia Press said of him on Tuesday:

William Ingersoll's first appearance in vaudeville was presented a double that this favorite is stock for years, is equally as popular with vaudeville patrons.

Mr. Ingersoll, with his company, presents "On the Market", at B. F. Keith's Theater this week. It is a clever playlet portraying the tragedy that lies concealed beneath the veneer of glamour of many modern-day marriages among the wealthy class. In Mr. Ingersoll's sketch, the man is the one sinned over down the road, because most, revarning the usual order of things.

FOR FOURTH OF JULY CLOSING

Gettysburg Merchants Decide Both to Close and Remain Open on Independence Day. Post Office Arrangements.

Gettysburg merchants—many of them—are undecided as to the policy they will pursue next Monday, the 4th July Fourth. The day falls on Saturday this year and, with the celebration in town in the evening, many of them feel that for the sake of business and the accommodation of the public, they do not deem it wise to close the establishments and wait for the entire day. Others, taking into consideration their employees and the patriotic aspect of the situation will close Friday evening not to open until Tuesday.

The Weaver and Daugherty and Hartley dry goods stores, as well as the Eckert and Seligman men's furnishing stores, have announced that they will be closed all day. The Lefevre's clothing store will be open all day. Lembaugh and The Schmidt will be closed until seven o'clock in the evening after which they will be open for the trade of the day.

A number of the merchants have said that they would be governed entirely on closing resolutions. No effort was made for a concerted closing of stores and it is said that it will follow no own inclinations. The fact that there is to be a parade and general celebration in the evening tends to encourage business open, rather than the closing policy.

At the post office holiday hours will be observed. There will be no delivery and collection by city carriers in the afternoon. Rural carriers will make no delivery. The window at the post office will be open for both city and rural mail delivery from 7 to 9 o'clock in the morning and from 7 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

MRS. MCCAULEY ILL

Woman Who Shot Husband Not Improving Rapidly.

Mrs. Mary Ann McCauley, the Taneytown woman who shot her husband, Edgar S. McCauley, a week ago today, is reported to be ill at the home of her friend at Beaver Creek, near Hagerstown, and her recovery is not progressing after being released from the Towsontown jail.

While attending the funeral of her husband, which took place last Friday at the Mount Olivet church, near Creek, the young widow became very ill and was taken to the home of one of the dead man lay. She was unable to accompany the rest of the mourners to the grave side.

Mrs. McCauley will not return to Baltimore until September.

SMITH—ROSS

IRELAND'S OMINOUS QUIET: THE CALM BEFORE A STORM

It is an ominous quiet that prevails in the north, says a London dispatch. Ireland is the most peaceful of all the countries. It seems that the whole island has suddenly become pacified. There could be no greater mistake. The fact is that the preparations of both armies of Irishmen for civil war go on steadily. Every week-day under the Home Rule bill is one campaign nearer to the day when it is to begin.

The uprising into force of that measure is expected to be the signal for the British army to mutiny. Many of the British government will stand the test of loyalty to the government and refuse to obey the order to fire upon the Ulster government. The Ulster government will then be in a position to assume the offensive. If it asserts its authority there and declares war, it will not be long before the British army will follow its own example.

Then will be issued publicly and clearly, in event of complete and permanent separation from the British parliament of the home rule bill now being enacted, the secret instructions to order his non-Irish army to withdraw from Ireland. Then will follow the Irish soldiers, seven-eighths of whom are in sympathy with the aims of the Ulster volunteers. If the govern ment attempts to move them across into the province there will be revolt. Then will ensue what is to be the undoing.

On the other side the Irish volunteers are receiving by stealth and smuggling into Ireland at the rate of 150,000 men. Thus they are assured of supply even if they are not supplied from the government. Thus they constitute a need for mobilize for civil war. They are ready to receive with them to the very near future. The controversy is now to decide—since that big army is to engage.

WHEN HEARTS ARE TENDER

FRIEDMAN WANTS INVESTIGATION

Moses Friedman, until recently superintendent of the Indian Industrial School, has ordinarily thrown down the offer of the Department of Justice to drop further inquiry into his administration of Carlisle Indian School, and challenged the Government to complete the investigation which was instituted by the Bureau of Indian Affairs. Mr. Friedman, who has been visiting friends in Philadelphia since he resigned from the superintendency of the school late in May, was aroused by the publication yesterday of a dispatch from Washington which said that the Department of Justice had decided to take no further notice of the case because the acts alleged against Mr. Friedman are now covered by the statute of limitations.

"I want this inquiry to go on, until we must be the result, my reputation be vindicated and the conditions which drove me to resign are shown to be the result of a carefully planned persecution at the hands of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, under Commissioner Sells. The intimation that I was dismissed on account of irregularities and incompetency, and that the charges were established in a fair investigation, is one more manifestation of the campaign which has been directed against me and which I can no longer endure in silence.

"As for the accusations of irregularities in the finances of the school, there is not one transaction for which I cannot render account. That the testimony of Nori, shifting the blame for the irregularities upon me, should have been accepted shows the malignancy of the whole case. During my incumbency, I handled $2,000,000 of the school funds. My accounts show that not one penny of it was misappropriated.

"I would point out anything in the world than to have this matter dropped while the charges remain. I cannot afford that I ought to be grateful for the 'leniency' of the Department of Justice in deciding that it will not 'prosecute me', he declared. "All that I have in the world is my character. I cannot suffer this injustice, which seeks maliciously to ruin me, to go on. I have absolutely nothing to fear from the most searching inquiry that can be brought to bear upon the matter. I welcome it. But it is those who have made me the object of their persecution who ought to fear such publicity, for I declare that there exists in the Bureau of Indian Affairs a system of star chamber inquisition which if allowed to grow, will result in a department of efficiency in the Federal service so great that the Administration must take steps to stamp it out or else mock at justice."

W. C. T. U. MEETING

Monthly Meeting of Temperance Workers at Biglerville.

The Biglerville W. C. T. U. met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Wilson Wolfinger. The devotions were in charge of Mrs. Siphen and Mrs. Warman. The report of the treasurer shows the society to be in a good financial condition. Under new business plans were made for Mrs. Parker's lecture.

GOOD HUNTING SEASON HERE

All Game Has Come through the Spring Successfully and Adams County Hunters Look Forward to Busy Fall.

Adams County hunters may look for a big hunting season about fall, almost all the game having come through the winter in fine condition, shape. Dr. Kalbfus, head of the State Game Commission, makes the report on conditions.

"Because of State laws forbidding the shipment of game, either living or dead, out of almost every State in this Union", says Secretary Kalbfus, "it is now impossible to secure game birds such as quail and wild turkeys even in limited numbers for propagating purposes." Dr. Kalbfus takes the view that not only must the State be stocked with game under ordinary circumstances, but that it is due the people for the $1.00 tax and more that the licensed hunter who delights in pursuing small, for instance, ought to find this quarry just as much in the deer hunter ought to find deer.

Ruffed grouse have wintered well naturally, notwithstanding deep snows and cold. Wild turkeys are in excess of help given them through the winter, and of food scattered in the fall, but all the rums except small promises to be abundant. Dr. Kalbfus says:

"I believe for various reasons that Carlisle is a salutary exception. I accuse this in so it is the duty of the State to reply to the fullest extent the public sentiment against the use of sinbust running against trespass notices, and also to the fullest extent the various kinds to be hunted.

"I believe our laws relative to hunting should be kept reasonable and uniform, and that sentiment should be given more consideration in the matter of this kind. I believe that sportsmen are the best friend the game laws than are scientists, or any other class of men. Sportsmen in the true meaning of the word, are not are supplying the money through which protection is given and not the game, but to song and insectivorous birds, and all game species should be given consideration in matters of this character. I believe that through the enforcement of game regulations formulated by the committee of three at Washington concessions for game that more harm has been done in the cause of migratory birds than could have been accomplished in any other way, and a very number of men in the United States, and it seems to me that what the sentiment of the State of Pennsylvania of the trouble that will come to sportsmen from this source."

AUTO ACCIDENT

An automobile party of seven escaped injury when a wheel came off a rope from serious injury Wednesday evening at the big hill at the Shriver farm, between Fairfield and Orrtanna. The spindle caused one of the wheels to be dragged from the automobile. Clyde Kar, belonging to Maurice Miller, and minor damage was done to the automobile before it was stopped. Fortunately the car did not overturn and the occupants, who included Mr. Wehler's family and Mr. and Mrs. Moody, were unhurt.

Miss Anna McCoy, of Chambersburg, has returned home after spending several days at the home of Captain Walker on Middle street.

INCREASE TOWN'S FLOATING DEBT

Over Nine Thousand Dollars Borrowed by the Town to Meet Current Expenses, Town's Lighting Subject for Long Discussion.

Voting to increase the floating indebtedness of the borough from $7500 to $9125, with no appreciable revenue in sight for three months, the town council at their regular July meeting Tuesday night approved bills and warrants amounting to $2960. Since their June meeting disbursements of over $9000 were made, a total for the two months of $6490.

The treasurer's report presented Monday evening indicated a balance on hand of about $900 after bills already on hand were paid. The balance was due largely to the use of $1000 secured from the sale of bonds, money for funding the floating indebtedness and improvements on the town's high ways.

J. L. Bick, stone, $1,091.11
Barret Mfg. Co., Tarvia, 456.76
Atlantic Refining Co., oil, 457.84
Westinghouse Elec. Co., parts, 41.00
Chas. E. Lady, curbing etc., 368.71
Gettysburg Gas Co., gas, 201.00
Gettysburg Compiler, printing, 60.00
Wilson Haner, curbing, 58.40
Sundry bills, 55.56

The tax duplicate was approved by the committee and will be placed in the collector. It amounts to $10,729.21 in addition to $2,246.06 for the county special fund. It will be ninety days before any of this is available.

TO REPAIR BRIDGE

For an hour and a half the light committee of Gettysburg Electric & Gettysburg Light Company battles, with Commissioner Crawford, for the failure to get together on a committee for furnishing the light for the next year for the borough.

Council's committee presented a written report in which they stated that they had conferred with the light company officials and had received specifications given, and, instead bids on other conditions; that the company had refused to submit a bid on furnishing current at a rate per kilowatt hour and further, in the event no agreement was reached, the light committee recommended the construction of a municipal light plant in the town.

J. L. Schick, Esq. and T. P. Turner represented the Light Company and stated that by furnishing light according to the form presented by the committee would require a capacity at the plant of 14,000 horsepower, necessitating the immediate installation of a 5,000 unit machine engine. The difficulty seemed to be largely over an increase in the price the light committee in demanding 7½ cents per kwatt hour current instead of 6 cents as at present.

Mr. Stock, speaking for the committee of council, then presented a bid from the Edison Co. and stated that the borough wants bids on furnishing fifty 50-candle power street lighted lamps, one hundred 100-candle power lamps, and twelve 250-candle power lamps, all to burn from dusk to dawn with the arc lights entirely out. Stock felt that the borough pays should be willing to furnish light for the borough at the same rate that they furnish current for commercial light to private consumers and said that on this basis the town would have but $1500.00, whereas the Edison bid was for $2,000.00. Mr. Schick further alleged that the company persisted in bidding on 200 lamps instead of the 250 which the town had brought their bid to $2643.10 or not far from the sum which the town has been paying annually for light in the past years.

In explanation of these figures Mr. Turner stated that the company could not be expected to furnish current at its lowest rate when the plant was not operated to its capacity and the lowest commercial rate was given when the plant was not taxed as it is in the evening when borough light would be demanded. In explanation of the 200 minimum figure stated, he said that was simply used as a basis for computation.

Quite a heated argument among members followed a statement in the light committee's report which said that complaint had been laid with the Public Service Commission of the State of Pennsylvania, compelling the Light Company to give a proper rate for current. President Weikert and Councilman Keith scored the committee members severely, stating they had violated their rights, had exceeded their authority, and might jeopardize the town into an expensive legal proceeding. After the matter had been some what threshed out, Councilor Swope announced that the complaint had not been filed at all, that he had simply sent for blanks on which to file the action in question, whereupon council rested more comfortably.

The matter was finally settled by referring the question back to the light committee for further negotiation with the company in the hope that an amicable arrangement could be made. The committee reported the committee is to get figures on the cost of installing a municipal plant.

Other Matters.

The ordinance committee presented the ordinance for the repair to the recommendations of Burgess Raymond Weaver, relative to the construction of curbs in the borough. As a result of the report, as the discussion follows the matter of the ordinance was laid over ordered to provide and place items in the budget for Monday evening next.

The borough is 10 miles per hour ordinance was laid over pending a morning at all crossings. The ordinance committee approved the Burgess' proposed concerning the same matter. Council agreed the condition needed immediate relief and the question of when the work should be done, sewer and highway committees for immediate action. Considerable talk followed the opening of the drain which empties into the Lincoln cemetery section and the plugging shut of all sluice except those from water drains. William Bream was appointed janitor to Henry Dustman and Fred Thorn.

Murray Shoads appeared to complain that the water pressure at his water supply when they built Mr. Shoads a new bath room was promised.

The committee of hackmen appeared to ask council to allow their payment for license in 1912 to apply on their license for this year, which council at last few had paid such license two years ago and that it was only fair to those who had done so, not to have those who had failed to do so by they appeared. Borough Solicitor Swope was given the question to see whether council could legally grant such request.

Mr. Swope reported collections of $151.85 for property owners' share of the Lincoln Way East sewer. Bureau Burgess Raymond reported collections of $14 for permits; Market Master Hemler reported $5.50 for stalls and Collin Gilbert turned over $410.80 received from Gettysburg Gas Co. for treatment of the streets with tarvia last year.

A letter was read from D. P. McPherson, Esq., representing Miss Jennie Wright, who asks damages for injuries received when she tripped on a defective brick pavement several months ago and broke her arm. Messrs. Keith and Gilbert were appointed to confer with the solicitor in council in the matter.

The matter of two lights on Railroad street extended was held over pending the adoption of a new light contract.

The borough attorney was asked to draw the contract for the new lights which would be encountered in the paving of Water street crossing.

The highway committee was instructed to have the bridge on the Middle street from the property of Mrs. Charles E. Gilbert to Franklin street.

TO BRING NEGRO EXCURSIONS HERE

Promising to restrict the number to 2500, the Western Maryland Railway announces that it will run an excursion of colored people from Baltimore to Gettysburg on Monday, July 20. On Monday of next week a similar excursion, though not so large, will be run to this place from Hagerstown.

The disgraceful conditions which prevailed here on September 8 last, is still fresh in the minds of Gettysburg people. On that day the Western Maryland booked the town with 7240 colored people, the first excursion to arrive at 3 p. m. and hundreds of excursionists not being able to get away until the following morning after a night spent along the streets at the mercy of the day following the excursion the following appeared in The Times:

"One woman shot as the result of a sudden brawl, three persons injured by a trolley accident caused by an intoxicated passenger, an officer assaulted by a mob of fifty persons, a citizen robbed of $35, numerous fights and a case of mental delusion ending in a halt past five this morning when the Western Maryland got rid of their homeward way the last of the 7240 colored excursionists which the town dumped upon it yesterday in Monday.

It is doubtful if any excursion ever run to the town has brought forth the wide-spread and unrestrained indignation which was aroused in Gettysburg Monday evening when the throngs of drunken negroes, often partially or entirely under the influence of liquor, thronged the town and created a condition which threatened serious trouble. Such an unfortunate enough to see it".

Whether or not Gettysburg is to be favored with excursions in the future outrage again this year remains to be seen. In the minds of many those restricting the number to 2500 is but a small remedy for the evil. Excursions which the Western Maryland tenders the town every time it picks Gettysburg for its dumping ground. The manner which they bring from Baltimore are not fitted for excursions to the city, the better class of colored folk refusing to patronize the excursions. Gettysburg is the only route which will accept them and here is where they are brought.

In response to a vigorous protest, the Western Maryland has changed its land discontinued three excursions. Then came an appeal for a little consideration on the argument that the road was in financial difficulties and needed the revenue excursions would bring, which was accorded to the request and offered the promise that only one excursion were run. The road has taken advantage of this favor in the past and it is but natural to suppose that the town may expect a similar favor this year. The manner in which it is now proposed to run here this month.

PREPARE FOR SUMMER CAMPS

Gettysburg's Camping Clubs to Spend a Week or Ten Days Each along Streams of the County. Some Announce Rules.

Moonlight nights and warm summer evenings have accustomed Gettysburg's nature lovers to turn their thoughts toward the many pretty secrets of the woods, and camping trips galore are now in process of arrangement. Individual family camps by the dozen will dot nearby streams during July and August while the organized camping clubs will take their usual outings.

One of the first to go out will be Kamp Kill Kare which plans to take out canvas for a two weeks' outing either next Monday or Tuesday. For several years this club has been camping at Table Rock but will make a change this summer, going either to the John B. Kuhn woods, near East Berlin, or to Knabbs. The place has not yet been determined on.

The annual camp of the Masonic Club will again take place on August 1. They will spend their outing at their house near the junction of Rock and Marsh creeks with Rock Creek Cemetery. This week the club organized for a two weeks' outing, with Clarence Miller, president, J. Harry Holtzworth; vice president, Dr. J. Nealy Ray; secretary, D. A. Skelly; treasurer, J. Allen Holtzworth.

Camp Welcome, one of the oldest camps in the county, will open their season on Tuesday, August 4 and August 12. The membership of this camp has increased recently to such an extent generations now lay claim to having been at one time or another members of the camp, as well as many of the Highland township resort.

Camp Sunset, which for several years have been taking houseboat trips on the Susquehanna river, this week will go out for another week's enjoyment this year. Whether or not the houseboat trip this year has not been decided but, if it is, the route will probably be from Williamsport to Cumberland.

Natural Dam will be the seat of the annual camp of the Presbyterian Boys' Club. This club has held several successful camps recently to make preparations for their camp and will decide upon the date at a meeting held in session which is called for Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. C. B. Stouffer is counselor to the boys in their preparations.

Camp Sing Sing, established last year, will again report for a two weeks' tour of duty from Dec. 1 to August 7. The club gets its name from the vocal aspirations of its members which include Monroe B. Bender, John Sachs, G. Edgar Musselman, Jr., Allen Musselman, Curtis Shoads, Rogers Musselman, and Amos Musselman.

DANCE ARGUMENT

Owners of Parks Must Choose Between Dancers and Church Picnics.

Owners of Bolling Springs, Mount Holly, Rockville and others in the vicinity of Carlisle face a peculiar situation as the result of the "Sunday war" now on there. They are compelled to choose, as the result of action by the council of the various churches, between having their regular Sunday picnics or having Sunday school picnics or to lose the patronage of both. The latest decision was begun by the St. Paul's Lutheran congregation, who at their picnic some weeks ago refused to take the money of dancers. Since then the same stand is taken by the Methodists, who picnic on Saturday.

TEACHERS ENTERTAIN

Three Methodist Sunday School Classes on Picnics.

Mrs. James Tate and Mrs. William Pavlis are entertaining their Methodist Sunday School classes at "Squire Hamilton's" Park today. Prof. Lawrence has taken his class to Marsh Run for the day.

UNPARALLELED CROPS ASSURED

FARM LOANS QUOTED.

Thur Figures Are Borne Out by Estimates and Reckoned—Tremendous Harvest of Wheat, Corn and Cotton — Wonderful Promise as to Load Again in Great Production—Country Sizes Reasons.

On the authority of many standard farm newspapers, of officials of the grower railroads, and of prominent banks and prospects throughout the United States are superabsolved.

While the healthy rain we made particularly as in the stock conditions, it appears through many reports that prices are gratifying to producers, and other information shows that there is a marked return to cattle breeding, with renewed interest in the production of draft horses, activity in swine breeding and a rise in the values of wool and mutton.

Biggest Yield of Wheat in Eight.

Herewith are extracts from various authentic sources:

The Economist Gazette.—Never has such a yield of wheat been in sight. Early threshing returns add to the estimates materially. Corn is a grand prospect, except that extreme drouth has suffered some in the dry belt through the eastern sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, but a fine crop is to prove pest in nearly every other section.

Hazard's Bulletin.—The prospects for an abundant harvest crop for the dairy sections of the United States were never brighter.

The Wisconsin Agriculturist.—Conditions at all times crops are most promising. Wisconsin will lead all states again this year in the yield of potatoes and grasses per acre.

The Indiana Farmer.—This year's Kansas crop and live stock products will be in excess of anything $200,000,000 Kansas is harvesting the largest crop of wheat in any history. The yield is conservatively estimated at 125,000,000 bushels. But any threshing reports will indicate that the government estimate of 105,000,000 will be noticed. Fruit and hay Thousands of tons of oats will be thrashed, also a record breaking 20414. There is every reason to believe that 150,000,000 bushels of corn will be turned into the cribs.

The Indiana Farmer.—In spite of the general excessive heat, abundant throughout Indiana for several weeks' investigations indicate that the wheat crop will exceed that of last year by 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels

Wallace's Farmer.—Never have crop prospects for Iowa seemed better. Wheat and oats are very heavy, and corn promises a bumper crop.

Good News From the Northwest.

The Farmer.—Crop conditions in the northwest are probably more favorable than at any time within recent years The hay crop is of excellent yield and quality. Conditions have been ideal for the germination of corn, and the crop has never been so far advanced at this season.

The Michigan Farmer.—Crop conditions in Michigan are unusually promising. Conservative estimates indicate that the total wheat crop will fall to about 1,000,000 bushels greater than the last year. Apples are about fifty per cent above last year's production.

The Pennsylvania Farmer.—Prospects differs in Pennsylvania. New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland have caused really above the average for the season of the year. There is every indication of bumper crops of wheat, no better than usual fruit and unknown near vegetables. The apple crop is expected to exceed the ten year average by a wide margin.

Oklahoma Farm Journal.—Oklahoma is breaking all records for production of wheat and oats.

The Progressive Farmer.—Corn and cotton never looked fully up to last year. Wheat crop greatest in history of North Carolina. Crop reports to the same purpose from Alabama and Texas are also most favorable.

The Missouri Farmer.—We have just about completed the harvesting of a splendid wheat crop in Missouri. The yield will be up to the average. Some of the best corn ever grown in Missouri is now growing. The acreage is practically the same as last year, but the average will be of splendid quality. The rye crop promises a full average yield in southeast Missouri

The Prairie Farmer.—The wheat crop in Illinois promises to be one of the largest crops of record years. There is splendid condition throughout the grain crop, both of winter Illinois.

Will Exceed First Estimates.

Harbaugh's National Herald. Colombia. The Wheat crop will exceed first estimates. Harvest over and threshing continuously. In respect for a bumper corn crop; never better in history of Missouri.

Rock Island Lines, Southwest.—The largest acreage and largest total yield of wheat ever raised in Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

RICHES IN HOUSE PLASTER

Shipping plaster from a house to a smelter for the gold, silver, and lead in it is a new departure in the way of making money, but that is what is being done in Frank Fish.

For about three years Fish has been washing the tailings at the old Hesperus mining district. The property is owned by the Helena and Livingston company. Recently a big chunk of gold was found in the washing of one of the houses. This found it was carried out and the ball it attracted. The returns were satisfactory and Fish is going to keep at it. Thrown by an opposing player, Henry Landis, of Fairfield, sustained a broken leg in a game of ball there Saturday at Emmitsburg. Young Landis was running for third base when he collided with the second baseman of the opposing team. He was thrown heavily to the ground and both bones of the left leg were fractured between the knee and the ankle. He was removed to his home and is now resting as comfortably as can be expected. Last January the young man was thrown from a horse and so seriously hurt that he remained unconscious for an entire day.

EASY VICTORY

The Gettysburg base ball team easily slaughtered the Enola nine at Bream's park on Fourth of July afternoon. The score was 15 to 2. The locals batted and fielded and pitched and baseball in a manner worthy of the great American sport. Gettysburg had eighteen hits. Mr. Bradley held his opponents to two. The game with Hanover here on Tuesday afternoon is expected to be quite a different exhibition.

Fairfield is now living up to its reputation as a summer resort. Reformerfield reached the Presbyterian 10 to 4 and Fairfield continued their unbroken string of victories.

A TALE OF WOE

Says His Wife Made Him Help with Baking, Be Family Washing and Prepare the Meals. Forced Children to Work on Sunday.

Mrs. Lucile Bramnagle, wife of Henry Bramnagle, of Thurmont, appeared as a laborer on a state road at Frederick, Md., on Tuesday, for a divorce upon the grounds of cruel conduct. She charges her husband in his answer to a month alimony pending the suit, both of which were granted, and she also asked for an injunction restraining her husband from selling a property, valued at about $1,200 and from drawing $500 from a Thurmont bank. The husband filed an answer to his wife's allegations in his answer he says his wife has compelled him to assume their children to observe Sat urday as Sunday, and that she even made them do work in the garden on Sunday.

To cap the climax of the husband's difficulties, the wife in the bill frequently slapped him on the cheek, and he has turned the other cheek, thus saying that he is still willing to live with his wife, and states he is willing to abide by the decree. Mrs. Bramnagle asks that the alimony order be rescinded and the injunction dismissed.

MANY ARRESTS

CUT SIDEBOARDS OR LEAVE LODGE

Town Minister's Advice to Church Members Belonging to Gettysburg Elks and Eagles. Sermon on Union S'cice on the Campus.

Making an earnest plea for peace and brotherly love among the lodges that prevail in our land to-day, the Rev. J. B. Baker drew an audience of several hundred people preached at the union service on the college campus Sunday evening. His text was taken from scribed on the liberty bell. "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." In his sermon said that the country be free from the present bitter, envious and passion-ridden spirit that prevails in our land to-day, the Rev. J. B. Baker drew an audience of several hundred people preached at the union service on the college campus Sunday evening. His text was taken from Leviticus 25th chapter and 10th verse and was the same text that was inscribed on the liberty bell. "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof." In his sermon said that the country be free from the present bitter, envious and passion-ridden spirit that prevails in our land to-day, the

"When the liberty bell rends its last trip over the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial grounds a Minnesota town pushed her way towards a record of school children and reverently pressed her little cross against the bell, thus bringing the most sacred symbol of the Christian religion and the most sacred symbol of the American nation together. Now if we shall do to-night is meditating a new address upon the text inscribed on our liberty bell.

"The old bell has been silent many years, but it still speaks to every American around the clock upon the subject of liberty. It is the symbol of its first pronouncement, challenges the great and the small, the learned and the unlearned.

"To the president and the leaders of our nation it says: Liberty for all or liberty for none. To the lawyer it says: let the collective interpretation of the book, more tonight shall be the perfect law of liberty. To the rich and prospered text, lays a personal interpretation of slavery. National Bondage.

"Political and industrial liberty have been won by our forefathers but we must secure it for ourselves and demand our attention to-day. To them let us address ourselves briefly.

"There is the slavery of despair. We sing confidingly. Somewhere the sun is shining. Somewhere the ways some about we do who cannot forget. We are sad and we sympathize with them and they are in the worst kind of bondage. Others are in the bonds of their brother and you are your brother's keeper. A sympathetic word lifts a brother from despair. Let us begin at his heart in music as the rising sun begins the thaw in the frozen river.

"There is the slavery of doubt. The world is full of people who have wandered from the fold of faith and are forfeiting truths of our holy religion in the modern day and generation are tangled so badly that they have given up hope of ever getting out and find their relief and free them. Do it with your brain if you can, do it with your heart if you can't. Do it somehow. The great Whitfield, one day preaching in Philadelphia, was to be addressed an unbelieving people. The next day they were thronging the streets of cities telling the religious experiences of those who heard him. He was to be heard and not seen. Many people can be saved one letter after another. Why? The world is full of broken hearts, throbs of personal experience were given to me by a Christian lady whose life logic. A warm Christian life often melts doubt as the sun melts ice in There is no room for doubt in love.

"There is the slavery of fear. There isn't a part of the world to-day that you might not throw a stone and hit a man under control of fear, has wrought havoc and some nations are bounding would hit several. We have fear of poverty, fear of sickness, fear of money but there are still hundreds of dark's and nights in the year when the bar as the southern slave marched into the hot cotton fields of old. Help them by your prayers, help them by your guardianship, by your warfare against the thing that confines them.

"We must tell them of the curse from the drinker as well as the drinker away from the dram. And in doing this we must not forget the people against the legalized saloon but also against the drinking place. We must tell the hagles, Elks, and others of these kind, for in some respects they are worse than the legalized saloon. We must not only make it possible for the slaves to emancipate themselves but insist on the Sabbath but also for the man who remains under the curse of intemperance, to spend his week's earnings and turn the only day that he has with his family into a riot. You preaching Christians who belong to those sideboard clubs will have something to answer for at the judgment to say that you would be glad to avoid not the Lord will hold you to your share of guilt. He knows as well as you do that you have more influence prestige to the order and that it has its influence in bringing some in who otherwise might stay away.

"Saying that you do not patronize the sideboard, as many of you can, will not excuse you from your share of the guilt in tempting your weaker brother. Hope Paul was electrocuted with the other three assassins in Sing Sing a month ago and it was proven that he was not at the scene of the assassination but he was at the house of the chief of police just before. As you value your own soul and as you value the soul of your fellowmen, I ask you to withdraw from the order. You can't serve the Lord and Mammon.

"The slavery of worldliness is still here. There is the slavery of pictures for children, to suffer at, he is here today in a thousand different forms. We are in the midst of the most utter worldliness we have been. We want and we must have more entertainment, more of the stop pleasuring than the church. We have neglected and looked by the wayside while we have been going after to its appointed harbor. But we do not want worldly pleasures, such as the theory ladies and theory having modern dances, such as entertainments of a questionable character, such as the business craved and business loving man has, but we want pleasures that carry in heavy a kind of this world's things that we can enjoy and strengthen themselves to see the stars.

"Let us make the challenge as to deliver them. To do that we must rise superior to these things ourselves. We must set a standard of Christian life as the noble suffers, of the Declaration of Independence, of the Constitution of the United States and of the Bible.

"The motto first to the first verse and last to last.

Note, Trap, Clubs and Poison Used to Exterminate Rodents at New Orleans.

There is the biggest death to all rats campaign going forward in New Orleans that has been undertaken by any municipality in American records. It will persist until every one of the pests that infest the city and suburbs has been exterminated.

Already 100,000 rats and mice were killed in a surprisingly short time. The first day of the campaign there were 15,000 killed. Thousands of men and boys, armed with clubs, nets, traps and poisoning out down the river front and in the slums. They are being paid, and extra every considerable sort of rat killed.

The plan was defined years of the Rockefeller Institute Commission for Study of the Bubonic Plague. The work in the keeping house and as well as those of the Rockefeller Institute found that this home there just as much work to do in exterminating rats, hunting them out and destroying their nests as in fighting the germs of disease. They planned to stop in the restricted area of the city, and then to go out into it and so do nothing or to attend any other rats.

Many of the leading business houses of the city are helping the city authorities, and have their employees organizations. A list of their city authorities has been made, and the work carried out.

Besides the common occupation of necessary, simple traps. The rat proof cisterns, the thorough cleaning and repairing of entrance for all holes and underground passages, and the removal of place where food is served must be attended to. Poisoning is one of the common methods. Prevention of the breeding of rats is one of the most important. Prohibiting the sale of rats within 1,000 feet of sewer outlets.

RALLY TO SAVE REDWOODS.

Gifford Pinchot and Others Start Fund to Crush National Park.

Lumber interests have begun purchase a tract of 30,000 acres of the finest virgin redwood timber, opposed by all the forestation of protected Hum boldt county, Cal., in the heart of the United States forest service; Congressman Kent, of California, and Mrs. Phoebe Willis Ward, both prominent timber men, have joined Gifford Pinchot and Edward in a popular subscription fund.

The existing law prohibits, as set forth by U. S., investors in "forestation land tracts" from selling timber, except those opposite in the immediate vicinity of streams, and the act is not closed and turned over to the authorities for a period of five years by a national forest and training school for rangers. The purchase price is only nominal attempt to save the remainder of the redwood, which would be a most desirable growth of park and playground for the people, and to protect from the flow of the earth as it goes down the mountain sides. It is the belief of the present rate of cutting continues

LENT $519,000.00 ON FARMS

Seventeen Life Insurance Companies Gave Aid in Forty-two of the States, Including Pennsylvania.

Seventeen life insurance companies doing business in the United States gave out during the year 1909 $519,000.00 on farm mortgages, according to a report issued by the insurance department at Washington. This is the first time that the insurance companies have ever given out information as to the amount of money they have loaned on farms. The report was compiled by Commissioner Richard H. Young, who has been in charge of the department for the past two years.

The companies which made loans are: Aetna, Connecticut, Equitable, Home, Mutual Benefit, Mutual Life, New York Life, Northwestern Mutual, Penn Mutual, Phoenix Mutual, Provident Life and Trust, Prudential, Security Mutual, Travelers and Union Central. The loans were made in forty-two states and territories, including Pennsylvania.

Commissioner Young says that the companies are willing to loan money on farms at a low rate of interest, and that the only reason why they do not do so is because they cannot get the business. MEXICO NOW AT CRITICAL POINT

IS INTERVENTION NEARER?

Observers at Situation Look For Early Developments—Significance Attached to Villa's Halt on March to Mexico City—Intervention Talk Grows as Huerta Goes Junta in Washington.

It is generally admitted here, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune, that the whole Mexican situation has developed a new complexity, to extract. Commencing on advices to the effect that General Villa had refused to grant the recently captured town of Zacatecas to Torreon and told Iuhas within the same body of the troops, the Tribune says that some secret information from the situation relative to the slip disciplining through the ranks of the Constitutionalists, which is the only explanation now advanced for the refusal of Villa to march on the capital. Villa's halt has also helpedmixed one of its morale in Washington that it may take as to his against Carranza

Despite the protestations of Court ministerial agents, it is well known that in recent days the situation within northern Mexico and that wrought up to a fine tension at the revolutionary movement.

Test of Strength Coming.

While Villa's agents declare that he still not take aggressive action against Carranza, it is known that he has been in close the two has who and that the latter has sought to placate him. There need be a test of strength.

Villa's refusal to allow the situation is being will feel with General Interest, Obregon officers from the field, which on army is nearer to active service in Washington than any of the Carranza agents. Most officers believe that intervention is inevitable and that the month the administration may try to avoid it.

The inner situation in the Constitutionalist camp is said to be due to the plots of the representatives of Carranza and Villa in this country.

"While both sides declare for guaranties that the revolutionary movement will not be falsified general elections, it is said that Villa will not recall the rebel where there will be a declaration of peace.

"Villa came up to Torreon only to get in person to attend the meeting tonight of General Trinidad Rodriguez, who was killed from Durango to Torreon. Villa has come north to confer with Governor Maytorena, of Sonora, Calles, and the other men, and it will all be determined what the attitude of General Felix Angeles.

It is stated, however, that Lazaro de la Garza and A. Farias, Villa's commissioners to Carranza, left for Washington over a secret telegraph code as if he could not communicate out Juan at his own at the capital. They are to make and propose measures for home at a time but they will not say with whom they will confer.

"The exploration of the Carranzistas in their visit to Washington is to confer with the Mexican ambassador, Hon. Manuel Calero, and to get a report on the appointing the official posts of the Constitutionalists.

CANNED TALKS IN HEALTH CRUSADE

Trustees Now Available Through Card Means Will Be Distributed as Required—Lectures, Moving Pictures and Explanatory Tests on Hygiene, National Campaign Contemplated.

"Canned" lectures on hygiene and sanitation in the present crusade of the United States public health service in its campaign to educate the people in matters of health and disease prevention, are to be available from Feb. 1st by the goal of achievement the enrollment of 100,000 members from a certain territory.

The present three "canned" lectures are card mounts, intended for distribution upon application among the people. Duplication and reproduction had been created for the sort of information. The lectures number 100 in all, later failing to be read into the phonograph and distributed on phonographic record plates and cylinders.

With the lecture records of a number of pictures on given to talents or sometimes the lecture will be accompanied by text explanation it fully. The pictures are now made for accompaniment with, so that they can be shown on a screen with the lecture delivered by the matter from the accompanying text.

On the topic of typhoid fever there are 30 lectures, with 30 accompanying text, one-sheeted for one lecture. Other lectures contemplated include tuberculosis, hookworm, yellow fever, malaria, typhus and general sanitary conditions.

Other Educational Publicity.

The campaign of the United States public health service is concerned with other educational publicity. Its aim is to spread the gospel of hygiene and sanitation into every home and to it every man, woman and child who has not yet learned to have and to keep in stop, look and listen and receive and twice benefit.

The stereopticon library of the public health service is also contributing a subject of its educational campaign. Primarily the collection of one-hundred-library is intended for the use of the commissioned officers in the service to aid them in the lectures they make in the states and territory-wave over the United States.

The stereopticon slides contained one opinion slides assembled in the stereopticon library. Each slide is numbered and filed away. Each slide is numbered and filed away. Each slide is numbered and filed away. Each slide is numbered and filed away.

Adequate Object Lessons.

Those who are in Washington have the opportunity of attending the stereopticon preparing for a lecture will consult the catalogue and determine what the stereopticon library affords for illustrating the lecture. It proceeds to the stereopticon library and examines the slides of that particular matter that he finds best suit his purpose. He then selects the slides that he takes them with him or they are sent to him by express or mail.

For the purposes who cannot look over the catalogue in person, a catalogue is confided to his needs. He consults the catalogue at his leisure and later he derives from the stereopticon library the slides that he desires.

Specially made boxes have been provided for the slides and they are numbered last.

Besides photographs and reproductions, there are a great number of suggestive charts and diagrams to give an intensive object lesson, easily comprehended by the unscientific person. Such, for instance, is a drawing to illustrate the life cycle of the house fly, showing the source and method of infection.

READY FOR TOURNAMENT

Schedule of Players Announced for Events on Kurtz Playground and First Match is Played. Ladies' Tournament to Follow.

All arrangements have been completed for Gettysburg's summer tennis tournament, the first match of which was played off Thursday evening on the Kurtz Playground when Prof. A. R. Wentz defeated Lawrence Shends in two love sets. Prof. Wentz is a former winner at Gettysburg College and bids fair to battle all opponents for the town's championship.

The remainder of the first round will be played as follows: Reginald Musselman against Prof. George M. Rice; Richard Fross against Huber Bleicher; Maurice B. Bender against Maurice S. Weaver; Clyde Brown against Phillip B. Bliss; Thomas Jarrett against W. Lavere Hafer; Charles Butt against Robert Downes; M. K. Eckert against Raymond F. Topper; John Butt against Clinton Beard; Edwin Sloop against Dr. C. O. Criss.

All matches in the first round must be played not later than next Wednesday, the time to be determined by the contestants who must furnish balls during the matches. All matches must be played at the Playground courts and the scores reported upon their conclusion to Director Leathers. For the first round the best two of three sets will determine the victor.

The complete schedule for playing has been mapped out and the opponents in the second round will be announced immediately upon completion of the first. It is expected that the tournament in doubles will follow the present matches in singles and this will be in turn followed by events for ladies singles and doubles, and then the mixed doubles, which will complete for some weeks to come.

Three of the courts at the play ground are now in condition for use and the balance will be in a very short time.

RECEIVER APPOINTED

Mount Holly Printing Company Goes Under. Did Big Business.

As the result of proceedings instituted by stockholders and creditors, a receiver was appointed yesterday for the Mount Holly Printing and Stationery Company, which is followed by a letter attachment at Mount Holly Springs. Assets are estimated at $25,000 and liabilities at between $20,000 and $25,000.

The company was formed in 1890 as the Early Printing Company and has been under the present management the present title. The company does a business estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000 in catalogues and calendar work, the majority being for some of the largest concerns in the country.

The receivership is not unexpected, as it has been generally known that the financial condition was not good. The receiver is Mr. Carlisle, and H. A. Butcoff, Mount Holly Springs, attorney for the Mount Holly Company are the receivers appointed by the court. Attorneys representing S. B. Sadler, attorney for Charles Covert, of Harrisburg; one of the largest creditors, and Attorney C. A. Mullin, Merwin V. Thomas and others.

WILL MEET HERE

Small Patriotic Order will Hold State Convention here.

September 8 and 9 have been announced as the dates for holding the 1916 state convention of the Order of Fraternal Patriots of America, according to Secretary Lee Young. The organization is one of those which have sprung out of the old Junior Order of United American Mechanics and is of comparatively recent origin. The order has been active in boring about 200 people here.

BRYAN WILL BE HERE NEXT WEEK

Secretary of State will Give Lecture here as an Added Attraction for the Chautauqua. No Extra Charge for Season Tickets.

Hon. William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, will lecture in Gettysburg on Thursday afternoon, August 31, according to an extra number of the local course.

The announcement, which will give Gettysburg a feature that not many of the Chautauquas in this section will have, came this morning in the shape of a personal letter from Dr. Paul M. Pearson, head of the Chautauqua Association, to Prof. Charles E. Sanders, president of the local board. Mr. Bryan's duties at Washington have prevented him doing the extensive Chautauqua work which was originally planned and not many will have the opportunity of hearing his services.

The subject of Mr Bryan's Gettysburg lecture has not been announced. It will not supplant any of the lectures on the course but will be an entirely additional attraction, being held at the close of the morning and the balance of the program being carried out as announced. Course tickets will admit patrons of the Chautauqua to this lecture. The single admission price will be fifty cents.

When the preliminary Chautauqua plans were announced it was stated that Mr. Bryan might come. Later it was given out that Washington and other lecturer was put in to fill the period. Now Gettysburg gets both.

The Chautauqua opens officially next Wednesday afternoon. The preliminary program will be given by the troupes will be held Wednesday morning when the Chautauqua will give the first period of instruction.

SIXTH VICTORY

Millersburg played good ball on Thursday afternoon but Gettysburg got fast enough to win from the locals and Gettysburg registered another victory, the score being the score of 5 to 3. FOND SOES NO BUSINESS DEPRESSION

Ps, chological or Otherwise, He Tells President.

Washington, July 18. — Optimistic views of business conditions were presented to President Wilson by Henry P. Davison, of Duluth, in the latter's conference at the White House Mr. Farr said the president is now no evidences of any sort of business depression, "psychological" or otherwise, and said that in his opinion business was getting better all the time.

"There is absolutely nothing wrong with business," he said. "The only trouble is that some people seem pessimistic, if everyone would only cheer up and attend to their business the calamity talk would stop immediate ly."

The president and Mr. Ford discussed the trip of the latter to Europe as well as the business situation.

Other callers at the president said they were greatly encouraged by his talk with Mr. Farr and that he had found further strengthened in his determination to adhere to present program and in the present session of congress

DEFIANT IN BANK BOARD FIGHT

BATTLE ON OVER WARBURG

President's Friends Will Carry Fight to Floor of Senate and Bitter Struggle is Expected.

Washington, July 18.—By a vote of 7 to 4 the senate committee on banking and currency decided to report unfavorably the nomination of Thomas D. Jones, of Chicago, as a member of the federal reserve board.

Senators Pomerene, Hollis, Fletcher and Lee, of Maryland, voted to report Jones' nomination favorably. Senator Shields and Reed joined with the five Republicans of the committee in opposing confirmation. Senator Owen, Democrat, too chairman of the committee.

The committee agreed to postpone indefinitely action on the nomination of Paul M. Warburg to be a member of the board, pending Wednesday's decision concerning his appearance before the committee.

This action follows the announcement from Paul White House that Mr. Warburg had consented to recede from his request that the president withdraw his name

The committee's vote is taken as an indication that it will oppose bitterly the effort of the president to have Warburg and Jones confirmed. It is the opening gun in what promises to be a most bitter legislative battle on the floor of the senate.

Mr. Warburg consented to allow the committee to inquire only on the condition that he would not be asked to appear before the senate banking and currency committee. He "stands pat" on the statement which he sent to ear ariiing by that body, to staunch on which statement he declared were confirmed without being examined by the committee.

After receipt of a telefram from Mr. Warburg it was said by members of the committee that no action on the fight would be made for the present. It was also learned that should the committee fail to report to the senate, the president would on reports the senate, as a whole, to act.

Mr. Warburg's decision was not given out, but after its receipt officials at the White House said that the president that only a few Democratic votes against the confirmation.

Speaking of his insistence that Mr. Warburg be confirmed, the president said that he was not actuated by any favor of the appointment and that he had no personal interest in the nominee. The president explained his support of Mr. Warburg by saying that he had known him for more than twenty years, and that he believed him to be trusted Mr Jones' judgment that he was the best man for the place, but not include political questions in the selection.

VILLA LEAVES FIRING LINE

Won't Move Against Mexico City Until Winter.

REBELS AGAINST PARLEYS

Carranza Generals Are Strongly Opposed to Negotiating With Hueris Peace Envoys.

El Paso, Texas, July 18.—General Villa's army may make an offensive movement for several months against Mexico City.

General Carranza's generals are said to be strongly opposed to any negotiations with the Huerta peace envoys in an effort to reach a settlement of the revolution.

These two developments rise above all else in the Mexican situation, following the settlement, on the surface at least, of the bitter dispute between Villa and Gutierrez, the "first chief" of the Constitutionalists.

General Villa, it is said, has decided to wait until winter before moving his forces against the federal garrison against Mexico City. Meanwhile he will devote his efforts to preparing the territory he already has conquered for a winter campaign against the Huerta capital is up to General Carranza in the east and General Gonzales.

The absence of General Villa from the field may be felt keenly and later may influence federal generals to change their attitude toward the proposal for a peace parley with the Huerta representatives.

Further lack of independent Villa opposition in northern Mexico was aroused by the announcement that Villa had thrown south from Torreon and Zacatecas with a strong advance guard and his supreme anyway.

Food and forage are scarce in the territory between and since Villa's purchasing agents have practically monopolized the supplies been a problem which it has undertaken to solve before it can move its forces officers declare that Villa's men were suffering and that when they left Torreon they were to be fed there to the highest advantage to the Villa commissariat. If they were held in their present locations for months to come it is feared that they will soon be dying by the thousands.

Huerta Willing to Quit.

Mexico City, Mex., July 18.—Formal announcement was made today that President Huerta's willingness to retire was made by him to Rear Admiral Mayo by Senora Rula, acting minister of foreign affairs. The latter made the presentation of the protocols signed at Niagara Falls by the mediating ambassadors, virtually stating the dispute between the United States and Huerta's government. The report solemnly declared that the latter's decision was acts on the revolutionists.

Funston Meets Mexican.

Fort Bliss, Texas, July 18.—General Funston made a trip to the gap in the railroad, where he met General Gonzales, Carranza commander. The purpose of the Mexican's visit could not be learned. The general checked Colonel Tamaso for several recent encounters between the troops, such as the return of two marines who had wandered into Mexico.

IDEAL WIFE DESCRIBED BY A HUNDRED YOUNG MEN.

Beauty of Character and Domestic Virtues Demanded by All.

The qualities a young woman should possess to be an "ideal wife" have been named by a large number of young men of Cleveland, O., as the result of the soliciting of the "ideal husband" by the Women's Auxiliary of the First Baptist church. The pastor, the Rev. W. E. Harper, first preached a sermon on the "ideal husband" from the standpoint of the young woman.

To secure his data he distributed lists of questions to over a hundred Putnam girls, and from these answers a most interesting sermon was delivered.

There came a demand for another sermon in which the young men would have an opportunity to express the qualifications which they considered the "ideal wife" should possess.

Accordingly questions were distributed among about a hundred young men. Practically all responded.

The young men say that the "good young woman" must be healthy and strong, but not robust. She is not to be dumbbell as to exhibit excessive muscularity and brawniness, neither is she to be delicate and frail.

She must be good looking, preferably though blonde and those of medium complexion are not without attraction.

The athletic young woman is preferred only in so far as her interest in athletics indicates good health and ability to keep her self well informed.

All want to know her dress-sense in the home and the treatment of her home folks; one fifty of her helpful to her mother and her attitude toward her brother. Circumstances with her father and brother seem to suggest to her favour.

The following characteristics are mentioned as indispensable: A sunny, joyful, self-reliant disposition; intelligence, vivacity, practicability, straightforwardness and honesty; tendency to dress and manners and will power enough to stand by a right decision.

Nearly all insist that she have practical domestic training, while a social and a business education are declared to be desirable.

QUAINT OLD RELICS

Ancient Windmills Make Cape Cod Resemble Holland.

Odd Structures Nearly All Gone But Those That Remain Are Highly Prized as Curiosities and Adorn Many Homes.

Boston.—A half century ago the windmills of Cape Cod were as quaint and famous as those in Holland. They were used extensively in the salt manufacturing industry of that section, which was the "right arm of Massachusetts" and the many grooves of manufacture was discovered, and the salt was imported at such a low cost that the industry was practically protected out of business. The windmills were used to pump water in the principal salt grain, and in not a few cases the windmills have been transformed to erode pumps to feed cranberry bogs.

In due course of time, however, practically all of these old mills were torn down, moved away as relics or to be used for other purposes. Those that remain today are greatly prized as curiosities, and adorn the handsome estates owned by summer visitors from all parts of the country. The towns which still have their windmills have taken special precautions with rich land-owners, and offer their mills to them in such a way that the way, are constantly changing hands, and it is said that more than they are sold they bring a higher sum than those which have not changed hands time and again within their borders. Among the windmills of the village.

The Cape Cod windmills, like those of Holland, are awkward, bulky structures, and are usually built on about 25 feet in height; some are however, much higher. They are not exactly round. So far as is known, none were made square, though they would have been too great surface exposed to the wind.

The oldest mill of all is located at Orleans, Mass., a small hamlet on the south side of Cape Cod, midway between the "tip end of the Cape" and Dunnard's bay. This is covered with a thick growth of ivy and is a mass of green foliage. It is not known exactly when this mill was built. It is supposed, however, that it was erected in the latter part of the Seventeenth century. It was one of the windmills that one of the Cape's fishermen made it as the 1658 a pump water into his salt vats. It is known to have a wrought iron shaft. This is a great many salt works in the Barnstable villages of North and East Dennis.

The salt works which were doing business on the shores of Cape Cod ago, each covered many acres of ground. The salt vats were near to the ocean, where sea water was obtainable. From these the brine was pumped up into troughs, whence it ran into "horses" or wooden pipes to the evaporators. Not more than four or five inches of water was allowed in a vat. The sun evaporated the water, leaving the salt on the bottom, which was afterward carefully scraped off and put in heaps to drain. This was a very slow and expensive process. About this time a new method came into use by which the salt was made much more quickly and cheaply, and the old way was stopped into this country from Portugal, where the sun is of so much better use.

A few of the mills from the salt-making plants were transferred to cranberry bogs, where the owners and cultivators used them to run their sanding machines, to elevate the cranberry insects, moisten the earth in dry weather and to pump water into the "pumps" of those years were the only machines. They worked on the principle of a grain elevator; that is, a continuous chain running over a pulley revolving at several hundred feet per second. Instead of the chains were fastened "cups" formed from narrow strips of board. The pumps drew very little water, and were not able to keep up with buckets. The mill was constructed of about 40 feet square of numerous cog wheels of various sizes.

Fishes That Emit Sounds.

There is no doubt in the fishes that emits sounds resembling the whirring of a drag-toned bell, gong or pedal pipe of an organ. Herrings when the net has been drawn around them, have been observed to do the same, and similar sonorous are given of the river bullhead. An amphibious fish, found on brine taken into the hand, is said to shriek, and certain of the blennies emit similar sounds.—Pluie.

Turning telephone possibilities into power

When the United States was but a narrow strip of settlements hugging the Atlantic seaboard, who dreamed of the great country—who could have foreseen the American Nation of to-day?

When Bell produced the telephone, it could transmit the human voice over a wire; but that wasn't telephone SERVICE. There was no intricate network of wires, no switchboards in central offices, and who ever dreamed of talking to and from the Pacific Coast?

But capacity for development lay in the Bell Telephone. Keen intellects were summoned to create the great system which to-day provides SERVICE—Bell service, the synonym for the most efficient telephone communication in 70,000 cities and towns in the Union.

Your Bell Telephone, added to the 8,000,000 telephone reach of the Bell System, offers you the most efficient telephone service in the world.

How Grigsby Was Influenced to Win the Game

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

It was toward the end of August and near home of the Atlantic Athletic club and done upended such at win his baseball games, picking up an excellent position in the one of the teams in play for the championship at the end of the season, and the fans in Seaville this had but as good a record and we stand best if we are viewed out of the line of competition.

We know what everything knew—that under ordinary circumstances we could win from the Hopewell club by at least one pointer, Jim Grigsby, though the best in our part of the country, was unreliable. There were times when he would make losses which only a marvelous imagination could fill, while at other times his pitching was decidedly poor.

Bob Twining, our captain, made a study of Grigsby to find out why he could not twist as well at one time as another and discovered that he needed a stimulus. He also discovered that the excitement of the game could not be relied upon to make Grigsby do his best work. This provided the cap for Twining must hit on some expedient at once. His sister, Josephine, was one of those girls who seem to be able to draw men as a moment will move metal. Everything told her that she would have to concentrate her fire if she expected to get a hit, and so she resolved before the decisive game on Grigsby.

Jack, as she was customarily called—we all like those preceding the initials of our league files, when Twin is not necessary—objected to Jack now shifted her brother and wouldn't marry without his consent. She promised him to do what she could to influence Grigsby to win the championship, and when Twining would consent by his choice and back her up with their parents, who were of the same opinion as the brother. Twining finally decided to entrust herself to her opposition provided the game was won, and she took Grigsby in training.

"Jack," said Twining a week after this agreement, "let us on Grigsby You are counting too much of his head that I can't see him out for practice."

"I thought you relied on me to make him win."

"So I do."

"Very well. Never mind his losing practice. How bad practice you have to make him win?"

"Not much, I suppose. If the team needs a pitcher for practice eat some one in the place and tell him to imagine that the game came off."

Twining grunted, but thought it best not to interfere with his sister's plans. He did not see how she could do what means she was taking to make Grigsby win the game, but he believed that she would if she could and did so more sensibly than he would have exercise to go galivanting with Jack.

Of course Jack Twining was not the only two in the secret, with whom we of the defense is taken by the whole broadcast, and the captain was at his wits' end to keep his team at its best work without its pitcher, especially since his absence from the field was a discouraging feature. By the time the game came off Twining was ready to go with the situation, having forced his team to keep its secret, and trusting to the management.

Jack would give her brother no information as to what was passing between her and Grigsby. She simply told her if she wished a seat on the stand whenever the game could not possibly, and she said she wished for two seats, not caring to say why. It is understood this, but gave her a glance a few rows back from the front.

The weather was favorable, and there were a good many fans present in the game, a large audience was in attendance. We may say as has been mentioned know nothing about the bargain that had been made, but we have had supposed that Jack would do the same as for a girl friend and not make an new idiot sitting beside her was indeed. But Jack knew about what she was playing and her brother did not.

There was the usual cheering and the home team took the field, and the starting for each team was read and lineup-cards were filled out. However, Grigsby looked about for Jack, but when he saw her he could not tell what he could be with her brother. He was the field that had been left to the deserted.

When Bob Twining and his sister were alone at home he took her by his arms, kissed her and said: "Jack, you're a mighty nervy flirt with his full consent and that he would throw all his influence with the old folks for the same cause.

"But how did you manage it with Grigsby?" he asked.

"I promised to marry him if he won the game."

TO FIT MILLIONS FOR THEIR WORK

State Grants Are Urged For Vocational Education.

$1,500,000 TO BE EQUIPPED

Commission on National Aid Asks That Start and Would Increase Amount to $7,000,000 a Year—Three Years in Schools Required For the More Common Occupations.

According to the report of the commission on national aid for vocational education, appointed by the president, "out of, who is Senator Hoke Smith was chairman, of more than 20,000,000 persons in agriculture and industry twenty-four and a half years have had adequate preparation for their jobs. Millions of persons between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years," the report continues, "are and in school, having left the elementary schools for the broad careers. About half of these are studying industrial arts courses, but the large majority of whom will school their ordinary life work with education and are unadequipped by lack of schooling either for successful wage earning or for intelligent citizenship.

"Our system of education is far from fitting the nation, vocational training should be reorganized and developed on natural resources, to prevent waste of human energy, to provide a satisfactory for the old apprenticeship, to increase wage-earning power and to meet the increasing demand for trained workers."

Initial Appropriation of $1,500,000.

To stimulate the movement for vocational education the commission recommends the distribution of national grants among the states. The first year to congress it provides for an appropriation of $1,500,000 to be used in increased yearly thereafter, according to congress, until it reaches the maximum annual appropriation of $7,000,000, to be reached in 1926. This money to be used under certain conditions for the training of each of the following subjects and for the paying of salaries of qualified teachers.

"The kind of vocational education which is best suited to the needs of the state which is designed to prepare workers for the occupations they choose and which the great mass of our people find suitable to their needs," says the foundations of a general education, the report continues.

For Three Types of Schools.

The commission finds that the needs of the states shall be met in three different types of schools, the full time day and evening schools. Of these schools the report says: "The results which may be secured from the all day industrial schools are the retention in school of pupils who would likely have become of their lack of interest, and a higher degree of efficiency, and an opportunity to test ability and to determine fitness for industry, and facility of success in a vocation because of the development of a more definite purpose in life and of an increased interest through the study of the related fundamental principles of trade. The disadvantages are the long and costly the period of apprenticeship and a lessened interest in school by pupils, time or evening instruction for the sake of future success in the trade. Illustration.

"Part time schools may provide, among other things, for trade extension day for those engaged in industry, trade preparation courses for boys and girls above the compulsory where advancement is dependent upon additional training, and for foremen, and some economic courses for those who are employed in any line of industry."

HAS A DEBT PAYING DAY.

Oklahoma Town Starts Custom of Annual Celebration of Event.

Corunon, Okla., has inaugurated a debt paying day. It is to be known as "take it back day" and to be observed each year on a date selected by the town council. Everybody in the town who has borrowed money is expected to pay his debt. Those who failed to repay it or give something in lieu of it will be subjected to jokes at their own expense and will be expected to pay the debt.

The first "take it back day" was a big success. The best of weather and good feeling was displayed. The post office was first seen that day. Everyone was invited to return things to people who had borrowed them from them. Any persons who had grudges against others were the passage of the debt paying inspired by the day to make up. Several several neighborhood feuds were ended.

CHANGE DATE OF UNION PICNIC

General Committee Postpones Town's Sunday School Picnic on Kurtz Playground on Account of Other Events the Same Day.

Taking into consideration two other large church events in this section on the same day, the committee in charge arrangements for the annual Sunday School picnic of Gettysburg met Monday evening and changed the date from Thursday, July 25, to Wednesday, July 24.

The date originally chosen was patriotically unfortunate as it was the same as that announced for the Lutheran reunion at Pen Mar and the annual celebration of the Reformed church at the Hoffman Orphanage near Two Taverns. On Thursday in the month of June would suit owing to the general church reunions at Pen Mar of the Lutheran, Reformed and Presbyterian denominations which are held on those days.

The Lutheran reunion is always one of the largest held in the mountains resort during the summer and many people from Gettysburg always attend this event. The program for this year's gathering is as soubliess as in other years and it is expected that the number attending will meet previous records. Besides the special trains been held on the twenty third, local conveyances would have had to mire either ft or the reunion.

The celebration at the Hoffman Orphanage is gaining more interest each year as the institution is growing back in size and in the scope of the work. Members of the Gettysburg Reformed church take particular interest in the orphanage on account of its location and they, too, would have been greatly inconvenienced if the Sunday School picnic dna had conflicted with the Pen Mar reunion dary.

None of the committees appointed at last week's meeting reported any special progress Monday night, but it is expected that plans of arrangements will be provided. The event will be held on the Kurtz Playground as previously announced.

MAN DISAPPEARS

Man Leaves Cottage and Fails to Return. May be Lost.

The sudden and mysterious disappearance of a man who is known as Harry E. Norton, from Evergreen Cottage, Pen Mar, several days ago is causing much consternation among the other residents of the cottage. The supposition is said to be either because lost in the mountain or else suffered an accident and foul play while roaming through the woods.

Norton came to the cottage which is operated as a boarding house by H. S. Werdebaugh, on Saturday evening ago. Since that time he has been working around the resort at odd jobs until one day last week he left the cottage without his hat. That the last seen of him. Hats and other belongings are still at the cottage.

RINEMAN—LIPPY

Wedding Celebrated in St. Vincent's Church, Midway.

In St. Vincent's Catholic church, Midway, at 6:30 Tuesday morning Miss Bertha M. Lippy was married to Francis J. Rineman, at a solemn mass, celebrated by Rev. Joseph Murphy, the rector. They were attended by Miss Helen Rineman, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, and Blenton Rineman, as best man.

After the ceremony they left for a ten days' wedding trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City, after which they will make their home with the bride's parents.

Samuel E. Hershey and daughter, Sarah Louise, of Mount Joy, have been spending some time with Mr. Hershey's father, Dr. and Mrs. Abraham Hershey, on York street.

Mrs. Agnes Bowser, of West Chester, spent Friday with her daughter at St. Joseph's Seminary, Emmitsburg.

Harry Carbaugh, of New Windsor, Maryland, has returned home after spending several days with his uncle, J. Frank Forney, of Liberty street.

LOCAL EXPRESS NEARLY SWAMPED

Gettysburg as a Transfer Point for All American Express is Rapidly Getting as Much Business as it Can Handle.

Only the addition of two more men, two more teams and the establishment of a transfer point at Gettysburg caused the local express office from being swamped with the American express service from east to west and from north to south which Gettysburg was established a week ago.

Every piece of express shipped by this company from one section of the country to another must come through Gettysburg. A parcel sent from Philadelphia to Baltimore is sent here first by the railway national and then south by Western Maryland. A parcel from Boston for San Francisco comes first to Gettysburg and then is started west by way of Pittsburgh. The volume of business has been enormous but, so far, it has all been cared for successfully.

Local Agent Souders has in his charge the handling of the local end of this business. Every twin brings truckload after truckload of packages which must be sorted out and prepared for further shipment from Gettysburg. Men are on duty at all hours day and night, and perishable goods that arrive on the seven o'clock or 11:22 are all delivered immediately.

So heavy has been the business at times that the big automobile truck of Wm. McG. Towney has been pressed into service to take the express from one station to the other. When it is realized that the express packages which arrives here at 5:40 a. m. bringing a three car from Philadelphia for Philadelphia that is taken out by the Reading at 9:55 a. m. in the morning, and the 9:05 mail from Philadelphia brings a through car from Philadelphia for Cumberland that is taken out at 11:22 p. m. by the Western Maryland.

Gettysburg has become the transfer point of the American express for the entire reaches of territory which will do much to bring the place business prominence of a kind it has never had in the past. It is expected that a building of considerable size will be secured in the near future to handle the fast increasing business.

HURT BY FIREWORKS

Looked into Spattering Fiery Fountain, Badly Burned.

Clarence Yeager, 15 years old, of McSherrystown, had his right eye burned by a shot fired by fireworks. He was riding his bicycle slowly when a home upon a "fountain", which had been set-off. Stopping, boy-like, he leaned directly over the spattering shot, when it shot forth a stream of fire, which struck him in the face. But his face scorched, the right eye badly burned and considerable powder burned on the side of his face. He was taken to a physician who rendered the necessary medical attention.

TRAGEDIES IN LIFE OF AGED EMPEROR

Killing of Nephew His Fourth Great Sorrow.

HIS WIFE ASSASSINATED.

Stabbed by an Anarchist Following Tragic Death of Her Only Son, the Archduke Rudolph—Monarch's Brother Maximilian Executed in Mexico, Which Causes Him Much Grief.

The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his wife is the fourth great tragedy in the life of Emperor Francis Joseph, now in his eighty-fourth year. The emperor has seen the eldest of his three younger brothers, the Archduke Ferdinand, the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, executed; his only son, the Archduke Rudolph, die under mysterious and weighty circumstances, either murdered or a suicide, his wife, the beloved Empress Elizabeth, assassinated, and now his second heir and the latter's wife assassinated.

The attempt of the Archduke Ferdinand Maximilian of Mexico to establish himself as emperor of that turbulent country was made against the advice of his older brother, Francis Joseph.

The civil war in Mexico just prior to our own civil war had resulted, as the power of revolution has resulted, in heavy losses to foreigners. The United States considered intervention, and a joint intervention by Great Britain, France, Spain and Prussia also was considered. Napoleon III. finally took up the cause of a new Mexican war, with the assistance of Spain and Great Britain. France occupied Vera Cruz and finally entered Mexico City on June 7, 1863. A provisional government was formed, and the crown of empire was offered to the Archduke Ferdinand of Austria.

Beset by Difficulties.

He as likewise consented and landed in Mexico as Emperor Maximilian on May 28, 1864, after renouncing all rights to the Austrian succession. His immediate reign was beset by a multitude of difficulties. As a foreigner he was disliked, and the Mexican troops were unpopular. The Mexicans thought he was too conservative, and the Clericals, who had done much to set him up as emperor, considered him too liberal. His rule was heavily more than censured for the acts that it tested.

Napoleon III. stood him in abeyance, but the emperor refused to desert those his followers. He withdrew from the capital to Queretaro in February, 1867, and after a four siege attempted to escape through the enemy's lines. He was arrested, condemned to death by court martial, and sentence was executed on June 19, 1867. His body was taken to Vienna for burial.

The tragedy of Meyerling, through which the Archduke Rudolph met his death, has been kept as much of a mystery as possible by imperial sharpness. Some historians have accepted it as an established fact that Rudolph committed suicide that night to his hunting lodge, although admitting that the Baroness Marie Vetsera met her death at the hunting lodge on the same time.

From statements made at various times by persons close to the facts it appears to have been at least partially established that the murderess died of a great wound in the head made necessary by some heavy instrument.

No one was ever punished for the death of the archduke or of the young woman, the imperial government preferring to let the murderer go rather than to give publicity to the events of the night. Conflicting stories have been told and denied.

Noted for Her Beauty.

The Empress Elizabeth at the time of her marriage to the young Prussian Joseph is reported to be one of the most beautiful princess in Europe. The marriage took place on April 24, 1854. In the first years of her married life she found the best counsel to Him some prejudice, particularly to her love for horsemanship. Her popularity with the Hungarians, however, would never extend in her later years. Austria too changed its attitude toward her.

She had not received from the hands of the pope of her only son, the Archduke Rudolph, when in 1857 her daughter, Sophie, died of diarrhea, roseola and scarlet fever. In 1867 her son Leopold, Archduke of Alsace, was killed in the Paris charity bazaar fire. On Sept. 10, 1898, while walking from her hotel to a steamer at Geneva she was stabbed in the thorax mortally and died within a few hours.

Mrs. Alexander Caminetti, wife of the commissioner general of immigration and one of the most active women in Democratic politics, may become a candidate for the nomination for lieutenant governor in California.

Several members of the party have been urging her into the race and Mrs. Caminetti admits that she is giving considerable thought to the proposal. She said she would not "put out the lie-rounds to be outdone by the Republicans," but that she would be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

MANY MISHAPS IN TOWN AND COUNTY

Little Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stouffer Sustains Broken Arm. Automobile Runs into Large Rock. County People Hurt.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Stouffer, of Water street, were all hurt Wednesday afternoon when they fell from a horse which they were riding near their home. Mary, one of the twin daughters, sustained a slight fracture of the arm near the wrist. The other twin and the little boy received only bruises.

While on a return trip home from Hanover on Tuesday evening, Arthur Taughinbaugh, of York street, accompanied by three companions, drove into a large rock which some unknown person had rolled onto the public road about midway between New Oxford and Hanover. The Taughinbaugh automobile was so badly damaged that it was unable to proceed further. The machine was left on the road until morning when necessary repairs were made. Mr. Taughinbaugh spent the night in New Oxford, and the others returned to Hanover.

William D. Gilbert, of Gettysburg, had the misfortune of his right hand painfully hurt on Wednesday when it caught in the machinery at his local foundry.

On Tuesday while Peter Bollinger was working in the Bittinger stone quarry, a large stone rolled on his left hand, crushing one of the fingers.

A young child of Samuel Kline living along the Harrisburg road several miles from town, lost the first finger of its right hand on Tuesday by playing about a binder the father was fixing. The little tot got its hand in front of one of the knives just as it was moved.

Spangler Hetrick, residing of a small farm near New Oxford, met with an accident this week that has caused him much pain. He was on his feeding hay at his barn and, stopping to rest a few minutes, was leaning against the lower ladder of the hay carriages, when his weight caused the ladder to give way, and he fell backwards, foremost to the floor, striking the plank. He sustained a severe cut and bruise in the lower parts of the back of the face, and a slight wound on the forehead. A local physician gave the necessary attention.

Mrs. Rower, wife of L. J. Rower, residing near this city, met with with a serious accident on Saturday evening. Mrs. Rower, who is well advanced in years, was engaged in gathering raspberries near her home, when she tripped and fell over a large stone, breaking both bones of her left leg near the ankle.

POLICE NEWS

George Gentile, of Waterbury, Connecticut, was taken before Squire Harnish by Chief Emmons Wednesday night on a charge of drunkenness in the Square. It rest the visitor $14.75.

TELL OF DEFEAT

Hanover Papers Show Good Spirit Over Defeat.

The Hanover papers took the defeat of their team at Gettysburg in unsportsmanlike fashion, making no excuse and giving Rohrbaugh due credit for his pitching. The Independent says:

The Champs (?) journeyed to Gettysburg and were defeated by the score of the great battle, the number killed and wounded on both sides. We are glad of how base ball should be played. We were defeated by a better team, a better man is employed, as coach, to teach the boys the fine art of "hitting them out" and "over your noodle", when occasion arises. The boys from Adams county certainly showed spitting yesterday and at the same time "showed us up", getting our number by a 1 to 0 score.

The Independent then devotes much space in a demand for regular practice, something which is largely responsible for Gettysburg's success. The Record Herald among its "Pickups" says:

"Pre Plank has developed some team for Gettysburg."

"The umpire after the game went to Hotel Gettysburg and apologized to Manager Rohrbaugh for calling Schardel out in the ninth—it being a foul strike!"

FORM UNIQUE ORGANIZATION

Young Boys who Helped Veterans hara Last July to Form Organization, Scouts Back of Movement to Start Society.

The memory of the great battle answered by at Gettysburg last July is to be perpetuated by a new and unique organization which has had its inception at Frederick. It is to be known as the "Boy Scouts Gettysburg Service Corps," and is to have chapters at Washington, Philadelphia, Frederick, Hagerstown and Burlington, New Jersey.

The service rendered by the Boy Scouts from these cities last July was one of the matters of great satisfaction to those who had the big camp in charge. The aid with which the well drilled youngsters in khaki cared for the veterans when they arrived here and during their stay in camp, was unanimously largely for the comfort of the old soldiers and the fact that there were so few accidents on the field.

Scattered through the various cities where boys always ready and anxious to perform some little service, and they were constantly on duty both day and night. About five hundred of them were in the big camp and, of that number, almost one half were Red Cross and Clara Barton scouts. It is the one of many minor cases of best prostration.

The greatest praise was accorded the youngsters for their work here and the formation of the first chapter is heralded by reports of the following by similar action in the other cities. The boys are now organizing which in after years may look back upon July 1913 as one of the greatest epochs in the lives of them.

WON FROM HANOVER

First class base ball was afforded the large crowd that journeyed to the Athletic Field Park Hanover for the first of the games between Hanover and Gettysburg. They were the victorious by the score of 1 to 0 in a game featured by fine all-round work on the part of Rohrbaugh who pitched for Gettysburg and allowed but two hits, both singles, in the box for Hanover, who gave the local batters a puzzling delivery. Orich's hit in the fast long fly in deep center in the eighth, when a man was on second, was the only time the local could while Brown in left field and Starry at second made Rohrbaugh's hitting tally was made in the fourth when Orich was advanced from second to third when Plank's bunt was badly handled, Plank taking second. Brown scored on Jack Starry's long fly, being caught at the plate in an attempt to score. The return game will be played at Hanover on Saturday.

HOUSE DESTROYED

The picking of berries, it is reported, cost William Dutra, of Brushton, near Huntsville, his home and household goods. Dutra went a-berry picking and forgot to close the drafts on the stove, which became red hot and set fire to the house. It was burned to the ground with all of its contents. It was a frame structure a story and a half high. A house nearby was also destroyed and that Dutra's loss will be about $200.

Launching a movement to purchase a tract of 20,000 acres of the finest virgin redwood timber, opened to axle by the completion of the transcontinental motor tour, Gifford Pinchot, ex-chief of the United States forest service; Congressman Kent of California and Charles Wilkins, both prominent timber owners, have each contributed $25,000 to a popular subscription fund.

The purpose of the movement, as set forth by U. L. Greyson in "Recreation and Outdoor World," really goes much deeper than this. It is the conviction most that this tract of timber is to be purchased and turned over to the national government to be maintained as a national forest real training school for foresters. It formally amounts to an organized attempt to save the remnant of redwood, the oldest and most remarkable growth of merchantable timber on the earth. From these specimens from the tree of the north, as it grows now, to the oldest known, some may, if the present rate of cutting continues

Good Educator's Advice.

Children should not leave school without knowing what good books are, and without having their imagination, which is the great power with children at a certain age, so awakened and directed as to develop at least some degree of interest and culture broader than the education that is limited to their business expectations, and tending to govern conduct on general principles rather than on impulse.—G. CARTER MAY FACE TERM IN THE PEN

After Serving Half of a Three Year Sentence Ollie Carter is again Arrested in Gettysburg. Hattie Tansill is Blame.

Facing imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for the last half of a three years' term, Ollie Carter was on Thursday arrested by Chief of Police Emmons and placed in the county jail to await further disposition of his case. The direct cause of the arrest was a statutory charge resulting from a grand made Wednesday by Sheriff Thompson and Chief Emmons on the home of Hattie Tansill, where Carter was arrested at that time.

The return of the Tansill woman to Gettysburg has been the cause of all the recent trouble in the Third Ward, it is said. Since last August that vicinity has been as peaceful and orderly as any other part of town. Several days ago Hattie came back, thus violating her banishment of several months ago when she was virtually banished from Gettysburg.

Family altercations followed her return and the most recent arrest of Theodore Jacobs was the outcome of an argument between Mrs. Clyde Easley and Hattie Tansill, Saturday taking the part of his sister, Mrs. Easley, only to face a charge of assault and battery. Hattie was finally landed behind the bars

On Thursday Chief Emmons got word that Ollie's friends were planning the departure and, hurriedly entering an automobile, he made a quick trip to Spring Grove, found the negro at work there, landed him into the machine and hurried him to jail.

Carter's last taste of Gettysburg imprisonment, as the result of this morning's arrest, was obtained in a like manner. On April 26, 1912 he was sentenced to a term of not less than eighteen months or three years in the Eastern Penitentiary for the theft of two valises of clothing from Hotel Gettysburg. He was released on parole late last June, having served half the sentence. Should local authorities notify the prison board at Philadelphia, they will secure Carter and take him back to serve the remaining eighteen months.

It has not yet been definitely decided of what course will be pursued, but it will be held awaiting further developments.

POOR DIRECTORS WIN THEIR CASE

Will not Have to Pay Mr. Lupp. of Biglerville, almost One Hundred Dollars for Pasteur Treatment Given his Daughter.

The board of poor directors of Adams County have won a decision in the Supreme Court of the State in the case brought by R. H. Lupp, of Biglerville, to recover $92.50 for Pasteur treatment given to a daughter several years ago.

On November 28, 1912 the young lady was bitten by a rat which was found to be suffering from rabies. In order to save the young woman Mr. Lupp took her to the institution at Montreal where she underwent the usual course of treatment. Before the result, however, he failed to make application to the poor directors to bear the necessary financial outlay and it was not until the doctor's bill the board is now relieved from the liability that the suit was filed.

They contended that application made some months after the operation did not compel payment, which reasoned for Mr. Lupp, claimed that the Act of 1907 provided that the money in such expense notwithstanding the lapse of time. DAIRY and CREAMERY

MILK IN HOT WEATHER.

Present Methods of Shipping Should Be Changed.

[Prepared by Harry Bowden, Dairy and Creamery Department of Agriculture.]

With the advent of warm weather dairymen seem to be worried on hand their milk before shipping it to market. A practice prevalent in some places is to take the morning milk, combine it with the afternoon milk of the next day and ship this combination early the following morning. This means that the morning milk is kept through the heat of the day. When it reaches the consumer, twenty-four hours or more old, the bacteriological count is high. The dairy and food department experts say, why milk from dairies in which all the conditions appear to be excellent is frequently found to be bacteriologically bad.

The Brown Swiss breed of dairy cattle is known for its docility, as well as for its ability to produce milk rich in fat content. Certain selected individuals of the Brown Swiss breed are noted for their large milk production, and they are efficient in converting roughage into actually intermediate products.

The remedy recommended by the department is to send the afternoon milk, properly cooled, through the cooler, warm all the morning milk and ship the morning milk, now properly cooled, without mixing with it. It is of course essential to this plan that the dairyman be equipped to do it, but it is for them to see the importance of it and to realize that to meet this difficulty will be necessary such provisions as cooling and insulating would undertake reduce the possibility of sour milk reaching the market.

Shippers are also urged by the department to see that the milk is thoroughly cooled as an important step in keeping its bacteriological count low.

SKIMMING THE CREAM.

The Most Separators Here Economically Run Ever Installed.

Purdue university, Indiana, carried out a systematic series of experiments in order to discover the best possible way of handling cream, not in any one spot, but at dairies scattered all over the United States. All deep and shallow pan sets of setting methods were ruled out, some modern efficient kinds of separators. The summary follows:

The use of the best separator in the place of the greatly systems of creaming will effect a saving of $2.50 to $7 worth of butter fat from one cow in one year.

With the best separator a richer cream and a better quality of cream with minimum can be produced than with any other method.

Twenty per cent. of the deep can test the setting system, the best separator does it. It produces a more complete separation and a better quality of cream than either the shallow pan or the water dilution system.

Any neglect to clean the separator thoroughly after each separation or to observe the most efficiency of the machine and lowers the quality of the cream and increases the loss. Wash the cream and not the separator.

A trembling machine, insufficient speed, sour, curdled, slimy or gassy cream and overloading the separator caused a loss of one fat in the cream. A milk minimum of from eight to twenty pounds of butter per cow in one year.

Other things being equal, high speed and a small rate of inflow tend to produce a thin cream. Insufficient speed, a troubling machine and a warm rate of flow results in a thicker cream.

Getting Rid of "Star Boarders."

Nearly one of Wisconsin's dairy herds, according to an item that is going the rounds, are being officially tested this year for the purpose of detecting and eliminating from them all "boarders." Each of these progressive dairymen is a member of one of the twenty-one cow testing associations which are being promoted by the Wisconsin University. It is hoped by the University's associates, that by the end of the work done by these testers in ridding herds of boarders and adding desirable cows by the management of their herds the expenditure of the cows retained will be greatly increased.

Water For Milk Cattle.

Eight gallons of water each day is the average quantity required for a cow, and milk is made of 87 per cent. water. In some pastures there is no water obtainable. Pa cows being supplied with water only at night and in the morning, which compels them to go to drink their gallons or 4 tons in order that the may have the water they need. This is not only cruel, but detrimental to the health of the cow.

TO SNAPSHOT SUN 20,000 FEET UP

Professor Todd Will Photograph Rays During Eclipse.

TO SET ALTITUDE RECORD.

Hopes to Solve Mystery of Sun Which Has Baffled Astronomers For Ages. Aeroplane Will Carry Camera and Instruments Enable Experiments in Ballooning to Be Eased. Professor Todd Will Photograph Rays During Eclipse.

Professor David Todd of Amherst college has sailed from New York for the purpose of carrying out a unique experiment in Iba, Russia, next month. Professor Todd intends to ascend 20,000 feet in an aeroplane and make photographs of the sun's rays during an eclipse which will occur in August.

The announcement caused much interest in aviation circles, inasmuch as in order to carry out his plan Professor Todd will have to set a new altitude record, says the New York Tribune. The present record is a little over 19,000 feet, and in making it the aeronaut will be compelled to use oxygen helmets and other methods to prevent being overcome by the changes in pressure incidental to the high altitude.

Professor Todd has tried considerable experimenting in ballooning, and is an expert photographer. If he succeeds in floating on aviator and a machine equipped with him to the great height mentioned there will be a remarkable test of his ballooning up a new mark for aeronautics. Professor Todd expects to solve the mystery of the sun's rays by the use of specified instruments for his plan. Before he sailed he said:

"I have been considering for some time the selection of the instruments which will occur on Aug. 29 and 21 and will be visible in Russia, Iba and Siberia. The first reason is because unfavorable weather conditions prevail in Russia at least trip and interferes preparations will be made. The second reason is the early day of these fixtures in an exceptional degree of the ingredients. The second will dare to carry me.

"The second reason is because of the fact that the photosphere is the source of the corona that is contained in the sun's atmosphere, which is invisible from the earth. From the ground it is impossible to photograph the corona or photographic plate with any absolute accuracy, and consequently the reproduction seems much toward satisfying the demands of the investigator.

"Twenty thousand feet above the earth the sun's atmosphere will be materially reduced, and I expect to obtain from this the records of the corona that are ever been taken.

"This is a unique expedition that I have ever taken. My wife, my daughter Millicent and I are the only members of my family will form the party. My wife and daughter will be there to select a site for the observation and act as suitable lighter for starting and leading of the aeroplane. The aeroplane will be equipped with six most gyroscopic stabilizers. The instruments for my party and instruments and adjusting the services of Wilbur and Orville Wright.

To Engage French Air Man.

"I have engaged a French pilot in Paris and engage an assistant and mechanic. I do not anticipate any difficulty in engaging one for I feel that the spirit of adventure will appeal particularly to the inherent love for scientific advancement that seems to be a part of every Gaul.

"Now, don't you think that the eclipse is due to occur at approximately 10 o'clock in the morning in Russia? It should be about 7:30 o'clock in the morning in Iba, and I feel that I will need two minutes and fourteen seconds. By the calculations that I have made I will ascend to the minutest detail."

Professor Todd's brother, Professor Todd's photographs may solve in the astronomical expressions of parts of pale faint, some straight and some in the shape of the globes of spherocyte of reported mistake astronomers in the past. Many of the rays of the sun by comparatively cold gases or vapors in the atmosphere of the earth or whether the light comes from incandescent material in the sun.

HIS WEAPON

By OSCAR COX

Dr Leonard Arnesby, having taken his medical diploma at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, rescinded that he would set up his mill and wait by next to practice. Since he was a professional sort he was not expected to wear a morning suit and lavender trousers. Nevertheless his very gen tlemanly cut of country made clothes and derby hat were sufficient to mark him as a gentleman. As a doctor, being well up in the advance discoveries of his line, performed what was considered by the inhabitants of a rough region some remarkable cures. For instance, being called in to see a sick child he told its parents it had diphtheria. The child had not one cold been suffering from disease and at once gave up hope. But the doctor injected an antitoxin under the child's skin, and a questionnaire that was floating in its throat could by no means break away and disappear. The child recovered, and from that time the doctor's medical reputation spread like wildfire, and he was kept serving patients grave cures by a correspondence trade large size.

There is generally some one in a community meaner than all the rest, and in this case Tim Sykes held the championship. The fact that Arnesby was settled in the village was a personal business was distressing to Sykes, for he had been the slightest grievance him and was a dead shot. Accordingly one day when he was out with a gun he greeted a woman with the remark that he was going to kill the doctor. The doctor told the woman that the noise was nothing, but that he would warn him. Jim whipped out a revolver with which he had been practicing, and immediately have added the doctor's career then and there. Jim was a man of his word, and he had the gun and discharged it at the doctor's house. Jim Sykes felt assured that when he had discharged the last cartridge in the revolver there was a fair prospect that the doctor for the present would be unable to do him to stamp out the pests there is danger that much loss will result. The doctor, therefore, was determined to get the vegetable kingdom. He is not sure that he will be successful, however, still, grass as quickly as oats or wheat, and he has hopes of growing fine fields of beans, tomatoes, potato stalks, beans, peas, on last all products of the field, and he will be able to supply them abroad.

The following method of destroying the worm is given by the Department of Agriculture:

"Use bad heat, use the poison bran bait, made by the following formula: Mix thoroughly 25 pounds of bran with wheat bran and the juices of one half bushel of apples.

"Bring this to a stiff dough by the use of a little molasses and water and scatter about where the worms are at work when they will feed upon it and be killed by the poison.

"If you wish to stop a migration of the worms from one field to the method is to plow a deep furrow, throwing the dirt from the furrow worm or in the direction toward which they are traveling. They fall into the furrow and are unable to find way out in the opposite direction and are buried by the dirt thrown in. This will make post holes at intervals of probably about 10 feet and they will drop to the bottom whether the can easily be destroyed."

FARMER HURT

Horse's Kick Results in Severe Internal Injuries.

Receiving the kick of a young horse, Jacob Murren was severely injured on his farm near Bloomsburg on Saturday. The blow struck his abdomen, causing a very internal hemorrhage which required immediate surgical attention. Dr. Bennett, of Orangeville, was called, and, with the aid of a local physician, performed an operation. Mr. Murren is recovering slowly.

SUPPORT DOCTOR

The great majority of York physicians have positively refused to sign the petition for the removal of Dr. J. H. Bennett as registrar of vital statistics of the county. It is likely that the petition which has been circulated by Dr. Bennett's opponents will be presented to the state health department. The grievance over which the petition was started was on account of the fact that Dr. Bennett declined to issue certificates of death to make out certificates of all births or deaths. Dr. Bennett's health has his found it necessary to return many certificates on account of the fact that they were not properly prepared.

ARMY WORM IS AT WORK HERE

Cucumbers, Cantaloupes and Potatoes in Gardens and Fields of Adams County Farmers Hurt by Past of Half Century ago.

From various parts of Adams county farmers' reports of a new pest, which is said to be doing actual damage, have been made. It is believed now that the fear of the farmer is the army worm, which made its first appearance since 1903. It was noticed in some are York last week where a specimen was captured and sent to the department of Agriculture as well as to the authorities at a rough region some remarkable cures. For instance, being called in to see a sick child he told its parents it had diphtheria. The child had not one cold been suffering from disease and at once gave up hope. TRIM HANOVER IN FAST GAME

With every nine on the team going at the best one sensational play, Gettysburg's own baseball team has now triumphed for the second time this season over Hanover Saturday afternoon by the score of 5 to 4. The game was replete with startling situations from start to finish and was played until a sensational play from the fans which crowded grandstand and car bar, encircled the field. Fully one thousand people watched the exhibition and of that number about two score from Gettysburg, forty two motorists trailing their way eastward while the trains carried many more.

A place dozen Gettysburg's fine players on the team who did not come to the game at a time when such help was needed. Let us start at home plate. Danner Shelly was the star who caught. Shelly is home after he had come all the way from Richmond, Va., where he had been employed. He was welcomed back to Gettysburg, forty two motorists trailing their way eastward while the trains carried many more.

Lawrence's umpiring was beyond reproach and the treatment accorded him by players and fans was decent, during and after the game was of the highest quality. The next game of base ball between the two towns the remainder of the season will be played on the Gettysburg Fair Grounds on Thanksgiving Day. Thanksgiving day will not be called until 3 p. m. as the crowd is expected to accompany the team.

SUNDAY VISITORS

Many Automobile Parties Visited Gettysburg and the Field.

Battlefield guides who cater to the automobile trade report a profitable year of it on Sunday, scores of visiting machines being in town. Among those who motored here were General Powell and a party of friends who stopped at the Gettysburg Hotel; John, a prominent Grand Army man, of Philadelphia, who, with Mrs. John Plank and Captain James Wills and Mrs. Wills, of Harrisburg.

THREE HURT IN SUNDAY MISHAPS

Lad Struck in the Back at Bonesauville Game on Sunday is Rendered Unconscious for Long Time. Two Serious Accidents Here.

Turning a complete somersault in the air as an automobile driven by R. Scott Bream, of Mount Joy, and C. Bernard Hoffman was thrown against the corner of Charles Mayberry's house, No. 6 of Baltimore Hill Sunday afternoon, examining a broken arm, severe bruises about the body and internal bruises about the body.

George Hudson was driving his father's heavy Buick roadster and was coming to the west along Baltimore ave. As he reached the Wonebrenner house he attempted to pass, being unable to see the left. At the same time Mr. Hoffman came down the hill in his wheel and started around the first car on the right. Both steered for the pavement and when they saw each other they put out with great force.

Mr. Hoffman was not rendered unconscious but was dizzy for a short spell up He was taken to the automobile to a physician and preliminary treatment given. On Monday further examination showed that the left arm had fractured below the elbow and that two fingers on the left hand were broken. The necessary attention was at once given.

The Buick was wrecked while the automobile was not damaged.

Struck in the back by a pitched ball during a game at Bonesauville Saturday Guy Kohn was rendered unconscious for a long time. Kohn was batting during a game between the nine of that place and the Hanover Athletic Club baseball team. It was feared for a time that Kohn's spine was injured but it is now believed that a cracked rib and possible internal trouble may be the extent of the injury.

The unfortunate fellow was batting at the time he received the pitched ball to avoid a ball pitched by Orndorf Bonesauville's star baseballpitcher. Kohn misjudged the curve and he turned right into the path of the sphere. The ball hit him in the back and struck him in the back he fell to the ground unconscious. He was out for an hour or more before he upon regained consciousness. The injury sustained to his injuries but he was suffering so much that only a preliminary exam was possible.

Later in the evening he was taken to Hanover where he is under the care of Dr. Golden where further attention is now being given him.

Lying with his head on the end of a railroad tie, and the remainder of his body draped over a slight embankment, Lewis Spicer, aged about 45 years and a half from town, Joseph Yohe was run down and killed on the Saturday morning when the regular passenger train passed by. A stop at one of the cutting upon his head which he had placed over his head, and cutting a gash in the back of his wrist.

Mr. Yohe resides in the J. L. Bott, tenant house near the scene of the accident and it is believed that he fell asleep there on his way home from town Saturday night and lay there until the train came along Monday morning and struck him. The train was running at about 30 miles an hour when Mr. Yohe was seen and Engineer Kohler applied all brakes. It came to a stop a few feet after the rear coach had passed over the body. He was brought to town and his injuries cared for, later being taken to his home by railroad employes.

ALL HAD INSURANCE

One Company Had Insured The Barns Destroyed.

All three of the barns destroyed in Friday night's conflagration were insured in the Adams County Mutual Company, that of George Bikle, for $900, Dallas Dillon's for $500, and Vernon Riley's for $100. The company estimates the damage at $100 a horse which was killed for Judge White in Freedom township, William Smith, of Washville, lost two hogs during the storm.

OFFICERS HERE

First Detail of Marines Arrives in Gettysburg, Others Saturday.

Coming in advance of the main body of Marine officers, Captain Wise and eleven lieutenants arrived in Gettysburg Sunday to complete arrangements for the six weeks' school which will be held here starting Jan. 1. Headquarters will be quartered in the college buildings.

TO PLAY HANOVER SERIES OF GAMES

Next One will be Played on Nixon Field Thursday of this Week. Ira Plank Arranges for a Seven Game Series. Other Dates.

Hanover's base ball team will play on Nixon Field Thursday, cheered on by about 150 rooters who will make the trip here by special train. The York County ruspbutors will make every effort to come back and will put out the memory of the two shut outs Gettysburg has recently administered. The game with Giles Rock, announced for Wednesday, has been cancelled, as it would have given the local four games in one week.

Thursday's game with Hanover is to be one of a series of seven games which Ira Plank arranged Monday evening during a few hours' stay in that town. Whether or not the two games already played shall count as a part of this series has not been determined. Gettysburg will play at Hanover on Monday of next week and the following Saturday. July 29 Hanover will again appear on Nixon Field. The subsequent dates are not yet arranged.

The Gettysburg and Hanover managers in making arrangements for this series of games have agreed that the same general line-up of teams shall be carried out for the balance of the series, neither one being allowed to import "ringers" or "star" for the pitching staff or other important positions. It also seems now that the teams are evenly matched and that, for the good of the sport, it is best that they remain so.

Hanover was delighted with the results of Thursday's game—results other than the score. Over seven hundred paid admissions were received, a thing almost unheard of in that town where base ball is conducted as a financial loss.

The fans and players take their defeat of Saturday in good grace though one of their passes attributes it to Hanover's poor condition rather than Gettysburg's fast playing, the other pays credit to the umpire and luck credit for the victory. The Record Herald says "The Gettysburg fans carried home many of the players' rabbit feet" at the same time remarking that "Gettysburg shapheres well, and the next game from the battlefield boys".

Two other games in addition to those above announced are scheduled here for this week, the Salad Bowl club of Carlisle on Wednesday, July 22 and Ephrata on either July 28 or 29.

DEFENDANT DISCHARGED

Dennis H. Fissel, who was arrested last week by Officer Sheeler on a charge of false pretense, has been discharged by Squire Swartz on account of sufficient evidence. Fissel, it was claimed, had passed a worthless check on the Gettysburg National Bank where he had no account.

ASSIGNEE APPOINED

Mr. Sell will Assist C. C. Bream in Settling Estate.

Lewis D. Sell, of Hanover, has been appointed an additional assignee in the estate of Harvey Good, of Conewago township. C. C. Bream, of Hampton, is the other assignee. The assets are placed between $4000 and $5000 with liabilities of a little over $9000.

MADE ARREST

Local Officers Quell Disturbance in the Third Ward.

The first call for police assistance in the Third Ward for many months came Saturday night when Officers Emmons and Sheaker were called upon to stop a disturbance there said to have been caused by Theodore Sampson objecting to the attentions of several visiting negroes to a member of his family. Bricks were used as weapons and Sampson will be a hearing. On Monday he paid costs amounting to $4 and was then released by Squire Harsh.

SURPRISED FRIENDS

Miss Naomi Stoner Married in Baltimore on Wednesday.

A very pretty wedding took place in Baltimore on Wednesday when Miss Naomi Stoner, daughter of William P. Stoner, of Littlestown, became the bride of Preston Harner, son of Mrs. Carrie Harner, of Littlestown. Miss Stoner had formerly been she was going away for a visit and so one thought of a wedding till the word to her parents. Mr. Harner is an employee in the office of the York Railway Company, at York.

WILL REBUILD BLUE MOUNTAIN

Work on a new hotel on the site of the old Blue Mountain House is expected to start August 1.

The hotel will probably be of concrete and will be about the same size as the old hotel but will not contain as many rooms. It will be of modern construction and will be completed by next spring.

The Southern Maryland Railway Company is supposed to be behind the project for the new hotel. It will be operated by Messrs. Gilbert Sons & Bond, the managers of Blue Mountain House before it burned down.

Traffic to the mountain has been very heavy during the early part of this season and practically all the cottages have been filled although somehow all a large number of guests but the Blue Mountain House is greatly missed and it is with some difficulty that the usual mountain frequenters are getting along.

Buena Vista Springs Hotel has had a large tourist trade this year but the need of another hotel to replace the one that burned down is keenly felt and by fine last summer, is keenly felt and the Western Maryland, desiring to increase its business, is willing to be the host as much as possible, with, it is believed, good will in early completion the new hostelry.

GRAIN BURNED

Was Set on Fire by Sparks from Threshing Engine.

Sparks from a steam engine started a blaze in a load of grain on Elmer Hostetter's, on the Lawyer's Mill road, in Littlestown, Monday afternoon, destroying the entire load, a large canvas cover and the threshing machine. The sudden burst of flame was seen by Mr. Hostetter and he severely burning one of his hands.

Mr. Hostetter was engaged in threshing out of the field, hauling the grain to the barn in the usual way when the load was ablaze. The wagon was only a few feet from the machine and the latter would soon have spread the flames.

Although from the other loads there were about thirty-five bushels of grain on the wagon.

HAGERSTOWN FIRE

Hagerstown suffered a severe fire early on Tuesday morning, the four-story brick building of the Antietam Knitting Company was struck by lightning and burned to the ground during the severe storm. The loss is about $75,000 with only $40,000 insurance. The mill employed about 125 people, most of whom will be thrown out of employment as the result of the conflagration. Coming so soon after the destruction of the Wm. Singer Knitting Mills in a like manner several weeks ago, a large number of hands are thrown out of work and two of the city's largest industries suspended operations.

WOODROW LUCKENBAUGH

Young Son of Mr. and Mrs. Lackenbaugh Died Sunday Morning.

Woodrow Luckenbaugh, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Luckenbaugh, died at their home in Baltimore Sunday morning, Friday afternoon at four o'clock aged 15 months.

AUTO BROKEN

David J. Forney, while trying out his newly acquired speed car on Friday morning at the church, learned several parts that will lay up the machine for some time.

LIGHTNING DOES GREAT DAMAGE

Three Barns Destroyed, Sith Mill Struck and Catholic Rectory Damaged in Two Electrical Storms which Visited the County.

Two heavy storms, one in the east and the other in the west, visited near Adams County for three hours Friday evening and, during their progress, lightning destroyed three barns and struck three buildings in various parts of the county, fortunately not doing a great amount of minor damage.

The height of the storm the barn on the farm of George Smith, at Green Spring church, between Hanover and York Springs, was struck and fired. Practically all the contents were destroyed, including the season's crops already harvested, two cows and two mules. Only a few things were gotten out to a safe place, the rains burning very rapidly. Mr. Smith's loss is considerable.

Between eleven and twelve o'clock the barn on the extreme east farm of Miller in Bechanan Valley was totally destroyed by fire. The farm is owned by John O'Brien and only on Friday day he had hauled a quantity of wheat to the barn. Two cows and all other crops had also been stored there but the latter had not been put in the mow at the place and it escaped. The tenant farm is located about a mile from the Fr. Immanuel church on the road leading to Arendtsville.

The lightning destroyed the barn of Verne Kury in Liberty township on the York county side, near the vicinity of Zora. Mr. Longenecker's farm is located at that village, on the road from Gettysburg to Hanover. All the crops and one cow were burned in the barn.

A report of a barn burning near Bell's mill could not be learned definitely on the farm of A. J. Spangler near that place when lightning struck a barn on the farm of Mr. Spangler's and burned to the ground. It was insured for $1,000.

Between times, the sudden bursts of rain caused a light that could be seen for some distance.

At the Catholic rectory in Fairfield lightning struck the chimney, tore off a portion of the chimney, broke a hole in the roof and then went into the building where the only damage done was the shattering of a few windows. The occupants of the house were so certified that they ran to the cellar and there took refuge in the bathe where they remained until the storm had passed.

The silk mill at Littlestown was struck by lightning in the evening but the damage was a modern portion of the county. The stroke entered under the roof and worked its way down the wall followed by a terrific crash of thunder. No damage was done to the factory.

Telephone lines were crippled in many localities and in some cases the private telephones were put out of commission by the electricity. Communication with the outside over the county and it was possible to reach only Hanover by phone. There was much delay for those who wished to get long distance calls, the storm being general in this part of the state.

ASSESS DAMAGES

Late Friday afternoon the viewers on the turnpike from Willow Grove, through Gettysburg to Littlestown, brought in an award of $1500 a mile for the road which will be taken and added from June 28, 1914, when the road was taken over by the State.

The total length of the road is 6.8 of a mile and the total damages paid is $6,771.18. The estimated cost of the road when built is $7,000. The total award of the viewers being little more than the estimated cost.

Last week damages were assessed for the portion from Franklin county to Willow Grove, a distance of 4½ miles, the company receiving $5871.00. The difference is explained by the greater difficulty in the original construction on the mountain.

JOHN H. PEFFER

Brother of Mrs. Hoffman of East Berlin, Died Thursday.

John H. Peffer died at his home near Bairdtz Thursday morning. Among the relatives he leaves is a sister, Mrs. Jacob Hoffman, of East Berlin.

THEY FIGHT LIKE DEMONS.

At Command of Chief Troops Sweep All Before Them—Ville Likened to Scotch Chief Whose Name Is Also Spoken—Who Was Worth a Thousand Men?

Jimmy Hare, an American newspaper photographer, returned to El Paso from Torreon, where he went with the Villa army. He says Villa is a fine dispatch to the New York Journal of Commerce, including the battle of Zacatecas three said:

"Villa has been compared with Grant and Lee and Washington and Napoleon and other famous warriors. But after seeing him in action at Zacatecas and Torreon I believe he is greater even than his soldiers. I am more inclined to liken him to Roderick Dhu, the famous Scottish chieftain, of whom it is said, 'One blast of his bugle horn was worth a thousand men.'

"When Villa arrived upon the scene at Chihuahua, an outpost of Zacatecas, he found the troops there in a state of demoralization. Villa's presence upon those almost impression battle-scarred veterans like a galvanic battery. He ordered his men to make ready for an attack upon Zacatecas the next day. CHAUTAUQUA ON IN THE BIG TENT

Room for a Thousand in Tent on Prep Campus. Crew Gets it in Place in a Few Hours. First Session.

Under the big canvas, Gettysburg's 1914 Chautauqua opened on Wednesday with every prospect for the best attraction of the sort the town has had since the tent became a regular summer event here.

The tent arrived Tuesday night from Fredericksburg, Virginia, in charge of a crew of six husky young college boys who, early next morning, were on the job erecting it. By eleven o'clock everything was well along on its way, the stage up, and the seating arrangements being provided. This year's tent has a seating capacity of one thousand, ample for the town, but considerably smaller than that of last year which was much larger than the usual Chautauqua tent.

The weather experiment this summer is different also, benches to accommodate all of its patrons being provided instead of the old movable chairs. The benches are of more substantial construction and are said to be a great financial saving to the several Chautauqua companies.

The location of the tent is the same as last year, at the northeast corner of Prep Campus, the entrance being on the southwest side of the tent and the best means of access being to the low concrete path from the entrance to the campus.

Mrs. Emily Farrow Gregory, an expert in Chautauqua work, is here during Chautauqua work for a number of years. "I like Gettysburg it all" she said Wednesday. "Storms, rain and wind, every misfortune that can befall an outdoor assembly we have all been my lot as I am ready for anything."

Looking at the oversize ax on the morning she said that if anything I have been superintendent - a place where it rained so hard that :, drown and the sound of heavy voice and you know, the small boy would say "That's rained some."

Prof. Sanders, president of the local Chautauqua association, opened the sessions Wednesday by calling attention to the excellent program arranged and to those who had been wise enough to purchase course tickets for the similar action on the part of others. The financial end of this week's session assured the management wants the attendance to be as large as possible.

Happy children, two hundred of them, the girls in dainty frocks and crisp ribbon bows, the boys in suits ready for all kinds of play—crowded into the front rows of benches at the Chautauqua tent Thursday morning. Many minutes before nine o'clock all the front seats were occupied and scarcely a one of the youngsters was late arriving for the first real play of the week.

And what a season it was. A pleasant little story, a song or two, some gymnastics, made up as full a two hours as Gettysburg visiting generation ever put through. Joyous laugh for an all-wise man's attempt to say who may have made some sacrifice to send their children out for the week of entertainment. Incidentally what new forms of amusement may be expected at the children's playground at the end of the six days' instruction now being carried on by the capable corps sent here!

Gettysburg has turned out in great shape for the Junior Chautauqua. Miss Bye, who has it in charge, says this year, though, many other towns not under her direction have equaled the best number. But nowhere, she thinks, is there so enthusiastic and, at the same, so well behaved a crowd. All are there for fun and play, but no one little youngster remained when told of this condition. "We're just showin' what good bringin' up we've had."

All this play is not without some definite end in view, in addition to the present wholesome teaching, for each day has its story, its song, its "Mother Nature's Lesson Class", with folk dances and songs. It will be one of the big features of the week, coupled as it is with the "Circus Parade" by Nature's Band in the senior sessions.

It was interesting Wednesday evening to hear how Colonial Gosthals had eliminated the mosquito from the Canal Zone. About that part of the lectures numerous auditors were busily engaged attending to the nail thing

If the standard set by the attractions of the opening day of the Chautauqua proper is met by the lecturers, entertainers and companies of the remainder of the course, Gettysburg's ticket holders will be unanimous in declaring the week an unqualified success.

The two appearances of the Mc-Kinnie Operatic Company, afternoon and evening, augured well for the future events of the week. The company in the afternoon gave a program, rather light in character, but with a considerable degree of evident Gettysburg audience. In the evening there were more enjoyable than at the afternoon session, two sketches from "Martha" given in costume and with appropriate stage setting, it is true the large audience a delightful half hour.

Ellsworth Hamstead in the afternoon rolled upon some old time favorites to please his audience and he responded. In the evening his impersonations were decidedly less threadbare and more enjoyable than at the earlier session, his two sketches "Where Is Perkins Now" and "Booth was the Other" showing well his versatility. The audience could have stood only a half hour.

As the closing feature in the evening C. B. Stockton read a play of Formia, told in most interesting fashion of the Roman's fatal defeat of the position next year at San Francisco. The lecture was told rapidly, the picture of Roman life covering fifteen seconds, and it at no time became dull or uninteresting. It was intensely filled and almost all stayed for the talk which took little over a half hour. It is an excellent afternoon talk for the exposition but entirely parlor and instructive nature. The evening's program was not as well attended as out and concluded with the usual announcements by Mrs. Gregory, the platform representative.

This evening at half past seven the Chautauqua band, led by Prof. Dixon, "Taking Stock of a Town"; at 8:30, Melvin pictures, "Homer's Odissey."

Friday afternoon: 2:30, Mrs. Gregory's reading; 3:30, Mckinnie Quartet; 3:45, lecture-recital, Paul M. Pearson.

If Frank Dixon would not stop for applause when he starts to sing a song, an especially telling point, if he would forget his acquired mannerisms and schoolchildren's ways of the concord that purposeless bias at the end of a sentence, Gettysburg, for one, would listening to him the most pleasing male singer of popular songs.

The management did Chautauqua a great service this year when they went to Frank Dixon for assistance. Many grade against the Constitution of the United States which he delivered to people all over the circuit last year, many in Gettysburg included in the "Square Deal" lecture, given here as a Sunday afternoon discourse, and abolished the custom of the applause of unrest among people not capable of picking out the good in everything he had, is also a thing of the past. Both could be heard to advantage in edification and benefit of both classes and masses, an assemblage of suggestions for the entertainment.

Dr. Dixon occupied the greater portion of the hour of his afternoon session on this subject and, that he covered a great amount of ground in the half an hour he was given to do it is unquestioned. Pointing out defects which are common to the whole society of towns, he did not fail to point out remedies for each of the suggestions were followed, Gettysburg would soon be a different sort of place in many respects.

Scoring the checkerboard method of laying out streets, the lack of telephones and light poles on the streets, and ugly signs in front of business places, the lecturer's treatment of a town architect who would provide plans for the whole town, a number for many years to come. Countryowners of the community, especially governmental schools, as active board of health and a business like form of government, were the recommendations made by Mr. Dixon. Inspected food and unsanitary methods of handling stores was strongly urged together with many other points to make a live longer and more happily.

The lecture from start to finish pentadation of the principles of living that could well be adopted in Gettysburg. Mr. Dixon's Sunday talk touched all touched by practically a total stranger in the place. Some defects found in many communities were as possibly existing here, have happily been lost to Gettysburg, but conditions quietly congratulated themselves that such changes, at least, that have to be a source of annoyance.

Dr. Dixon's lecture should do a great deal of good in the period after he visits. Whether it will, remains to be seen, but the fact that attention to the question of whether people go to Chautauqua for improvement or entertainment. The well known lecturer's talk is a valuable feature of this into the objectionable features of his delivery.

The Chautauqua Trio furnished the musical features of the afternoon and evening sessions on Thursday. Their program in the afternoon was brief, for the heavy rain storm interfered and it was necessary to dismiss the audience to allow all to get home before the storm broke in its torrential downpour. In the evening they made up for this with a longer program and were well received.

This evening at 7:00, Ingersol Russell Quartet, 8:00, entertainment, Rosa Crane, cartoonist and clay modeler; at 9:00, motion pictures.

Tomorrow, 2:30, Dixie series lecture; 3:15, concert, the Original Sterling Quartet; 3:45, drama, "Rada", the College Players of Chautauqua.

In censuring the audience for talking during "performances" Chautauqua management might reflect that the interesting the attraction the less talking there will be.

Ticket holders from the county will be given a chance to attend tonight, bad roads and lowering skies keeping them at home.

Chautauqua is busily at it. If you have the time, spend an hour or two at Chautauqua. You'll like it.

MAY FLY ON SILK WINGS

Lower Alps Call Hosiery, For Aeroplane Equipment.

Although to the lay mind the aeroplane would seem to be associated with silk wings may seem as unfashionable as the crinoline, there are certain advantages to be gained by the use of silk instead of the cotton now in common use. Not that the silk-wing aeroplane will be capable of sailing with on a modern biplane or monoplane, for it will be required to more than $500 per machine, while it would cost more than $1,000 to equip the machine with the necessary silk. The secret lies in the fact that silk is more elastic.

Various experiments have been made not only with silk, but with every kind of material that would be considered resistant, cotton, transparent celluloid and even paper, but nothing seems to eliminate the fabric. Some of them however, according to Mr. Gordon Selfridge London Times, equals those which were used in the first aeroplane flights seem impervious to everything but the elements.

The dressings, which consist of oils and varnishes, are applied to the fabric and then have stretched over the framework. The oils and varnishes are applied, and the effect of the dress is to fill the pores of the material and in every direction. When the coats are applied the fabric is rubbed down by the fine of the finger and affords a smooth surface. Many of the machines have further improved and rendered safe by the addition by a coach builder known as Farman.

Ruskin on Child-Training.

Unless you teach your children to honor their father and their mother, they will not love you, or honor their baby, and to treat with tenderness the old age of those who gave them existence, to regard all things as of small importance in the daily behavior of life, and especially such as are connected with the duties of giving or pleasure, as forever—unless you teach your children this, you will be educating Phaëtons and demons.

His Compliment.

The young man in the family had just returned from Paris, where she had been studying art, and from the Latin Week, who had served her folks faithfully for years, he was invited into the parlor to hear her sing. After the performance the old lady remarked: "Miss Lazy, yo' she equal have a nartistpiece."

CONDEMN TOWN'S WATER SUPPLY

Town Supply and Wells of Some Citizens Condemned at New Oxford on Account of Presence of Disease Germs. Take Precautions.

With the borough water supply condemned and some of the wells in the town also under the ban, New Oxford faces a rather unpleasant situation. Typhoid germs are reported to have been found and precautions are being taken to avoid an outbreak similar to that which caused so much alarm three several years ago.

There are four wells ago the disease again made its appearance and several patients were under treatment by the physicians of the town. Samples of water from some of the wells were the test to Harrisburg for analysis and at least one of the cases traced to impure water secured from a well. A representative of the State Board of Health visited the town and the borough officials met with him and while many others have had their wells thoroughly cleaned in order to protect their own families.

The water from the creek, at the present time, in addition to its alleged dangerous character is so muddy that the water mains have become clogged over and the citizens of the lower end of the town are without water. Fortunately there are enough good wells to supply the town until some other provision can be made.

The borough at the present time is building a filter plant on the Little Conewago through which the water will be supply of the town, upon which is completion which, it is expected, will require considerable time. The engineer in charge of the work estimates but it will likely be in the neighborhood of $12,000 or $15,000.

LOCUST IN SHOULDER

Insect Cut Out After Thirty-four Years.

Cutting into a lump which had formed in the shoulder of Joseph Ringer, of Quarryville, Lancaster county, surgical instruments recently with a dozen physicians, who had been called to see the patient, looked on with interest. The lump was about the size of the palm, which, however, responded to the knife readily, and the cause of the formation disappeared entirely. The cause of the trouble dated back to 1880, while clearing land. Ringer was then a boy and was not considered adolescence. In time, however, it developed into a lump, and no more of it until a lump appeared on his shoulder in 1897. He was operated on by a surgeon on account of the pain, which, however, responded to treatment. The lump, however, kept the formation disappeared entirely. again until recently, when the swelling reappeared, forming a lump as large as a hen's egg.

Ringer sought physicians, who applied the poultices. A few days after they made an incision and extracted a dry looking substance which had, it is supposed, been incubating for the past 34 years. Ringer is now showing the insect as a curiosity.

Avoid Fretting.

The moment I fret about a thing I lose my power to control the matter. And there is no stave-master in the world, whether he be human or devil, who can overcome the man who masters himself.—Mark Guy Pearse.

To Shell Peans.

The meats of pecan nuts may easily be removed from the shell by placing a pan and boiling water poured over them. Allow them to remain in the water 20 or 30 minutes. Then the meats are cracked the meats come out without breaking and are usually whole.

A Portrait.

When he can't get front seats at the theater he sits behind a pillar and sulks discrimination; when he can't be waited on in a store right after another he shoe can't be a good one; when he can't find a seat he goes long ago. We all know the man; he is unfortunately almost as depressing as the gentleman who is always "broke."

While walking along the trolley tracks between the Mt. Holly Park and the Hall, Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. G. Appleton, of Dubbs Falls, New York, was struck by a car bound from Carlisle and instantly killed.

She was the mother of the Rev. Dr. Floyd Appleton, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church at Harrisburg. The woman, with her husband and son, the Rev. Dr. Appleton, has been spending some time at the Inn, but was alone when the accident occurred.

The accident took place about 3:30 o'clock on a dangerous curve. It is said Mrs. Appleton was walking on the track and the car was running in the same direction. Just before it left the curve and the car was upon her she turned momentarily bring his car to a stop.

Her head was badly cut, one leg was broken and lacerated, and she sustained a number of bruises about the body.

George Meals, the motorman, said he was rounding the curve and blew on the whistle before he saw the woman. She carried a parasol and this is believed to have deadened the sound.

SLIGHT INJURY CAUSE OF DEATH

From an infection which followed cutting her thumb with a paring knife and then getting a little dirt into the open wound, Miss Mary Lower, of Table Rock, died at the Dr. H. F. Moore, hospital in York, Thursday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock. She was 36 years of age. The injuries which caused her death occurred more than a week ago.

Miss Lower's removal to the hospital was recommended Wednesday evening after a consultation by Dr. Meisenheider with her local physician and on Thursday morning she was taken to York by automobile. The operation was performed at eleven o'clock, the infected area removed at a number of places and thoroughly cleaned.

The operation was apparently a success and she got forward and elapsed into a peaceful rest. About three o'clock her condition suddenly became very serious and death occurred in a few minutes. The injury had evidently spread to many portions of her body, the direct cause of her death being ascribed to its reaching the brain.

Miss Lower was well known in the vicinity in which she lived. She was a daughter of Henry R. and Marie (Weaver) Lower, both of whom are dead. She leaves two brothers, Elson C. Lower, of Table Rock, and Harry W. Lower, of Aspers. She also leaves an uncle, Conrad A. Lower, who made his home with her.

NEW NAVY SHELL S...ASHES DUMMY

STEEL MASS IS KEELED OVER

Movies Taken—Films to Be Kept by Navy—Inventor Confident No Warship Could Resist Attack—No Vessel Allowed Within Two Hundred Yards of Where Test Was Carried On.

With a great hole in its bottom and its sheets of armor dented and punctured in various places, a steel caisson made to represent a battleship is in a dryhock at the Norfolk navy yard, guarded with extreme vigilance.

The caisson was fired on by a submerged shell or mine, loaded with a new kind of explosive.

The experiment was conducted in the southern branch of the Elizabeth river, near the navy yard. Only naval officers and the crews of three torpedo boats were permitted to witness the test.

No remote were allowed within 200 yards of the spot where the experiment was being carried on. Only one mine was fired. Then, before the smoke cleared away the floating mass of steel kneled over to one side and began to fill rapidly.

Naval tugs hurried to its side and took it in tow. Naval officers refused to discuss the result of the experiments. They said the exact degree of the caisson sustained probably would never be known publicly.

A Government Secret.

It was a government secret and would remain one, they added.

The explosives used in the shell are said to be the invention of Lieutenant Inhman. He claims it is superior to any other shell now in use and will do greater damage to a vessel, and consequently, breakwater or torpedo boat can resist its destructive qualities. That is his claim.

The caisson used in the experiment is made of the same kind of armor plate as used in the construction of the Dreadnought Pennsylvania, which ranks as the greatest battleship.

The shell was submerged to a depth of fifteen feet and was placed thirty feet from the hull of the caisson, which drew twenty-seven feet of water. Lieutenant Monroe of the ordnance department, with a government moving picture operator, was stationed at nearest the caisson on a torpedo boat.

Pictures to Show Damage.

The pictures will show the exact damage done by the shell, and they are to be used exclusively by the ordnance department for careful study. The experiment was made under the direction of Lieutenant Inhoff, U. S. N., and Lieutenant Kelly, U. S. N. with Lieutenant Commander Dobbins in all of the ordnance department, taking notes.

The crews from the torpedo boats were ordered to witness the test by Secretary Daniels in order that they might familiarize themselves with the handling of torpedo war heads.

Another test of the explosive will be made with torpedoes when the caisson is repaired.

ASPHALT IN PHILIPPINES.

Astonishing discoveries are continually being made in the Philippine Islands. A forester in the islands recently thought he had discovered an outcropping of soft coal, but on taking a sample to Manila and having it analyzed there and in Europe he was overjoyed with the information that he had really covered a deposit of asphalt of high quality, suitable for the finest uses, such as Japanese lacquer work, and which should bring the natives about $75 a ton. Paving asphalt brings $50 a ton in Hongkong, so the especial value of this find may be appreciated. The discovery is all the more important, for hitherto, notwithstanding the immense quantities of asphalt used in the far east in paving and building operations, no deposits have been discovered there, and the whole supply has been imported from Europe or the United States at high cost.

The deposit is in the island of Leyte and as there are thousands of tons in sight the forester may be portioned for building air castles, as he has some thing that will give him some return than a gold mine. The deposit is near the sea-coast, and transportation will be easy. FINE HOME SELLS FOR SMALL FIGURE

Forty Thousand Dollar Mansion at Ardentville Brings Only $6,500.

"Blue Gables", the mansion of S. L. Johns, near McSherrystown, was sold at public sale on Saturday to the First National Bank of McSherrystown for the sum of $7500.

Mr. Johns, one of the most imposing and most costly residences in Adams County, was erected in 1908 by Mr. Johns at a cost of $40,000. It is built of York County limestone and is decorated with the finest of materials and the numerous gables on the house, a knife and fork, of the same stone, combined to make the property one of the finest in the county. All of the many rooms are large and finely appointed and elaborate decorations made the interior of exceptional beauty.

During the Johns financial reverses of recent years the property has not been maintained as it should be necessary and portions of the house and other buildings have fallen into bad repair which detracts in part for the low price it brought.

The property Saturday was conducted by J. L. Williams Esq., assignee of the estate which now be closed. The bid of $6000 was made by Mr. William McSherry Esq. and it was gradually advanced until the figure of $7000 was reached when it was knocked down to the local bank.

WANT TO GET BAND

The King's Daughters Bible Class of Arendtsville will render a special program of music and recitations, in the Lutheran church, next Saturday evening at 7:30. A good collection is desired, the proceeds of which are to help toward getting. If possible, the Tressler Orphan's Home Band to their Sunday School picnic.

FIXED OATES FOR THE CONVENTION

Adams County Sunday School Workers will be Assisted in Convention by Three State Officials. Expect Excellent Program.

The county Sunday School convention date have been definitely settled and plans are being made to have the meeting one of the best ever held in the county.

The convention will be held in the Lutheran church, near Littlestown on Thursday and Friday, August 27th and 28th. There will be five sessions. If possible plans will be made to hold an evening session in one of the large churches in Littlestown, so as to accommodate more people.

W. G. Landes, the efficient general secretary of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association, will be present during the greater part of the convention and will address one of the sessions. Mr. Landes is a very busy man and he experience had a lot of trouble to secure him for this convention but, as it has been several years since he visited the county, it cancelled other engagements to come.

W. H. Hoke and Miss Robinson, State Department Superintendents, will also be with the county, and will be present. Besides these state officers the best local talent in the way of Sunday School workers will present the different phases of the work.

E. E. Miller, of Gettysburg, president of the county association, will preside at the sessions and the delegates will all be entertained under the direction of Rev. F. E. Taylor, pastor of the Lutheran church, of Gettysburg. Rev. Joseph R. Baker, of St. James Lutheran church, has consented to give an illustrated talk and a number of other people from the county will also be heard. A list of these will be announced as soon as there annual acceptances have been received.

INVENTS A NEW KIND OF COAL

"Boulets" (pronounce it to suit yourself) is the name that Pr. R. E. Hamble, of Boiling Springs, has given to his invention of an artificial coal product, which it is asserted, in addition to being cheaper than coal in price compared to that obtaining for the real article.

The invention, upon which Dr. Hamble began working while he was located at Shewmansdale, was thoroughly tried out last week. Twenty pounds of the new coal produced boiling water in twenty-five minutes in a log furnace. The ash that remained was fine and powdery and without clinkers.

Dr. Hamble has perfected a machine which compresses the fine coal dust and coke into briquettes or bituminous coal when mixed with the chemicals that he employs. Therein lies the secret of the discovery, which it is said, eliminates the objectionable smoke producing elements of coal and now employed in the German processes of making the coal fabric so that it is one of the materials used to bind the coke into briquettes. Boilers absorb the soot of egg coal.

Dr. Hamble's invention is fully covered by patents.

Exact figures as to its cost of manufacture will be soon computed, but according to rough estimates it is believed that the new fuel can be sold at about $4.50 and perhaps less. It is the opinion of its inventor that it produces a greater heat and is quicker fire than real coal. The inventor has not yet made any plans for putting the product on the market.

INDIAN FREED AFTER LONG TERM IN PRISON.

After thirty-four years in prison under the severest sentence known to Hindoo justice, two unconditionally pardoned by President Woodrow Wilson and were released from the Federal Hospital for Insane at Washington.

A party of Hindoos sightseeing in Washington, however, were interrupted upon Speyer, who had grown gray during his long imprisonment. They exhibited his tribal identity by an intricate song, and one of the interpreters recognized in Speyer the hero of an old Hindoo legend which recounts a score of years ago into many white men's jails, thereby earning the right to sing singing their children to sleep with it and to pass it down to them.

Officials of the Indian office, advised from his arrest, began an investigation which resulted in his pardon.

Speyer was found to be wed with the murder of a white man near the Canadian boundary more than 30 years ago. Since it is thought by the department of justice that the murder probably was committed in Canada and that the territorial courts of the United States have little at Fort Benton had no jurisdiction.

Moreover, it is now believed that Speyer committed the murder in self defense. He and another Indian, Good Rider, asked a white man for food. Their request was denied, and the white man threatened Speyer. Badly assaulting him with an ax. The Indian then struck the white man in self defense, and his story is credited by the department of justice.

Mr. Mong says the peach crop along the mountain side will be good but the crop generally in other sections of the states will not be as large as usual.

U.S. TO RECOGNIZE PEACEFUL CHANGE

VILLA'S ATTITUDE FEARED

Carvajal Sends Commission to Negotiate Shift With Rebels and Get Guarantee of Safety For All.

Washington, July 17. The United States instructed John R. Silliman, American consul at Tuxpilla, to inform General Carranza that if he arrives at a peaceful agreement with the rival governments for the transfer of power at Mexico City, recognition will be extended to the resultant administration.

Should Carranza refuse to complete the settlement of the internal conflict by diplomatic means and insist on a bloody entry into Mexico City, recognition will be deferred until there is a legal election, American officials, according to present plans, will not be withdrawn from Vera Cruz until a government is recognized.

This determination was reached by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan after the viewpoint of the Latin American mediators was laid before them. Under the terms of a proposal signed at Niagara Falls, the United States, Argentina, Brazil and Chile went on record promising recognition to the government set up by the agreement between the two Mexican factions. To realize that protocol the Washington government and the mediators now are insisting that reforms

The first move toward effecting a transfer of government to the Carranzo nationalists already has been taken by Provisional President Carbajal. The three peace commissioners — on their way to confer with Carranza and his division commander — General Obregon, are thoroughly Constitutionalists in their political beliefs and were conspicuous members of the Madero party. They also are close personal friends of Carvajal. He has sent them to confer with the Constitutionalists chief, because he believes they can obtain satisfactory terms for the transition of the government.

The only cloud on the horizon of peace in Mexico was the uncertainty about the attitude of General Villa. Reformation from reliable sources was that he is concentrating his forces in Chihuahua and northern Mexico so as to make vigorous demands on Carranza. It was said when the conference at Niagara Falls was called at Atlanta City after General Carranza enters there, Villa adherents may attempt to substitute another first chief for Carranza. Constitutionalists with Carranza sympathies make no secret of the fact that they are apprehensive of Villa's attitude.

For that reason they are working hard to obtain recognition for Carranza's government so that the exchange on arms may be sharply enforced along the border and any renewed revolution be nipped in the incipient stage.

HUERTA IN FLIGHT

Already arrests have been taken to bring internal peace, which means the surrender of control to the Constitutionalists on the best terms that may be obtained.

The change in government has been entirely received by the populace, because a demonstration made in honor of Provisional Carvajal when he was leaving the chamber of deputies building after taking the oath of office, no disorderly outbreak of importance have occurred. In a few minutes after he left the streets of "Down with Huerta!!" and "Viva Carranza!" but the police promptly stepped all such demonstrations.

The declaration of Carvajal for the provisional presidency has been received throughout the part of the republic under Federal control, with the fact that the new president is a civilian considered to win for him the sympathies of the Mexican people who expect to have become tired of military rule.

A number of revolutionary leaders occupy a position at Tuxtahuacan, a village not far from the capital, but an attempt has been made by them to enter Mexico City, as they have been ordered by the northern leaders to suspend all operations.

May Start New Revolt.

San Antonio, July 17.—Reports that de Lanta was being formed to fit Pancho in the interests of Pablo Lima would be big discussed unofficially by army of Sonora here.

The plan, it was said, was to start a counter revolution against Carranza and Villa and obtain the aid of Huerta's irregulars.

WILSON INSISTS JONES BE NAMED

ENDORSED BY BANKERS

The Vote on Members of Federal Reserve Board Will Probably Come Next Week.

Washington, July 17. There was no let up in President Wilson's fight for the confirmation of Thomas B. Jones, of Chicago, for the federal reserve board.

Intimations that the administration might be withdrawn from the senate were vigorously denied by White House officials who thought the administration supporters had no reason to be nervous.

The speed of the confirmation was dependent they could beat it, the administration still was hopeful of confirmation by a slender majority.

The fight took on a new turn when the administration supporters began saying plans to delay the vote and thus gain time to strengthen their position, it is now as though the test matter could come before next week.

That the administration is prepar ing for a fight to a finish is indicated by report that the president has summoned Senator Owen, of Oklahoma and Senator Pitchler, of Florida, it is known in Washington immediately. It is the hope of the administration leaders that the two senators can reach Washington in time for the final vote to cast their votes for the Jones investment.

Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts has issued a formal statement condemning the Republican response for confirmation of Mr. Jones. Senator Weeks declared that Mr. Jones was the international Harvester company when Mr. Jones was a director and vice-president. Mr. Jones is an ardent admirer of the law, and that is the criterion by which he will be judged, especially guilty of wrongdoing, all are equally guilty.

A letter endorsing Mr. Jones, signed by seventy-two large financial interests in Chicago, was made public today by Senator Hitchcock.

Failure at the senate to confirm Jones and Paul M. Warburg as members of the reserve board within the next week may lead to complications which will seriously interfere with the plan to inaugurate a gentle lowering of the new banking system. The currency bill provides that not more than one whole seat becomes no powers on different days, and that is the trouble.

The question has been raised as to whether the vacancy on the reserve board confirmed by the senate have been filled by the president while the work of setting the bank machinery in motion, or whether they must wait for the confirmation of the other two members.

It has been the opinion in some quarters that if the three members-to-be-confirmed by the senate, secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Comptroller of the Currency Williams there can be little question of the legality of their decisions.

COUNTING IN FRENCH.

It is usually considered a mark of superiority that they all count in 20's instead of 10's. In the local system of a general way this is quite true. And yet the French have a system in a way of counting which seems to have been devised for the same one dowered with the idea of the circle or in need of a segment at the circle.

Instead of making 100 the basis of the numerical of the digit in the third place, they individual stopped counting at 60 and then proceed two units and become methods of getting up to 100.

The French, like the rest of us, count up to 60 in a normal and healthy way. Then when the next step is to be taken they say "sixty-ten," and so on "sixty-eleven," "sixty-twelve," and not only also is "sixty-nineteen." When the system is to be finished French counting you find this number he seems to have been prejudged but is inclined to go on that with true Gallic ingenuity he finds a solid way and called it simply "four twenties."

This eighty one became "four-twenties-one," and so on. Eighty-nine is "four-twenties-nine." Here our words appear him to strike another snag. But he liked his societies of twenty as well-in fact, he just grown so enamored of them to be tired of them, and ninety becomes "four twenties-ten." Ninety-one is figured out to be "four-twenties-thirteen," and when Victor Hugo was interviewed he lead his celebrated biographical novel "Quatre-Vingt Treize" he is my, "four-twenties-thirteen"—he must have skipped devoid over the entire area of his native tongue. Which, by the way, is not bad.

The French and even good students of other nationalities who have remained in Paris when "Four-twenties" ran them to without getting his teeth into it, and those who worked at all of this peculiar French habit, which if it is pursued laboriously enough makes the "thirteens" so would certainly call it "fourteen-twenty Monsieur Bonnet."

DAWN AT RANGOON.

Slow boats slipped softly up the Rangoon river, passing one with quiet purring at their anchors. A crudely painted steamer, with high-raised beak and outstretched wings, swept swiftly past us with the strong incoming tide, a native skipper at the helm. Sampans crowded on the incoming tide and a gentle stir and stress this way and that up and down the river as soon running river.

A light mauve suddenly a wondrous liquid seem from the low, mist covered shore and I caught a quick glimpse of what then rest the fine silver tissues, ripples of the river, which, very soon, and ugly, a low, flat lying town. With the light mauve a faint, fine odor of vegetable—lusurious, pausing tones of all kinds. Then, suddenly from the dim and standing high above the level of the water, appeared a golden spire, a vast red, divinely painted thing of gold that seemed to float in the air, and then, dimmed behind a bank of mist.

Next the sun rose from the day and stayed upon the scene like the sudden crash of metal cymbals. The mists curled suddenly and vanished, the shadows withdrew under foot and a hundred golden spires rose in a burst of the ugly outlines of Rangoon.

Mind and body were stirred for shelter in the town. The sun beam so low-ered in the very heaven of the dust streaked trees. It is appalling and the real triumph of the tentacles the hold intrudes. From "The Color of Road," by Alice Perry Smith, in Harper's Magazine.

The Artist's Antique Was Gasoline.

A well known landscape painter recently bought a Ford car. He is not a mechanic, but he is a genius, and a gentle genius. He paid a large sum for this machine, and at the same time not altogether certain of his purchase. He made the purchase with which it was purchased. But having bought it he loved the car with his studio. On the first occasion on which he took it out he found it necessary to frequently his trouble, and he was impressed by the fact that being somewhat in the process. But his engine refused to start. He examined the worm eaten pieces of wood that lit ered the floor he exclaimed joyfully "After all, it's genuine."—Paris Letter to London Globe.

FIRE DESTROYS SEVEN BUILDINGS IN NEW OXFORD

MARTIN'S MILL IS BURNED

Sweeping with relentless fury down both sides of an alley in the northern portion of New Oxford, fire, which was discovered about one o'clock Thursday morning, completely destroyed seven buildings together with practically all their contents, including three horses, a quantity of furniture, numerous wagons, harness, grain and feed. The entire town was showered with sparks from the blaze and buildings on other streets were caught but were saved by prompt action. Those suffering loss were:

Wallace Hershey, baker, used the stable of Horner Ebbert for his horses and wagons. Last three horses, one bread wagon, two sleighs, all the harness, a large quantity of feed, two tons of hay. He carried no insurance and his loss is total.

J. S. Swaney, stable used as a broom manufacturing plant. Broom making machine destroyed together with supply of broom corn.

Citizens were Asleep

The residents of the town were fast asleep when the fire was first discovered by Mrs. Curtis Lady, who lives close by the Eckert property where the blaze originated from an unknown cause. When she first saw it, flames were shooting up from various portions of the building and the men who first arrived at the scene found it impossible to get at the fierce fire from which Mr. Hershey used in delivering bread to his customers. The horses were beyond saving, even if the flames had not driven the men back, for the doors were locked and the entrants were already burned.

Jumping from the Eckert stable to that of Albert Gulden the blaze soon had this structure doomed and another stable immediately adjoining and also the property of Mr. Gulden did privy in fact, rapidly advancing the flames. Only a bucket brigade was ever formed as furious fire which was leaping rapidly from one building to another, the heat driving back the fighters as it advanced. They could get out as quickly as possible and, once on the outside, all efforts looked to service in extinguishing the conflagration which however was not under control for a half hour or more after they reached the place.

Heavy Loss Made

From the Gulden stables the flames next attacked the shop of T. S. Swamley. The stable was a frame structure, over all the other stables in a few minutes it was a blazing mass of lumber. The dry broom corn which Mr. Swamley had on hand for his business aided fury to the flames which shot high into the air, throwing up shower after shower of sparks. One of the broom manufacturing machines was totally destroyed.

William Miller's stable fell next. Early arrivals saw that the building lay right in the path of the fast consuming fire and hastened to getting to a place of safety the horses and wagons together with some of the harness and hay for the use in the most business. The feed was destroyed. A ton of lumber loaded on wagons immediately adjoined the Miller stable but it is believed, of brick construction with slate roof and the only damage done to it was the burning of the window sash.

Furniture Burned

Mrs. Sarah Warner's stable caught from the Miller building and in less than ten minutes was a smouldering mass of ruins. Theodore Warner had many of his personal effects, including a collection of furniture, stored in this building, and they simply add oil of fuel to the flames.

By this time the firemen had gotten to work in earnest with efficient hose lines and they were able to conquer the blaze and prevent any further loss. Among the buildings which caught fire during the progress of the conflagration was the residence of ex-Sheriff F. M. Miller, two doors to the east. The roof caught but quick action saved it. A. E. Barkman's stable, about 300 yards from the last building burned, also caught fire but was saved. Sparks fell on the barn roof and there were many anxious minutes for the firemen who fought the fire when things were finally under control.

Had Insurance Only

Few of the owners and renters of the buildings had insurance on the contents but all had some insurance on the buildings themselves. Most of this was carried in either the Monasmisburg or Adams County companies.

The heaviest loser is Mr. Hershey who had valuable, only recently bought harness and feed. He did not have a cent of insurance on the entire outfit, and his loss is total The Miller barn was a frame structure only and the horses were kept and there was time to get them to a place of safety.

Following the fire, two days after the blaze at the Livingstone business block on Baltimore street, New Oxford is especially terrifying to the residents of that locality, all of whom turned out, either to help or to protect their own properties or to watch the blaze. The engines also did fine work and the fire reflection roared by the fire could be seen for miles.

It is stated to-day that the majority of the owners, if not all of them, will rebuild.

COMPANY OUT OF TOWN WHEN BUILDING BURNS

With the town's fire company away on a picnic at Pen Mar, residents of Cherrytown were suddenly called upon Thursday evening to take out their hose and extinguish fire at a building against a serious blaze at the opposite end of town.

Shortly after five o'clock the stable of Dr. Ida Lee Myers was on fire, flames shooting from the roof and indangering many other frame buildings in the vicinity. The alarm of the alarm was sounded the men of the town responded and as soon as the regular company had gone camping the bucket brigade and the town was practically without protection.

Right willingly did they take up the task of saving the doctor's property and starting to fight the fire. Dr. Myers' stable at present was in no danger of being burned, it was somewhat scorched. It is believed that it can be saved with the loss of another one. As the stable were also taken out before the flames reached them, they escaped all the hay and a quantity of feed was saved.

So successful did the earnest citizens of the village get to work with the hose that in less than half an gravity system, that the Rice barn on the opposite side of the alley, which was surrounded on all sides by other outbuildings and was of old wooden shed immediately adjoining the barn was saved.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion in the stable of the doctor. A short fire had placed in the barn several days before. The building was insured.

SENATOR MARTIN'S BARN DESTROYED

The stave mill of Hon. William A. Martin, at Boyds, in Mesallen township, was totally destroyed by fire about one o'clock Thursday morning together with a quantity of staves entailing a loss of about $2500.

It is supposed that the blaze was started in the engine, and the origination of the fire was gleaned when William H. Martin, manager of the Martin farm, was awakened by the noise of the exhaust, the engine having become overheated. By the time he reached the mill,

It rapidly did the wood burn that it was impossible for Mr. Stover and his family to save any of the furniture. Some lumber, however, was not burned but about 2000 finished staves were consumed together with a few barrels of the building.

The mill was erected about three years ago and had been conducted successfully since that time. Henry Martin, of Arendtsville, having charge of it lately. Most of the product was sold to the Reading Iron and Steel Company, with general offices in Lebanon.

John H. Cox, of the Department of Agriculture, has been in the county to spent few days talking samples of wheat.

SECRETARY BRYAN AT CHAUTAUQUA

William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State, visited town on Saturday and for an hour lectured at the Gettysburg Chautauqua as the guest of a single attraction ever provided for the town's annual summer harvest. The big tent was filled comfortably, the audience being slightly larger than the average attendance of the afternoon sessions.

Mr. Bryan arrived here shortly before ten o'clock over the Western Maryland from Waynesboro where he was address Friday night. He was accompanied by a secretary and was met at the station by members of the Gettysburg Chautauqua Committee, Prof. Charles F. Baughman, president of the Chautauqua and Mrs. Baughman, Prof. Arch McClean, Executive head features of the day's work, the entertainment was in charge of Dr. Frederick Imperial Quarter, Cartoonist and clay model-

The entertainment by the Russians was not as large as had been expected. Only the appearance of the performers indicated their foreign origin, for they spoke perfect English and, with but few exceptions, their songs were distinctly American, those of well known composers. They were heard in a number of solos and a number of the evening when they referred to the wave of American ragtime which has swept the country played as their concluding number "Oh, You Beautiful Doll."

Mark Crane is an expert in his line. His crayon work was the best ever seen in Gettysburg and those who remember the lecture of Dr. Russell Conwell several years ago, were inclined to rate it somewhat above the present since that time, and he was exceptionally good then. Mr. Crane's drawing that added not a little to the character of the entertainment which concluded with the Star Spangled Banner, final work being a sudden transformation of the face of Lincoln from that of a splendid cast of Abraham Lincoln, showing the two to have exactly the same proportions.

The companies which spent Saturday and Sunday here in the Chautauqua tents presented a number of very delightful entertainments given in the afternoon and evening. Under Mr. Bryan's lecture, the quartet gave an hour's program of singing and reading and readings and in the evening they gave a half hour concert. Miss Ruth Ann Shaker's pearance plus was highly creditable and, though not of the finished nature of the Ellison-White company, which here several years ago, was a valuable addition to the Chautauqua program. The young people all showed considerable talent in their expressions of approval came from the audience during the play which was given Miss Miller's reading after setting had been arranged and the costumes were new and effective.

Sunday was the tent crowded morning, afternoon and evening. A union Sunday School service was held in the morning by several of the schools of town and Rev. J. B. Baker preached at the morning church services in the evening a union Christian Endeavor meeting took place, followed by a half hour's concert by the Ellison-White Scotsmen and at eight o'clock by the Ellison-White company in a short sermon was preached by Dr. A. B. Leonard, of the Lutheran Seminary.

The collection, taken at the two sessions, for meeting expenses of the Chautauqua week amounted to $50.00.

Those who expected an earnest scholarly address from Rabbi Stephen S. Wise on the big tent Monday evening were not disappointed for his lecture on "Preparedness" was delivered by one of the best things Gettysburg has had as a Chautauqua attraction.

Dr. Wise did not take his announced subject, "Jew and Christian" but devoted his lecture entirely to a plea for clean politics and that clean men should and could be in politics. "No matter what may be your own political beliefs, you must agree with me that, since Theodore Roosevelt entered the political field in 1882, he has never been nortamintated. You must also believe that one of the two presidents, Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt, is not politic."

That is not politics that rule character but the lack of character that rules politics was Dr. Wise's contention and his earnest plea for a better and a greater America was his theme. "To me America is not a country, it is a religion", he said.

Three ways Dr. Wise suggested for the betterment of city and country conditions, first the putting aside of partisanship. No man is so narrow minded, he said, as the one who says "I have been a life long Republican or a life long Republican." He simply announces, said the speaker, that for all his life he has been connected with no political or gang leader.

The second suggestion social, provincial, territorial and national partisanships must be eliminated. In the country "is to be governed as it should. "You ask if there is a Jewish-American vote," he said, "Why any committee of the Jewish American vote is the vote of the Jew who will vote for the best man."

The third suggestion is to put a fifth rate man of his belief in any public office, one who would bring discredit on our race and faith by the public as he should. It is the vote of the Jew who will vote for the best minded, square dealing Jews for public office as such."

The placing of public good above private advantage is the third necessary suggestion to a greater government, said Dr. Wise adopting it to say "Not by might, nor power, but by second."

It is seldom the crowd fortune of Gettysburg audiences to hear men of the attainments of Rabbi Wise. For an hour and a half he held the close attention of about eight hundred people.

The musical event of Monday's Chautauqua was the Roman Orchestra, composed of Italian players. Their concerts brought a large audience to the delighted both afternoon and evening audiences.

Through the public spirit of several Gettysburg citizens the Chautauqua is assured to Gettysburg for next year.

A canvass of the town was made on Tuesday to obtain the sum of $1,000 before 1915 to succeed the thirty guarantors secured three years ago and whose obligations will be met this first of this year. Many people, known to be in sympathy with the Chautauqua movement, were visited and the thirty men who signed their names for the summer event for the town will be succeeded by more than twice that number, indicating the growth in the crossing popularity of the movement. The canvass was completed late yesterday on the new list.

The canvass on Tuesday were a fitting close to a week of exceptional merit. The Junators gave a delightful entertainment in the afternoon when they produced "Mother Nature's Garden." Miss Ruth Shaker and Miss Leota as "Rain", Keith Berger as "Snow", and Miss Ruth Ann Shaker as "Sunshine", Pauline

MASON AND DIXON LINE ARGUMENT

Recently President Wilson recommended a change in the route of the Lincoln Highway so that it should go from Gettysburg to Philadelphia by the way of Washington instead of by York and Lancaster This has caused editorial comment in many sections of the country, one of the most interesting expressions being that of the Oakland, California, Tribune, which says:

President Wilson in a letter to President H. B. Joy of the Lincoln Highway Association urges the abolishment of the Transitionary Mason and Dixon's line", that famous survey, between Pennsylvania on the north and Maryland, Delaware and what is now West Virginia on the south, famous for a long time as the limit between the free and slave states. Oh, what's in one?

Slavery has been abolished for so long a time that, when one of the former chattel servants of the old South dies, the newspapers play the story on the front page; the states below this old survey made in 1765-67 and the stones above that have changed hands in brotherhood for so many years the Civil War is but a memory; the division is no longer between states that were, slaves and states that were free, but merely separates, as Bob Taylor of Tennessee said, the land of cold wood fire stoves from the hot biscuits. More, it marks the limit of the harsh Overbolt of Pittsburgh from the "smooth and bossy" of Virginia, the frisco-eed of the Keystone State from the cream gravy they pour on the broiler in Maryland, the "lousy corn pone" of the north from the corn pone baked in the ashes in the land where the magnolia blossoms in its whiteness and where the fried turn-over from the flaky pie made of the Allentown prune and many other good things.

There is no more political significance in Mason and Dixon's line today than there is in the east and west side of Broadway and it stands for in variety in diet, and for the sake of all the good meals we have lived and made life pleasant and have died and gone to Heaven, let us have one place where we can say: "Here's where the good cattle begins; here's where we still find the cream of the crop; and the canvas-back duck in his magnificence; here's where the terrapin is coming into his own once more; here is where the essence of the peace is mingled with the result of the labor of the bees; there is the joy unspeakable, the life worth living."

Abolish Mason and Dixon's line! Perish the thought with the man who shook it!

LOST RACE FOR MOTHER'S LIFE

Son was Trying to Beat Trolley Car when it Struck his Mother and Killed her Instantly while he Could do Nothing.

That the Ford Automobile is a race for the life of mother was brought out at the hearing held by Coroner Nunemaker at the Hanover County to investigate the death of Mrs. W. H. Appleton, who was killed by a trolley car near Holly Inn, Mount Holly Springs, Thursday afternoon.

The son, who is pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal church in Harrisburg, testified that when he perceived he had been at Holly Park. The auto began falling very heavily. There was only one passenger with Mrs. Appleton carried it. The men in the party, besides the wife and mother walked on the tracks, carrying the umbrella. They reached the porch of Holly Inn and then the son could see his mother coming down the tracks and at once he and his brother ran for her. Mrs. Appleton was about to step off the car, and Ned Stambaugh, motorman, was trying to speed the car

An emigrant's brilliant invention

Not many years ago a young man came to this country from Hungary. A few years later, study and hard work made him a professor at Columbia University. To-day he is known as an invention which bear his name—the Pupin Coil. This invention has done wonders in the telephone business to maintain perfect transmission on the long lines and on the underground lines of shorter distances.

The Pupin Coil, at once adopted by the Bell System, is simply a soft iron core with copper wire wound about it in a certain manner which prevents the weakening of the comparatively feeble current necessary for telephoning.

ULSTER ARMED CAMP FOR WEEKS; 50,000 DRILLING DAILY

Ulster Means to Fight to Last Man, Woman and Boy

By LORD NORTHCLIFFE.

[London Correspondence of the Philadelphia Public Ledger.]

Belfast, July 12.—Ulster is now in a state of armed preparation for war, and the whole country is drilling with the intention of resisting to the last man, woman and boy. The men are drilling at night, in the open air, and in the streets, and the women are busy making shirts, bandages and other necessaries for the troops.

I was warned in my hotel, Belfast is the spot to go to where the real feeling of Ulster is to be found, and I have been here two days and have seen and heard enough to convince me that Ulster is in deadly earnest.

Ulster is not bluffing. Ulster is not playing a game. Ulster is not trying to frighten the British Government. Ulster means to fight to the last man, woman and boy, rather than submit, the people have given me to understand, to Home Rule. Home Rule will kill Ulster, and Ulster knows it. Ulster is fighting for its very existence.

Action in divorce was brought in Adams County Court on Friday by Lulu M. Eyler against William Eyler. William Eyler, who is now serving a life sentence in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia for the murder of Howard Miller at the Globe Hotel, Gettysburg, on February 3rd, 1906.

The papers in the case recite that at November Court, 1906, Eyler was convicted of murder in the first degree, and that on January 7, 1907, he was sentenced to be hanged, the sentence later being commuted to life imprisonment. Under the laws of this state on imprisonment of more than two years for a felony constitutes desertion.

Mrs. Eyler gives her residence as Pennsylvania, during this county, and states that she has been a resident of "no county for more than a year." At the time of the murder the Eylers resided near Bonneauville.

It will be recalled that rather recently an effort was made to secure a pardon for Eyler but it failed. The murder was committed during the annual encampment of Memorial Day, the weapon used being a pump handle. Miller died the day following the attack

HAVE SCARCITY OF TEACHERS

Adams County School Boards Find that Old Teachers Have Married, are Going away to Normal School and Entering Other Fields.

Adams County has more public schools than it has teachers, according to County Superintendent Rush, who has been actively with interest the elections of the boards in the various districts during the past few days. There are 104 vacancies to be filled.

These schools which have not yet been provided for are scattered through a number of districts and it is not likely that the few remaining teachers of the county will have any difficulty getting positions. Some outside teachers have been imported to fill up the ranks which were badly depleted after the close of the last term.

At least a dozen of the young men and women who taught public school in Adams County last year have announced that they do not wish to teach this year because they are going to attend normal school in order to finish their course. Some of last year's teachers have married and decided to quit teaching entirely. One or two of the young ladies who were married will continue their school work. Some have left the teaching profession in order to enter other lines of activity while still others have accepted positions in other counties at a higher salary.

All told, the number is large and the supply of teachers is too small to fill the depleted ranks of last year's corps. That more young people are not taking up the profession where they are in demand is ascribed to the fact that other lines of endeavor are more attractive, and, further, that their activities for only one year weighs against going into teaching as a life work, young people feeling that, no matter how successful they may be, they may still be turned out after one year's work on account of favoritism or some other reason.

WILL WORK FOR ANOTHER ROAD

While the Lincoln Highway from coast to coast is a thing of the past, now a reality and is expected to be benefited and improved during the coming years, the old idea of a Lincoln Way from Gettysburg to Washington has not been abandoned but is now to be brought forth in a more combined form.

Daniel F. Lafean, who, while a member of the house, urged the construction of this road, has again taken up the agitation and, instead of making it simply from the battlefield and the capitol, now proposes that it extend from Gettysburg to Richmond. It is believed that the connecting of the great northern battlefield with the seat of the Southern Confederacy will give the project renewed impetus and will obtain for it the support of song sections of the country which opposed the original plan.

Meanwhile, the towns on the route of the old Lincoln Highway, which has been established from San Francisco to New York, are worrying along for fear they may yet lose the road. York is particularly interested in the fear that it may be diverted at Gettysburg and go from here to Washington. The city will soon erect one or more memorial arches in order to show the interest and gain a firmer hold on the highway.

It seems entirely improbable that any further change in the route will be made but the Highway Association has been constantly in touch with the various communities to do their share toward beautifying the roadway and improving the road itself.

IS APPOINTED

LOCAL PEOPLE AT CHURCH MEETINGS

A general exodus from town took place on Thursday when the Lutheran and Reformed went forth to gatherings at Pen Mar and the Hoffman Orphanage.

The crowd at the mountain resort was even greater than the throngs hood of 15,000 and the trains going through Gettysburg carried hundreds of Lutherans for the big annual reunion. The usual program of educational, missionary and other addresses for all, local interest centering in the address of Rev. Joseph B. Baker, of St. James Lutheran church whose subject was "Young Lutherans at Work." Some of those going from here attended the session while others devoted themselves to the various attractions of the mountain. Among those who went from Gettysburg were:

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. G. Wenner, Miss Laura Bucher Miss Mary Kahler, Miss Ottilie Bream, Mr. and Mrs. Marcellus Bream, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dull, Miss Maud Miller Miss Ida Miller, Miss Georgie N. Lauffer, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Bikle, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bikle, Robert D. Bream, William Abell, Charles H. Wilson, Miss Alice Martin, Mrs. E. E. Doerfler, Miss Ruth Doerfler, Miss Carrie Pitzer, Miss Margaret Stahle, Miss Ruth Stahle, Miss Ruth Stahley, Miss Ruth Weygandt, Miss Katie Stahle, Miss Emma Stahle, Miss Ethel Stahle, Miss Laughlin, Miss Green Furney, Guy W. Mickley, Miss Thompson, Miss Benedict, Rev. J. B. Baker, Leo Myers, Dr. S. G. Hefelbower, Mrs. J. A. Clutz, Miss Emma Dyler, Mrs. O. S. Reilly, George Reilly, Russell Reilly and Howard Dyler.

Gettysburg actually takes immense interest in the Reformed services at the Hoffman Orphanage next to the institution. Special automobiles and carriages took many members of the Reformed church to that institution and the splendid program of exercises had been arranged. The principal address was made by the address by Judge T. J. C. Williams, of the Juvenile Court, Baltimore.

Judge Williams has before him children who have had no experience, interest in delinquent and needy children and his address makes him an intensely interesting speaker on his subject. The children rendered patriotic recitations, pantomime and drills.

The delegation from Gettysburg were present, Dr. T. J. Barkley, Mrs. Lott, Mrs. Charles Horner, Mrs. Geary Stormer, Mrs. Sandoe, Abraham Kunkle, Jacob Raffensperger, Miss Katharine Raffensperger, Miss Stormer, Mrs. J. L. Butt, John Butt, George Shealy, Mrs. Wm. Shealy, Miss Rose Bair, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Orner, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Orner, Mrs. Hershey, Mrs. Burgoon.

LITTLE CHILD IS BURNED TO DEATH

East Berlin Lad, Playing with Matches, Sets Fire to Clothes and Sustains Burns from which he Dies After Hours of Suffering.

After suffering untold agony for more than twenty four hours little Wilmer Kehm, the four year old son of James H. Kehm, died at his home in East Berlin at 8 o'clock, Wednesday morning from burns received early Tuesday. The child received the burns while at play until the time of his death.

The little father's mother is dead, his father works at the hatchering business in York, and he made his home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Phillips, in East Berlin. With several cousins he was playing in bed on Tuesday morning and, unfortunately, they secured some matches.

All three were just getting up when the little boy lighted one of the matches and his inflammable night shirt caught fire. Frightened at the blaze, the flames shooting over his head, Terrified, his little companions ran from the room. The young mother ran into the house from the yard. She found a blanket from the bed and threw it over the burning child, extinguishing the flames from the fire. Neighbors, attracted by the commotion, smothered the flames which had caught the bedding clothing.

A physician was quickly secured but the damage had been done, the burned all over the body. His face was disfigured almost beyond recognition, one eye was terribly burned, his arms and hands and the upper part of his legs were frightfully scorched. The poor little boy suffered the most excruciating pain but bravely the pain and the physician was able to do everything human skill could afford to relieve the little sufferer.

The boy lingered all day and during the night, finally succumbing to the agony Wednesday morning.

The child's father was summoned from York immediately after the accident occured and was with the boy when he died. He is the only child.

SILENT CITY IN AGE OF RUBBER

SURE RELIEF FOR BRAIN FAG

Sir Henry Blake, president of the fourth international rubber and allied industries exhibition, now formed in a day when the streets of London will be paved with rubber and the brain fag, commonest curse of the business sense of entire thoroughfares will be unknown in the advantage to hundreds of thousands of people.

When the exhibition was last held in London, thirty years ago, the idea that rubber would ever be anything but sheer then such striking progress has been made in the line that the future and the use of pleasure rubber, Sir Henry says, has scarcely begun to be within the range of practical politics.

The exhibition itself, which has the official support of more than forty of the greatest, will exhibit abundant evidence of the progress made. For instance, the room—a writing room is completely furnished in rubber. The walls are covered in rubber skillfully disguised to look like paper, the floor is covered in rubber frames, and the carpet is of the same all conquering material. The tables and chairs, the lintners, paper weights and other metals, the inkstand and the penholders are of rubber, while the electric table lamps are of the same.

The bonnets will probably examine the window curtains carefully, for here again the rubber manufacturer has put rubber beside down. But as a matter of fact the chief interest will probably be like everything else, are of rubber, although the curtains themselves are of rubber jute.

The desire of the sportsman is almost every kind of feat game to the grower of rubber is a heavy one, and for that reason even more pronounced if the effort to make rubber grow in the temperate zones succeeded. A sportsman's room has been fitted up in the Agricultural hall in order that the sportsman may see for himself what can themselves. The court is made in squares of coconut matting, such as British plantation, and they have been laid down on rubberized felt. The result is almost as level as a billiard table.

A Wonderful Substance.

Sir, as Philip Gibbs, writing in the London Daily Chronicle, says, it is for the man who will stretch his imagination and look ahead. He says: "Speaking of rubber as a substance, I refer to curious up visions of a rubber age when boots will be made of rubber, hinged also to its ultimate conclusions, one may guess the full meaning of the future. Directors at sea would no longer raise their voices in the din of the engine room graves accordingly. LOST BABY IN BEAR'S DEN.

Child Saved From Existence by Warmth of Bodies of Animals.

An old black bear and her two cubs played a part in the rescue of a little mites for Baby Bell, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell, Wis. The little boy was found nestling close to the cubs in the mother bear's lair, hidden in a patch of briars

He disappeared from his home, and a countryside search had been carried on for him.

"The big doggies play, but Baby's frightened," the mother heard the little one say as she now who found him.

The bear family was undisturbed, but was not suffering from exposure as was evident in the care she found him that he had been kept alive by the warmth of the animals.

The child wandered from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bell, from the time rumors he were was found on a bank quite near the bear's den. Searchers and a search further into the woods found the bear family and had the child sleeping with two cubs.

Air Man Rises 20,246 Feet.

A new world's record for altitude for aeroplanes was established at Lagnay by Edmond Audemars, a German aviator, who rose in his biplane 8,000 meters, or approximately 26,246 feet—only 154 feet less than five miles. The world's record for altitude, 8,000 meters, or approximately 21,654 feet, was previously recorded on July 7 by Johannisthal by Otto Linnekogel, a German airman.

HANOVER GETS SWEET REVENGE

Gettysburg Amateurs Give Disheartening Exhibition and Allow Rivals to Gallop away with a Ten to Nothing Victory.

Revenge, sweet and complete, was the lot of five hundred happy Hanover fans in the nearshoring city Saturday evening when Gettysburg's erstwhile famous base ball team performed on their field to the disgust of friends and foes and contributed a victory to the York Countians by the score of 10 to 0. A hundred or more local fans witnessed the slaughter intoxicated with their long list of victories, the Gettysburg nine were on the mercy of the vengeful Hanoverians, from the time the first ball was pitched, and at no time did they show any symptome of the big league stuff that characterized their playing before their successors pulled them. The Hanover game was the climax of the season and what a climax it was!

Seven errors in the York game last Saturday and a miserable exhibition before the Salied Birds Wednesday night is not a record to be proud because Gettysburg won in spite of them. That the locals did not learn something at Hanover on Thursday, Saturday should be a surprise.

Rehrbaugh did not have control before the game started, but with a Brooklyn backing behind him Wednesday and due again for Saturday, Ira the Plank saw fit to put in the man who had held the Hanover nine scoreless for eighteen innings. For what reason he is known, perhaps, has allowed several hits and showed just about how he could be worked with his fat-fanned headwork.

While Rehrbaugh was doing all this, his team-mates were playing grammar school ball back of him. Ira the Plank had them nervous in the game and three others were registered with almost other ball players. The exhibition would not have done credit to a high school baseball contest. Nine runs crossed the plate during the slaughter in the second inning and Gettysburg was finally balling rushed to the rescue.

Back of the Hanover teams sterling supportmanslike conduct near the close did everything possible to help, ad to fall. Hanover tried to hurry the game along by striking out and Gettysburg did everything possible to delay it. Fans objected and decent play was resumed. The slaughtered game was at last called in the eighth on account of darkness.

Speaking of the ball it may be interesting to note that Gettysburg is working out the old baseball curse, while Gettysburg had to their discredit six errors as against Hanover's eight, the latter pitched for Hanover.

The neighboring town will arrive by special train with a brass band on Saturday. If the locals "come back" they will be a surprise.

Fans are asked to meet on the Square at 2:30 Saturday afternoon and march with the band to Nixon Field.

JOSEPH KNOWLES, lot of stock understanding, was a pioneer timber owner in the north. The name of Joseph Knowles was well known to readers now, beloved by modern owners, reminiscent and cage of living, he lived until he drew. He traveled in the wilderness of the Maine woods as our primitive ancestors lived and enjoyed none the worse for wear upsetting theories and beliefs the modern world held in the blind love of modern life, maintained. His experiences are vividly told in "Alone in the Wilderness."

That was last October, and now Knowles lean his way to California to plunge into the wilderness again for two months. In Sonoma county, approximately 150 miles from San Francisco, he is going to leave civilization and, without clothes without a pack or a bag or home utilities of any kind other than those natures blessed him with, is going to live as our forefathers away back there in dim obscurity, lived, says Richard Mellon in the Rocky Mountain News of lower.

He is going to kill the meat he eats. He is going to fashion the clothes he wears. He is going to depend absolutely upon his own resourcefulness, his own knowledge of the wilds and his own ingenuity.

And he hopes to prove even more than he proved by his last adventure, he says. That is, that a person is half the ways and means for manufacturing things he requires.

Will Show Men Can Advance.

Knowles means to prove to the world that there is still left on mother's side alone, unserved by modern conveniences, but an advance to a higher plane, serve the intricacies of nature and take from and that he needs to maintain an even higher existence than mere eating and breathing and having being.

Knowles is a scientist, no artist and a writer. He lives in Boston. One night nearly a year ago he was sitting with his group of friends in his Boston club. They were talking of the ease of modern living with its modes of transportation, its means of communication, the wireless the telegraph. The wonders of the industries are were listed at from every nook and interlocking the conveniences were responsible most of the life today to that of other generations.

Knowles ventured the belief, rather asserted in the exchange, that man to day, robbed of all those aids to comfort forbidden, would soon starve like desperadoes and sustain life after some fashion or other. They laughed at him. He repeated his assertion and declared he was with the thrust that if they provided in their unchecked he would go out into the woods in three days to show them they didn't know what they were talking about.

It ended in their swearing him to the edge of the Maine woods in the heart of the Maine woods in the dead river region, near Somerset. Stripped of clothing, blankets, nothing in his hands he took them good by and started into the fastness of the woods. They did not see him again for only one days.

Then he emerged clad in leaves, and from here also in leaves in his head lived as no modern man has lived. Alone in the primitive silent woods he fought for his food.

Lays Trap For a Bear.

He killed a bear by climbing a beech holding the bear full into it and then clubbing it to death. He lived on berries and on meat of wild animals he killed.

He built his fire in the primitive way, rubbing sticks together until sparks flew. He fashioned a house of trees. Burned the wild animals, made them his friends, clothed himself found comfort in smoking the leaves of trees in place of his much loved tobacco and opened up a new way of living his experiences and illustrating of this material. I also have a pair of leggings, of course, that fasten to a belt around my waist.

"The leggings and belt are both made of living bark of the cedar. They are much lighter than cowhide and quite pliable.

"When my shirt of bark is complete and I shall have no fear of sunshine drawn on the inside."

Written on birch bark with the charcoal which he burned up from his fire standing fire were the other messages from a wilderness which servant is a most primeval in bear his describe it.

Knowles' shirt of bark was made with its inside flesh me located in my personal view. For three days I have been stripping bark from trees standing and making on my own pump.

"Each succeeding I cut a notch with my knife on a spruce, which is my calendar. I shall have 30 notches in all.

"My shirt of bark is larger than its body requires I build last week and is more comfortable than I expected. "For the benefit of the camp I used sticks without together with a piece of birch bark, and the walls are thatched with moss inside I have the floor covered with balsam boughs and dry leaves.

"I do not have to shine for covering at night for my fire is so arranged that it will burn all night. I have an oven built and keeping the moss dry. I have no shoes

FAINTS AS HE IS SENT TO PEN

Oliver Miller Falls Back into Chair as Judge Swope Gives Him Sentence for Striking Joseph Plonk with a Shovel

A touch of the dramatic occurred in court Wednesday morning when Oliver Miller sank in a semi-faint as Judge Swope sentenced him to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than one nor more than two years. He was over-powered and was able to walk from the court room, on his way to the jail, without support.

Miller was found guilty some months ago on a charge of assault and battery committed at the home of Joseph Plank when Miller struck with a shovel which both were employed at the big camp site last year. Miller had been working for delay in the matter of a new trial being mentioned but he finally came up before the Court Monday morning.

As Judge Swope pronounced the sentence which would send him to the prison at Philadelphia Miller fell back into a chair. Tipstaves hurried to his side with water and the Judge asked,

"Is his head warm or cold?"

Hattie Tonell appeared before Judge Swope for sentence on a charge of being a common nuisance. She explained her presence in town by saying that her mother was sick at home and, in pleading with the Court that she should not be sent to jail, promised that she would never, never return to Gettysburg again if allowed to go this time. Judge Swope ordered her to get out of town immediately and Hattie promised to leave at once for Baltimore.

Patrice Moran and Robert Simpson, both accused of following the profession of tramping, were discharged.

Current business included the confirming of the account of Norman S. Heindel, auditor in the estate of John S. Grim, of Conewago township; and the account of Edward A. Weaver Esq., auditor of the estate of Joseph Fraim.

FINDS WILDEST SAVAGES.

British Captain Is Character on the Northern Tribes of Northern India.

There is a tribe of head hunters of Brazil, called the Mundurucus, that has no sets of England capital, Sir Reginald Bacon, writer on matters of the Orient. Their inhabitants are the "wanest people on earth," the most recent results of the most recent expansion of 200 miles of the great stream. They are "unconquered tribe" discovered by the invading rubber men. They are said to be the rudest people left on the new map of the earth, even by the standards of men of the Indies, a savage people of the jungles.

"They are the wildest wild men I ever saw or read about," declared white visitor. They have nothing about them but their own nakedness except for their bows. They appeared as in another civilization. They have never had any white people and will. They shoot their bows at you with a force over the forehead through which a brave or indian could not survive. Their bows are made of the finest wood and are perfect balanced. They are a stream of the subtlest kind and the accuracy is marvelous.

"They are without any form of government and do not even know what civilization is

BASE BALL TEAM TAKES ANOTHER

Little credit can be given the locals for their second defeat administered to the Indians of Carlisle on Nixon Field when the Cumberland County players were taken across 7 to 5.

An unatractish exhibition early in the game well nigh disgusted the loyal supporters and it looked as though they were done for a repetition of the school boy playing which at times featured the game with Tyrone. Only the timely arrival of "Dutch" Weimer, who came out of center field in the absence of Mellennell saved the game and to him, rather than to the regulars, is due the credit for the victory. His hits were responsible for two runs. Plank and Oyler were the only other Gettysburgians to hit safely.

Bradshaw was on the mound for Gettysburg and struck out eight. Hart pitched for Carlisle passing four men, allowing six hits and striking out twelve.

Carlisle scored a run in the first after two were out. Harmon was safe on base on Plank's error. He started to steal second. Skadly threw to center field. Herman proceeded to third from where he scored when Oyler failed to stop Weimer's throw in.

Carlisle scored again in the second. Hart reached third on his smash to left. Skelly threw past Oyler and Hart scored. The visitors put another in the fourth. Leonard hit a two bagger to center, Hart sent another of the same variety to center, Adams reached "Lefty" Bradshaw tightened up after the fourth and Carlisle never scored again.

Gettysburg scored its first run in the second. Norman Starry reached first base when the catcher dropped the third strike. Plank bunted and Starry was out at second. Weimer then hit to the right field swamp for three bases. Plank scoring.

Gettysburg did not score again until the sixth. Bradshaw walked and advanced to second on Starry's out. Plank reached even second on Plank's hit to short. "Dutch" Weimer reminded Hart that he was still in the game by rounding out a double. Plank scoring Oyler then singled through short and Weimer scored. These three runs finished the scoring.

MISS GERTIE ECKERT

Miss Gertie Alice Eckert, youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. Eckert, of near Biglerville, died at her home Wednesday evening July 15th, about 7:00 o'clock from blood poisoning aged 16 years, 8 months and 7 days.

She leaves besides her parents, four sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Earl Guise, of near Hunterstown; Mrs. Ira G. Weidner, of near Lincoln Ridge; Mrs. Jacob A. Eckert, of Gettysburg; Laura Eckert, of Biglerville; Ollie Eckert, of Gettysburg and Calvin at home.

Funeral was held Saturday morning at house at 9:30 o'clock. Services and interment at Bender's church, conducted by Rev. C. E. Fluck.

Bob's Favorite Color.

The late Bob Ingersoll, one of the most noted orthodox on hand, proved by long observation and repeated experiments that blue is the favorite color of the lion, and that next after blue come, in order of preference, white, yellow, red, green and orange. Mr John determined the fact that a lion will take about 25 hours per minute, and that it always keeps to the same species of fewer during each visit to the feeds.

Exterminate the Cockroach.

The cockroach acts as an insect proper of typhoid fever, bubonic plague and possibly cancer. Several years ago an epidemic of typhoid fever at a United States warship was proved to be propagated by cockroaches. In a recent issue of the London Lancet, Dr. W. Melville Barlow calls attention to the fact that the mere destruction may be an easy one vegetable microorganism which is found to be the breakfast of several species of roaches.

One an Father.

A young minister preached one Sunday to a rural congregation and spent the next day visiting the people. At one house the men of the house was expressing his appreciation of the sermon in very complimentary terms while assisting their wives to put up his team. His little son had followed him and after getting the minister a minute or two unclaimed: "Say, papa, you say Mr. Brown was a one horse preacher, but he's got two horses"—National Monthly.

BLANQUET MADE HUERTA RESIGN

War Minister.

ARREST WAS THREATENED.

Huerta Was Drinking Hard When He Was Brought Up With Sharp Turn. General Blanquet First Man to Go Before Firing Squad Without Securing Life or Liberty.

It was only through the greatest pressure that Huerta was forced to accept the holiday held he had taken upon the presidency of Mexico.

On Saturday Interior Huerta started the drinking bout which ended only when he was forced to resign. He was immediately after the appointment of Francisco Carbajal as minister of foreign relations, according to information which has come from the capital the dictator went to the home of Blanquet where he drank until far into the night. Very little sleep was had on the day Sunday drinking at the Cafes Chapultepec and Colon.

Carbajal expected Huerta to resign Monday, but the dictator spent the day in bed. He was in no state to do business.

Carbajal expected Huerta to resign Monday, but the dictator spent the day in bed. He was in no state to do business.

Carbajal then appealed to the members of the cabinet to find a substitute whose word is law in the Mexican army. They met in the foreign department and urged him to persuade Huerta to resign.

Blanquet believed Huerta should go. He was the first man to suggest it. He found the dictator in one of the cafes Huerta frequented and when the latter was just piqued his strongest card. He told the dictator that the cabinet said:

"But you can't resign!" Huerta replied that he could and would. "You are not a civilian guy, and you have a man's size job."

Blanquet Remains Firm.

Blanquet remained firm and insisted that Huerta should immediately tender resign if Huerta remained to the presidency. The cabinet would immediately resign and the country would be without even semi-order.

"I will not say resign." Blanquet is rumored to have said, "but I will take the group with me and the army chiefs will be to place Victoriano Huerta on $10,000,000."

Wednesday morning Blanquet again visited Huerta. The latter refused to listen to reason, take the army with him and resign the presidency.

MAIL BY AUTO TO FARMERS

Washington—Uncle Sam expects the one horse shay on many rural routes to disappear. The Postoffice department the issue of a bill ordered reported by the house committee increasing the allowance of $1,800 a year will be to the pay for rural carriers who use automobiles.

At present the standard compensation is twenty-four miles long and the maximum compensation $1,200 a year. On recommendation of the post master general the limit of the route will be increased to fifty miles, and officials believe that a yearly allowance of $1,800 will enable carriers to use motor vehicles to perform the rural mail delivery.

NEW RATES MEET RAILROADS' LOSS

AMOUNTED TO $14,000,000

Interstate Commerce Commission Order at Last Lifted Lower Rates—Some Big Changes—Some Very Nearly Same Increases Are Ordered Without Serious Loss or Hardship.

The order of the interstate commerce commission increasing the rates on the roads in official classification territory for permission to make an average increase of 5 per cent in their freight rates, making certain increases impossible, will result in large increases of the carriers' revenues about $16,000,000 annually, will be a decided boon, it is contended, and will serve to overcome the actual increases in operation of the railroads for the year.

An increase will be allowed, says the New York Times, on the coal rates between Buffalo and Pittsburgh and between Pittsburgh and Lorain that will more nearly approach the full 5 per cent asked for than the increases allowed in many cases in our order to the coal territory. The increase in class rates will be confined to the territory east of the Mississippi river and to New England and territory east of the Missouri river.

Party Stallion Mare Revenue.

In order to increase the revenue of the eastern railroads involved in the effort to increase their rates by $16,000,000 or $18,285,714.30. An average of 5 per cent, the commission has ordered a change in which will be more than three times the amount of the increase that the interstate commerce commission will allow the railroads to make in the freight rate granted to its decision. But the commission has declared that the railroads should free service and make other concessions to the shippers which will suggest there will be no additional revenue to the railroads. This amount, added to the amount decided by the commission, will more than offset the revenues by more than $16,000,000 or something like that amount or $10,000,000 more than the railroads are now receiving.

The first evidence submitted by the eastern railroads in their application for increased rates was that for the last three years preceding their operating expenses had increased 12 per cent, their gross earnings and that net earnings on their outstanding stock and capital invested in those three years. The commission has declared that instead of granting the railroads an increase that, according to its own statement, would give the railroads an increase of about $16,000,000.

Showed $14,000,000 Decrease.

The railroads in official classification territory have 197,000 miles of railroads owning 63,000 locomotives and 2,500,000 freight cars of 1,112,235 miles of track. From 1910 to 1913 their operating expenses increased $196,000,000 in the same period their operating revenues increased $196,000,000 at $205,000,000. There was an increase in net operating revenue from $1,000,000 in 1910 to $54,000,000 in 1913.

In a statement issued by the railroads in their application for the rate increase after noting that the net operating income of the railroads in 1913 decreased that "even had three companies made no increase in their dividends during the period they would still have lost $14,000,000 in 1913 as compared with 1910."

It was asserted by the railroads that in the last five years they had increased investment—that is, the cost of railroad and equipment—$4,000,000,000.

The estimated obligations of the forty-nine companies in official classification territory for 1914 which the case was presented to the commission was $1,000,000,000. Of this amount $600,000,000 was funded debt and the remainder equipment trust obligations. The net earnings of these companies for the first eleven months of 1913 were $1,000,000,000 and the dividends paid out of $1,000,000,000 less than the dividends paid in 1912 and $1,000,000,000 less than the dividends in 1910.

PLAY ILLUSTRATES SERMON.

Church Members Act Out Story of Courtship of Rebecca.

The Rev. Thomas Tarbet Cooper, who holds services in the Sunshine gospel tent at Fourth and N. J. Avenues, S. E., Washington, has originated a novel method of illustrating his sermons on the "Courtship of Rebecca" by having members of his congregation in costume act the story.

The pianola was brought into the tent and Miss Walter A. McMillan, best of Livingston was Rebecca, and Henry Burkhead of Hilton, N. J., was Eliezer. Those who had parts were Mrs. Ella Burkhead and Miss Bess Burkhead of Hilton, Miss Edith Wright of Newark and Mrs. Jennings of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. Wilson Sherman of Hilton.

MANY GIFTS FOR THE ORPHANAGE

Receipts on Anniversary Day Amount to Five Hundred Dollars. Loca Reformeds Contribute to Successful Bazaar. Large Crowd.

A crowd estimated at from 1200 to 1400 gathered at the Hoffman Orphanage near Littlestown on Thursday for the fourth annual reunion, basket picnic and bazaar. Everybody contributed liberally to the support of Adams County's only child institution. The receipts for the day amounted to about $500.

A liberal offering was received in a free will offering taken during the day. A basket picnic dinner at noon at $115 and the remainder was received from the dinner and refreshment stands. Some expenses will have to be deducted from this latter amount.

Adams County people contributed liberally toward the support of the institution during the many features of the day. The members of Trinity Reformed church, Littlestown, gave a fine assortment of caps, aprons, and fancy articles; the Ladies' Sewing Circle of Carnbrook gave aprons; the Woman's Fire Hearth Circle of Littlestown gave $25 and a collection of $5.00; the members of St. John's church at Bonneauville sent aprons, and Mrs. Rebecca while Mrs. Annie Bair added a dollar in cash. Other individuals and churches sent gifts scattered from Mrs. Charles Rife, Orrtanna, to Mrs. Ella Hollinger, near Mount Ville F Wolf, Abbottstown; sewing bags, Mrs. E. Attland, Abbottstown; aprons, Miss Ella Abbottstown; beads, Miss Alma Lower, Mickhaltstown; rugs, Mrs. John P. Butt, McKnightstown.

Musical selections by speakers' stand were hundreds of interested persons a space of about 60 by 100 feet being erected between the tents for the reformed church and their friends. The program announced was carried out with the addition of a duet by Miss Margaret Allen of Littlestown and Mrs. Hartman, of the Orphanage.

Dinner was served to a large gathering of people who had brought their luncheons with them. The Littlestown band furnished music and of the interest being shown locally in the Orphanage and its success.

There is no place like the home of the immigrant for a true description of metaphors." It will be a long time before we have a "nuisture" equal to that used by the Irish immigrant to Canada, "The British lion, whether it is the symbol of Great Britain or Ireland, by the forests of Canada, will not hurt you, but it will scare the life out of you."

It recalls the famous "bull" made by Sir William Hart-Dyke, the Colonial Secretary of Ireland who addressed laughter in the house of commons one day by declaring that "the Irish landowner gentleman has mainly his fault to find with the Irish tenant is the top of the tree to bid them."

According to an order of £2,000,000 in the army estimates one year, a certain commander-in-chief was asked by the coach, "Wife's mother, astounding Irish bull." Another Irishman employed in India, remarked, "You can't expect to find the true spirit of the British soldier in the backbone of the country."

An Irish member speaking of animals said, "The only way to get rid of it seems it a mystical offence, prohibited by the Bible." Another Irish member who asserted the horse that "as long as Ireland was silent under her wrongs England was deaf to her cries," while a third said that the Irish race would of packed jerkins during the trick troubles that a member in support of the Irish land purchase bill said that by may have I lived, and, by the blessing grace, I will try to live it will die."

There was a wild howl of delight, $17,000,000 sterling, when one of the members sought to remark, "The time has come and is rapidly arriving," which is equal to the cry of the nonsense that a member was "at the bottom of the bottomless pit."—London Tit-Bits.

MANY ENJOYED UNION PICNIC

Games, Races and Band Concert are the Big Features of Gettysburg's Annual Sunday School Outing.

Gettysburg had its best Sunday School picnic for many years Wednesday afternoon and evening when a crowd rivaling that of "Opening Day" gathered for the annual Union Picnic. Dull skies and threatening skies kept the crowd small in the afternoon but the evening saw hundreds at the popular resort.

Only one accident occurred to mar the day. Mrs. Amos Welkert was struck on the head by a swiftly moving base ball from the bat of one of the players in the Presbyterian-Reformed game. She was painfully hurt and after preliminary attention, she was removed to her home. It is not thought that the injury is of a serious character.

The program of attractions provided by the committee kept every one busy all evening. Prof. Leo Melhuish had out the Citizens' Band for their first public concert since he assumed leadership. They played for several hours in the grand stand pavilion to a large crowd.

The heavily contested game of baseball between the Red Birds and the Jersey Wrens was amateur in name, soon for much excitement. The visitors of Opening Day were the vanquished this time, for the Red Birds taking away the game by the score of 9 to 1.

Ice cream was also offered the visitors in the various dashes. Five fifty yard races were run and the winners were Keith Breger, Joseph Williams, Harry Pittenger, Mollie Weikert and Catherine Bikle, of Washington.

In the afternoon the Reformeds mentioned their winning streak in the Sunday School League by defeating the Presbyterians 8 to 5. Bringman pitched for the leaders and Jones for the Presbyterians. Eight runs were batted off his delivery in the last two innings.

BIG STABLE BLAZE

Fire Burns Forty Horses in Stable at Martinsburg.

Fire that started at 8:15 Tuesday night in Martinsburg, destroyed the livery and boarding stable of H. E. Downs, Forty horses, belonging to Mr. Downs, to different companies and contractor Ferraro, were burned to death. All the vehicles in this stable were also burned.

The fire started in the hotel stables operated as a livery stable by Henry Heller. All the horses there were saved, but all the vehicles and other contents were burned. The summer kitchen of the hotel was burned.

Among the horses burned were two old fire horses that had served in Mt. Louis at the exposition, and had recently arrived in Martinsburg. They were stored in the stable because of alterations being made at the fire house.

TAKE CHICKENS BY THE HUNDRED

Old Chickens and Young Ones, Fancy Chickens and Common Ones, Taken by Gang Operating in Eastern Section of the County.

Chickens, the ordinary garden variety and some of more distinguished ancestry, have been stolen, literally by the hundreds, from the chicken houses of York Springs residents during the past few nights and as a result poultry fanciers in that thriving community have renovated their homes into veritable arsenals in anticipation of further raids by the chicken intruders.

Method Bower was one of the heaviest losers. More than one hundred chickens, including both young and old ones, were removed from his coops one night this week, the hen building almost all of his poultry. Clinton LaRue has lost almost as many and Harry Bair has any desirable clue to the thief.

At the home of Gilbert Fair, two separate raids were made, the marauder calling one night to remove all the old chickens and then having sufficient effrontery to return the following night and take away all the young chicks.

Charles W. Gardner is one of the heavy losers, his coops containing quite a variety of birds stolen. Mr. Gardner has been keeping a sharp lookout, expecting to exhibit them at the Adams County Fair next month. However, every one of them was taken and Mr. Gardner is out chickens, money and fair premiums.

Postmaster Emmert is nursing a sore head as the result of a blow from a shot gun which he received on Tuesday night when he saw some peculiar noises in his chicken yard. Mr. Emmert heard some of his chickens squawking about midnight and fired his gun to scare off supposed marauders. He found, however, next morning that some person had taken a hurried departure from his chicken house.

Hardware dealers in the town are selling nearly their entire ammunition now as in hunting season for the majority of the farmers have armed themselves.

The thieves have not confined their operations alone to the town but have visited a number of nearby farmhouses. They are evidently guilty of parties but as yet sufficient evidence has not been secured to warrant an arrest.

DRAGGED BY A RUNAWAY HORSE

Animal Takes Fright at Trolley Car, Pulls Axe Driver and then Runs Away, Daughter Stays in Carriage and is Unhurt

Thrown from a carriage when his horse took fright at a trolley car, P. Y. Eyler, of near Harney, had a narrow escape from serious injury at Roosevelville on Wednesday. He escaped injury in the vehicle and overturned horse.

P. Y. Eyler and his daughter had just reached the foot of the long hill on the road between Harney and Franklin County village. They were riding in a single seated surrey and the horse took fright when a trolley car, bound from Waynesboro for Pen Mar, here into sight around a sharp curve.

The horse swerved sharply. In the direction of the car and then made a short turn to the opposite direction. Mr. Eyler was pulled out over the dashboard. He clung to the lines and was dragged along the road for a good distance finally letting go after receiving a number of cuts and bruises.

With one shaft still attached to the surrey, the horse started at the mountain, with Mrs. Eyler in the vehicle. Because of the steep grade and the crowded condition of the remaining shaft, the horse soon freed itself. It was caught later by some men on the mountain.

Miss Eyler was not hurt in the least though she was considerably frightened by the runaway horse.

After getting the horse back from the mountain Mr. Eyler hitched up his carriage the father and his daughter were able to proceed on their way.

WEDDED IN FOREST

Romantic Marriage of Young Couple by Moonlight.

Under the darkening boughs of a forest on the Round mountain cascade, with a pale new moon shedding its silvery light on the tall, raised sheen of silvery light on pinetrees, Miss Ethel Mae Bowers, stood the setting for the nuptials of a young Waynesboro couple Monday night.

With the only witness the mother and the bridegroom, the Rev. Lutheran minister the Rev. Dr. J. Lower Bretthern Church, Waynesboro, practically invisible in the deep shadows of the big trees, remarried, Bell, was the marriage of Harry A. Niedentahl and Miss Elizabeth L. Oelsner, both of Waynesboro. The unusual circumstances surrounding the marriage was the result of a desire to have the love scene in the forest. When the young people went to Dr. Grimm with a request that he be explained that he would be necessary to perform the ceremony in the forest he readily consented to go across the Mason and Dixon Line.

ROOSEVELT AND WILSON MAY COME

Great Leaders are Expected to Tour this Portion of the State in October before Election Time. President Planning.

Following the announcement made some weeks ago that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt would visit Gettysburg and be the principal speaker at a political mass meeting this fall, comes the news this morning that a similar visit may be paid the town by Woodrow Wilson.

Late in September or early in October, Governor Tener will tour Pennsylvania, Iowa and several other states to help Democratic candidates in their campaigns. So far he has made no definite plans for a speaking tour, but the understanding is that he believes his administration will be on trial at the elections, and that he ought to go out and talk to the voters, for his interest therefore, in which there is likely to be a keen fight will be visited and it is said the Y. Q. Governor will come to this place in short of attention, at the hands of both the Progressive and Democratic leaders while the Republicans have not yet announced what special attractions they will put on the road.

The president probably will leave for his summer residence at Cornish, N. H., just as soon as congress adjourns. He hopes to be in Baltimore early in September for the Star Spangled Banner celebration there. He has been invited to be present at the exercises during August, and during September he will be in Washington most of the time.

His political tour, it is believed, will come late in the month or early in October and will likely be just about the time Colonel Roosevelt is on his tour.

SOWING RYE

Franklin County Farmer Adopts Quaint Old Method.

D. Y. Snowberger, near Waynesboro, has begun his fall sowing of rye and believes he is the first in Franklin county to do so. Mr. Snowberger, who has been a successful farmer, adopted a way old method of sowing his rye. He tied up the sore of his horse, climbed upon the animal and rode it all over an unbroken meadlot, casting the rye with his hand from the left side from a sagging point. The sore was tied up to keep the seed from falling into them. Then he will not come after him with plows and bury the seed in the ground. He intends until it germinates to produce a big crop next year.

SAYS TOO LITTLE MONEY FOR ROADS

Commissioner Frey, Having Charge of Work in Adams County, Says Funds will not Provide for Necessary Repairs.

With three hundred men making repairs to roads in York, Adams and Lancaster counties, which comprise the district under his care, Edward S. Frey, assistant to the state highway commissioner, is fearful that the $50,000 which is to be expended in this district will not cover the work requiring immediate attention.

In addition to the gap in the good road between Gettysburg and Mount Oxford, resulting to complete, there are a number of bridges to build or repair and impassable roads to fix up, most of this the result of recent storms.

Mr. Frey states that more money will be needed in this district, and he is fearful that he may receive orders at any time to stop work, as the appropriation is getting low.

In an interview Mr. Frey said: "The money at hand for my district appropriation is $50,000, and this will be expended on work that must be done at once. All the worst bridges will be repaired and impassable places made passable. We will drag and repair roads where the worst work will be of advantage. I have about three hundred men at work in various places. Some of them are building a new road between Oxford and others are working at the Castle Fin Forge Hill. Many of the roads were badly washed out by the recent floods.

"About a mile and a half of the new good road between Gettysburg and Mount Oxford is completed. With this with the other work of pressing necessity will soon eat up our allotment of $50,000."

HAS BROKEN LEG

Howard Eckert, the eighteen year old son of Harry Eckert, living along Fairfield road, met with a painful accident in town sustained a compound fracture of the leg between the knee and ankle while engaged in work about the farm Tuesday afternoon. He was at the side of a team of horses hitched to a wagon loaded with manure, when the animals suddenly took fright. He was caught between the wagon and a straw stack. The horses became unmanned and it was found that both bones were broken. He adjusted the fractures.

TEAM LETS GO ANOTHER GAME

Lanoester County Nine Proves Downfall of Local Players. New Pitcher in Gettysburg's Line Up. Three Errors.

On the toboggan. Sliding swiftly and beautifully along, the one-time hard hitting Gettysburg base ball team covered another lap of its downward course Tuesday afternoon and contributed to Ephrata a victory and shut out. Score 4 to 0. Loyal fans gathered for the swinging fashion to witness the game and they were right well pleased with the fielding of the locals, although every one of the three errors registered against them resulted in runs.

Gettysburg may have had a reputation for hitting, once upon a time, but it is now a matter of history—ancient history at that. Five hits was the best the team could do and two of these were from Weimer, the team's newest fielder. With men on bases the batters were simply powerless and fell before the delivery of the Lancaster pitcher without a struggle.

Gettysburg had a new one in the box, Bender by name. He comes from the Bear Mart, struck out eight and allowed six hits. Winning ball, they say, but nine men make a team. There is room for some consolation to the fans to know that Ephrata has just finished a winning season of ball games, the victorious march being stopped by the local boys.

Ira Plank did not appear in the line-up. Allison taking his place at short. This is the position he occupied the Gettysburg manager was not tested but he seemed handy at the bat. The remainder of the team played their usual positions.

Ephrata scored one in the second on a base on balls, a stolen base, an overthrow by Smith to second and a hit. Another was scored in the sixth on a hit, a sacrifice, an error and another by center field. Two more were added in the ninth on a single, a double, an infield out and an error, throw at home plate.

Three times Gettysburg had chances to score. First, in the fourth, Smith and Grove got a base hit, and was an easy out when he tried to steal third. Second, in the sixth, Norman Harry and Grove got a hit with two out, Allison ending the inning on a three strike out. Third, in the ninth, Weimer hit for two bases, took third on a hit by Smith and was also third there when Norman Starry was out at first.

An Ill Wind.

"If nature had made me an ostrich," said young Mr. Long, one morning, quite unexpected, "perhaps I could get your cooking." "Yes, wouldn't that be fine," replied his wife, "then I would be able to get some new plumes for my winter hat."—National Monthly.

FARM BUREAU ASSOCIATIONS

Farmers sometimes ask the question: Why should I become a member of the Farm Bureau? Let us tell you. It is the organization of all the farmers of the county to help them get ahead. It is every farmer and every person interested in farming in the county at the organization of the county Farm Bureau Association. The only cost to you is $1.00 per year. Don't delay but get in touch with your township committeeman and join at once.

Third: While the county organization is being perfected there has been little time organize community meetings. But now now some where this county will be organized and initiated. If the farmers are to have the best possible results from their business all farmers of the community must be united. If the best results are to be secured.

Fourth: While the county organization is being perfected community meetings must be held, at these meetings the members of the Farm Bureau must be present. Without the full cooperation of every community with the work, no it is possible to make use of the opportunities that become then know how to use them. If only a few of the farmers put forth effort to know what the Farm Bureau is and what it can do for them it will be useless to push it.

THE MANURE SPREADER

Time was when a manure spreader was a novelty to an implement dealer and only the wealthy farmer, but it is now a necessity to the poorman, says the Hon. Burnett, Jr., to the Farm and Fireside. I do not believe a farmer going to debt, as a general thing, but if he were to ask me the question of a big debt for a manure spreader I would unhesitatingly tell him to go and get one. In fact where the profit gain of 50 per cent. was made by the using manure on a hay crop with a spreader against a 20 per cent. profit on the big load scattered with a four tined fork. On corn the yield from land on which the manure was distributed by a spreader was startling. Instead of getting the average fifty-five bushels per acre on the land, I have gotten seventy-five raised with forks. Labor is more than hard to get so with an expensive, but a good hand with a good team, can spread with a spreader the same number of the right kind, will effectively double the big load in one quarter a day.

A MANURE SPREADER.

I once heard a farmer say: "If I did not have a manure spreader I would borrow money and pay at least 10 per cent interest rather than be without one. The manure spreader is indispensible."

Compass as Range.

Compass are no close crop to put on ground for measuring, and must be thoroughly understood. For bogs there is nothing better. Take a bearing with the sun a measuring pin held. Part of the bog should be cleared of the heather at the root cut and cured for cattle and horse feeding.

CLEANING UP SHEEP BARNS

There are often several rather dull days on the farm in the early spring and they may well be taken advantage of to clean up the sheep barns. Sheep are farmers' heave the barn all summer by the droppings of cattle in it as the sheep are turned in pasture, but it is important to clean out the barn for the manure for the most progressive farmers. The fall is the time to put in the barn, but not in the fields, where the sheep will be in the fall. To be sure, it cannot be plowed on the cold frozen fields, but it can be hauled out about spreading it thinly over the fields as the plows which expect to sow it getting short and needs new manure to keep it in good heart.

It is best not to place sheep manure in the pasture when it is too rotting, and if there are any unrefuse grass in it there might be taken into the sheep's system again but that manure is free of other manures that need it badly and that will make good use of it. With the manure all cleaned out and plenty of dry earth in the barn, the sheep will seem clean and fresh, a suitable time for shearing and lambing when occasion demands.—Farm Progress.

EXPECT CROWDS AT BENDERSVILLE

County Meeting of Patriotic Orders in Mountain City Promises to be a Great Success. Business Meeting, Speaking and Parade.

Arrangements from almost all the Patriotic Orders Sons of America in Adams County have been received by the Bendersville lodge which acted as general invitations to attend their big celebration on that date Saturday evening. The town expects one of the largest crowds it has ever entertained. The meeting will be called to order at noon with their full membership with others will send delegations. Many of them will take along bands, at least four or five musical organizations being in the column. Dr. Jonnes G. Stoner will be the chief marshal of the parade and will be assisted by a number of competent aides. The line of march will be so arranged that all may see the demonstration conveniently.

The response of the lodges throughout the county has been very gratifying. Arendtsville, Littlestown, New Oxford, Gettysburg and Getty sburg are among the places which expect to send large delegations.

In the afternoon a business meeting will take place in Fruit Growers Hall. The parade will be held at five o'clock in the evening.

The speech making in the evening will occupy the theatre and will be in the hands of competent orators. United States Senator Boies Penrose has been invited to take part but his acceptance has not yet been received.

MORE PASSENGERS

Two More Charges for the Adams County Mail.

Western Maryland Officer Wilson placed two more train riders in jail Monday night. They were taken from the passenger train by the Western Maryland police and claimed a suburb of Baltimore as their home. They were brothers and gave their names as George and John Benson.

Don't Tease Cats.

The Chinese influence on interior decoration extends to the tasseled dwarf trees which, once almost prohibitively expensive, are now to be had at really popular prices, commencing at about $5 a tree for diminutive sizes, and orders that look as if they had been cut out of "Kewpie" garden. Stately oaks, sycamores, cedars, standing at least 30 inches high, are worth $25 and upward, and with a variety of branches and close foliage, they appear to have been cut from the forest and after and through the "wrong end" of a telescope.

To Seal Bottles.

Bottles may be securely sealed in the following way: Dissolve together a quarter of a pound of sealing wax, the same quantity of resin and a tablespoon of beeswax. When the mixture froths, add 1 fluid ounce of alcohol. As soon as each ingredient is melted, dip the tops of the corks into the hot mixture. It will completely exclude the air.

Civilization's Advance.

How timid and puny seem the old-time roar of the ocean, the crowing of roosters and the shouts of truck wagons when nowadays, as we linger in some quiet spot, we hear the hum of automobiles, telephone bells and street horns.

EDDIE PLANK IS WHITEWASH KING

Holds the Record for Shut-outs in the Americen League Few Have Passed the Half Century Figure. Welsh is Second.

Edward Cicero MacKinnon, of the Athletics, and Eddie Plank, of the Athletics, rank each other in another branch of baseball aside from that they operations fortunate enough to witness one or more games would be seeing a battle between the greatest whitewash pitchers in the National and American Leagues' staffs—Philadelphia Record.

MacKinnon has for several years been the kalsomine king of the senior league, but it was not until May of this year that Plank's friends had a right to announce that the veteran left-hander had to his credit more shut-outs than any other flinger in the junior organization.

When the season started Ed Walsh of the White Sox possessed the honor now owned by Plank, of most frequently keeping his adversaries away from the big end of the score. The Weaver had used the brush 56 times, while Plank, James Lathrop and Walsh ran a close second, each having more than a dozen to his credit.

Walter Johnson on July 1 of this year got into the Plank-Walsh class and to the half-century post in whitewashing. At the end of the campaign of 1910 he had to his credit 45 kalsomine jobs. May 29 the Idaho Flyer on his end his opponents on his front door more times, but he had to wait until August 6 to produce that fifteenth whitewashing, doing so July 4 against Detroit.

Plank, Walsh and Johnson are not so much danger of their records as their associates in their tight little whitewash society for many years to come. Only three other American League pitchers—"Chief" Bender and Jack Coombs, of Philadelphia, and Joe Wood, of Boston—have succeeded in keeping their opponents' scores down to the point in more games. Bender has shut out his rivals 33 times, Coombs 25 times and Wood 20 times.

Couldn't Stump Barney.

Barney Phelan, Father Healy's sexton, was confronted on the road by wit. One day, while he was serving at dinner, one of the guests said to him: "Barney, why is my smile placed between my mouth and my nose?" "Begorra, I dunno," replied Barney: "unless it's to keep your cuff from eating your corn."

Simplicity and Nobility.

Between simple and noble persons there is often found a quiet harmony; they recognize at sight and meet on common ground that the talents and skills they may choose to possess, namely, an eternally and spiritualness. —Emerson.

Dainty Pest of the Wild.

SUFFRAGISTS GET MANY FOLLOWERS

Gettysburg and County Workers Claim that Numerous Adherents are Coming to their Cause as Result of C mpaign.

Practically all of the speaking dates scheduled by the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage have been filled, and the campaign which will be conducted in this State by Miss Alice Paul and Miss Lucy Burns, assisted by a corps of speakers, will be opened in Gettysburg on Monday, August 11, when a meeting will be held in the Court House. Other meetings will be held in Hanover, York, Littlestown, Westminster, Taneytown, Emmitsburg, Frederick and Hagerstown.

Miss Paul, who is chairman of the Congressional Union, and Miss Burns, who is chairman of the Congressional Committee, have been in charge of the campaign in Maryland for several months, and have been assisted by Miss Mary Winsor, of Philadelphia, who is chairman of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association, and by Miss Elizabeth Kent, of Washington, who is chairman of the Congressional Union's Advisory Council. Miss Kent has been in charge of the campaign in Adams county, and has been assisted by Miss Mary Foulke, of Gettysburg, who is chairman of the Congressional Union's Gettysburg committee.

Miss Foulke, who is a granddaughter of Wm. Maxwell Wood, who was Surgeon General of the United States Army during the Civil War, has been a suffragist for many years, and has been active in the work in Gettysburg for the past two years. She has been assisted by Miss Mary Virginia Taylor, who is also a granddaughter of Dr. Wood, and by Miss Mary Virginia Wilson, who is a granddaughter of Dr. Samuel McCreary, who was a member of Congress from Kentucky during the Civil War.

Miss Foulke and her assistants have been very successful in securing members for the Congressional Union, and have also been successful in securing the co-operation of many men and women who are not members of the Union, but who are willing to help in the campaign for the passage of the Susan B. Anthony amendment to the Federal Constitution, which provides that the right of suffrage shall not be denied on account of sex.

Miss Paul and Miss Burns have been in charge of the campaign in Maryland since the latter part of April, and have been assisted by a corps of speakers, who have been sent into the various counties to hold meetings. Among the speakers who have been in the State are Miss Elsie Hill, of Connecticut, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Anne Martin, of Nevada, who is a member of the National Executive Committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; Miss Mabel Vernon, of Delaware, who is secretary of the Congressional Union; Miss Helen Ring Robinson, of Colorado, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Rose Winslow, of Baltimore, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Ida Darrow, of Washington, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Mary Ashton Rice, of New York, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Mary Gray Peck, of Colorado, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Mary Nolan, of Iowa, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Lavinia Dock, of New York, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Elizabeth Freeman, of Connecticut, who is a member of the Congressional Committee; Miss Elizabeth Kent, of Washington, who is chairman of the Advisory Council of the Congressional Union; Miss Mary Winsor, of Philadelphia, who is chairman of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage Association; Miss Mary Foulke, of Gettysburg, who is chairman of the Gettysburg committee of the Congressional Union; Miss Mary Virginia Taylor, of Gettysburg, who is assistant chairman of the Gettysburg committee of the Congressional Union; Miss Mary Virginia Wilson, of Gettysburg, who is assistant chairman of the Gettysburg committee of the Congressional Union

CROPS DAMAGED

Hail Visits Some Portions of the Township.

A hail storm visited some sections of the county late Thursday afternoon doing damage to corn and other crops. New Oxford, Littlestown, Cashtown and Fairfield, are the country thereabouts to have a heavy fall. The main fruit belts in the vicinity of Bendersville and Arendtsville did not suffer. Hanover had its worst storm in many years.

ONE KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

With his skull fractured, a deep cut above the eyes, his lip partly cut off a broken shoulder blade, and bruised and contusions all over the body, Daniel Lookenbill of Littlestown died at 3:50 Friday morning as the result of an automobile accident that occurred near Jefferson 6 o'clock Thursday evening at a point two miles south of Abbottstown on the Hanover turnpike.

At the time of the accident Mr. Lookenbill was returning from work at Hanover on his bicycle. There is a steep hill at Henry Brinkman's place, and at this point, while pedaling up the hill Mr. Lookenbill is said to have ridden on the left hand side of the hill which offers good riding while the right is covered with loose stone.

It appears that at the same time Henry Spangler, of Littlestown, was going towards Hanover in his automobile, traveling at about 15 or 18 miles an hour. Owing to the top of the hill being between them the two men were unable to see each other until the collision occurred on the crest.

As soon as he could stop the car Mr. Spangler went to Lookenbill's side and laid him down to the shade of the Tempest C. Miller, and from there Lookenbill was rushed to the York hospital where an operation was performed by Doctors Bacon and King, of the hospital staff, in an effort to relieve the pressure on the brain caused by the fracture.

Mr. Lookenbill was forty years of age. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Louisa Lookenbill, of Littlestown, and one son about twelve years of age. He is also survived by three brothers and sisters surviveo: Levi Lookenbill, living below York; Henry, Lewis, Jacob and Mrs. Lizzie Hoffman, Mrs. Henry Rauhestein and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, all living near Littlestown; George Lookenbill, of York; and another brother living in Carlisle.

ACCIDENT CHAPTER

Bodily Cut Arm, Washed Toes and Bumped Head.

C. G. Sheely, of New Oxford, bears an ugly wound in his left forearm, as the result of a fall from a wagon load of timber he was unloading at Hoffman's Corner, had three toes mashed when a wagon loaded with stone passed over one of his feet as he was drawing the brake.

Clair Reed, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Reed, of New Oxford, has a severe cut on the forehead above the left eye. The little fellow had a bolt under the axle of a wagon. It had been loose and he recently went bathing in the Conewago Creek where a bloodsucker fastened itself on the boil, resulting in the present infection.

PICTURE SAGGING

Must Do Something with Famous Lincoln Picture.

Just what the State Board of Public Grounds and Buildings will do with the Rothermel picture of "Getysburg," now sagging in the State flag room in the State Library, is a problem. The weight of the canvas has bulged it, and there is danger that it will pull away from the frame by its own weight. Attention was called to this some time ago, and it is thought that it is being the great picture in one of the big rooms in the Capitol, that it will be necessary to find a suitable place. The corridor on the first floor of the Capitol, used by the Adjutant General's department, has been suggested, but the light in the corridor is very bad and the beauties and detail of the picture could not be seen to the best advantage in that room. The suggestion was abandoned. It is the opinion that a place may be found for it in the rotunda near the old bottle flag cases.

Second Thoughts.

ALLEMAN AUTO BADLY WRECKED

L. M. Alleman, of Littlestown, Has New Car Damaged when he Collides with Car on Highway. One Man Hurt.

George A. Wagman, a contractor, of Hallstown, was slightly injured Thursday afternoon in a collision between an automobile which he was driving and one driven by L. M. Alleman, of Littlestown.

The accident occurred on the York road, at the home of William Neff. Alleman was going east toward York, while Wagman was coming out of the Seven Valleys road and was going south. There is a deep cut at the point of collision which prevented the other from seeing the accident. Wagman's car struck that of Alleman's in front, turning it completely around and running it into the bank.

Both machines were damaged, but neither one upset. The jar wrenched Alleman's New Auburn's machine, a new Kline car, had an axle broken, while Wagman, of Littlestown, was thrown against the steering wheel and his chest bruised.

MEDIATION MAY AVERT A BIG WAR

Germany Willing to Negotiate.

CZAR WAS DEFIANT

Declared Mobilization Could Not be Stopped.

Austrians Capture Belgrade After Hard Fighting.

HUNDREDS FALL IN BATTLE

London, July 31.—A dispatch received in Paris from Berlin states that Germany has decided to accept in principle mediation and enter into conversations with England, Russia and France regarding the possibility of averting a general war and thus ending the conflict between Austria and Servia.

An Exchange Telegraph company's dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Sergius Sazonoff, the Russian foreign minister, replied to the German note demanding an explanation of the Russian mobilization by saying that the mobilization of the Russian army was inevitable and could not be stopped.

Germany's act in giving Russia a time limit of twenty-four hours in which to answer her demands, is taken one more decisive point to the gravity critical European situation already may have an injurious and lastingly influence effect upon international situation.

Hon. Ernest Law, leader of the opposition, shares to the full the views I have expressed, and therefore proposes to postpone for the present the second reading of the bill, and with without prejudice to its future, in the hope that the government may still find the disposition the patriotism of all parties to contribute to the defense in our power, if not to avert at least to circumscribe the conflict which threatens the whole world."

Mr. Asquith's reference to all parties refining to the support of the government was received by all the members.

The government to postpone the Ulster matter for the present was reached at a conference of the party leaders here at the residence of Sir Edward Grey, and this announcement was made in a report that the differences as to Ulster had been settled.

TRUCE ON ULSTER BECAUSE CRISIS

CRISIS IS FORGOTTEN

All Parties Unite in Agreeing to Postpone Reading of Amending Measure.

London, July 31.—A truce between the contending political parties over the question of home rule in Ireland was virtually declared in the house of commons today, it was generally agreed to postpone the second reading of the amending bill owning to the gravity of the present situation in Europe, which may involve Great Britain in a gigantic contest war.

Premier Asquith called upon all parties to lay aside factional differences for the present and present a united front to the world. This suggestion was received by all with cheers of the house.

In his address Mr. Asquith said:

"We must under conditions of grave anxiety and abnormal responsibility in the experience of any one of us. The issues of peace and war of life and death are hanging and with us the risk of a cataclysm of which it is impossible to measure the extent and the horrors or the effects.

"In these circumstances it is of vital importance in the interests of the whole world that Great Britain should has no interests of its own directly at stake, should present a united front and be able to speak and to act with authority and with decision."

He was were to proceed with the amending bill we should inevitably—under the above circumstances—be in an artificial tone—be involved in acute controversies in the midst of domestic finances whose importance to our whole future it is impossible to over-

"I need not say more than that such a course would be fatal. It would may have an injurious and lastingly injurious effect upon international situation.

BIG BATTLE IS ON SOUTH OF BELGRADE

London, July 31.—A telegram received by the Servian legation says that the Austrians attempting to cross the Danube twenty miles east of Belgrade were repulsed by the Servians and that a big artillery engagement is in progress.

Another message received by the Servian minister in London says that the Servian troops successfully resisted the Austrian advance at Loznica, to the west of Belgrade.

Austrian and Servian troops are engaged in battle near Semendria, on the Danube, southeast of Belgrade.

Several hundreds have been killed in the fighting, the dispatches add. Another battle is in progress at Ratsch.

The actions from Shabatz, near Loznica had been anticipated, the Austro-Hungarian army was thought to be ready to cross the Save river into Servia in full force, two invading the kingdom and a third being left in reserve in the move in case of action by Montenegrin troops.

Belgrade Occupied.

Vienna, July 31.—Belgrade has fallen. The Austro-Hungarian war office announced today that the Servian capital was occupied on Wednesday.

The Austrian official report was preceded by a heavy bombardment. Austrian gunboats on the Danube and Save hundreds of shots into the city before the Austrian troops finally defeated the Servian soldiers constructing a pontoon bridge to allow the passage of the invading troops. This was necessary because the Servians had blown up the bridge connecting Servia and Austria.

Several of the public buildings were set on fire by the exploding shells, but the flames have been extinguished. The ancient Belgrade fortress was reduced to ruins.

Official reports indicate that there were few casualties among the troops, but a number of non-combatants were wounded. Several Austrian soldiers were killed by German sharpshooters in the passage of the river.

Withdrawing from the city under a heavy fire of the Austrians, the Servians fell back to the Avala, about three miles from the capital. The Austrian artillery was brought across the Danube and Save rivers and shelled the servian positions.

1000 Fall in Battle.

Berlin, July 31.—One thousand soldiers were killed in the fighting today between Austrian and Servian troops east of Shabatz, which is in North Austrian territory. The Servians suffered the heavier losses, the official report of King Peter's army were driven back across the Jadar river.

The Berlin Tageoblatt states that the Austrians lost the entire staff of the Austrian casualties were 300. The Austrians crossed the Jadar river after a long bombardment.

Today the Austrian troops have crossed the Drina river, the Tageoblatt says, and are now advancing rapidly.

Germany Buying Wheat.

Liverpool, July 31.—It was reported here that Germany had purchased twelve full cargoes of wheat for shipment at 39 shillings. All cargoes were destined rapidly at short advances. There was an urgent demand for corn.

Japan Ready to Aid England.

Tokio, July 31.—The liberal Shibun, a semi-official newspaper of Japan, declares that Japan will be backed Japan will give assistance to the British army.

SEAT OF THE WAR.

BRITISH ABANDON GUNBOATS

Crews in China to Strengthen Besieged Legations.

Hankow, China, July 31.—The British gunboats Cockchafer, Cricket and Kinshia, of the British China squadron, were deserted by their crews in the minority.

The crews removed the breech blocks of the guns, took away all the small arms ammunition obtainable and threw the remainder into the Yangtse-Kiang.

The three gunboats were tied to the bank of the river opposite the British consulate. The crews departed for Shanghai on the steamer Kut-Sang-Ho to Hsuk Ki-Ang.

It is understood that the British admiralty is similarly dismantling all of the small British gunboats in Chinese waters, sending their crews to Hong Kong and Shanghai to be used to defend those important possessions against a possible attack.

Germans Prepare For Attack.

Paris, Friday, July 31.—The German troops are massing on the frontier. The main preparations to proceed to the east and west of Metz, but the attack will be started from the sea by the British and four hundred thousand Russians of war to raise it should occur. The presence of the German battleships off Cuba is one of unusually will. Therefore, largely upon that American and Japanese fleets and forces will be required to operate.

Norfolk, Va., July 31.—The transport Hancock sailed for Guantanamo, Cuba, today with marines from the 1st force mobilized there for possible developments in Haiti.

LAY ASIDE MONEY FOR COUNTY WORK

Adams County Gets its Share of the State Money for Work on the Roads. Over Nine Thousand Comes to this District.

An allowance of $9770.15 has been made for state road work in this district which comprises Adams, Lancaster and York counties. Work is now in progress between Gettysburg and New Oxford.

The ten days that have passed since it was decided that the automobile license fund should be turned over to the state highway department for maintenance and repair of roads, have demonstrated that the amount of work necessary to put the highways in good shape far exceeds expectations. Nearly four thousand men have been laboring at top speed all over the state and while great improvement has been noticed in the condition of the roads, officials of the state highway department assert that it will be several weeks before a general idea can be gained of the vast amount of labor that is being done. The fiscal officers of the commonwealth after prolonged litigation, in which they were defeated, agreed to pay over to the state highway commissioner the automobile funds necessary to insure good roads throughout the state. The amount involved in the litigation was approximately $1,750,000, while $250,000 remained from the current portion of the 1913 funds.

In view of the laziness of the season and the vast amount of work to be done in filling up holes, cleaning out ditches, culverts and gutters and scraping up and rolling the highways, the state highway department has decided not to begin resurfacing on state highways until the general conditions of the roads have been improved. A fact not generally understood is that the automobile license money is the only fund available for repairing macadam or construction of state highways. There is an unexpended balance for the maintenance and repair of state aid highways and the state highway department has been working on these roads. The amount of state aid maintenance money now remaining is about $25,000.

From time to time additional authorizations will be made by the maintenance division for repairs on these roads. As many of the state aid highways the repairs are extensive, including excavation with bituminous material and a practical reconstruction of the road to secure a better and more lasting surface.

In the district comprising Adams, Lancaster and York counties $9,770.15 has been authorized for this year. In Butler township, more than two miles of macadam will be built in 1916, beginning at the Biglerville borough line and extending to the Arendtsville borough line took $2,604.66.

SUN AND GARDEN.

When planting the garden remember that the best and vigorous young plants should have a warm home where the moisture and sunlight can have the right of way. A high growing plant should not be under the sun rendering so that negative sunlight. Plants like peas, pole beans, tomatoes, etc., should be faced north and south so that the sun will be on both the south and lees of the plants when the sun is at its highest point.—Farm and Fireside.

EGGS BY PARCEL POST.

A System of Marketing That Offers Many Advantages to Producers.

For poorer shipments by parcel post after the thorough elimination of culls the eggs that remain should be carefully packed in a container of corrugated pasteboard, metal, wood or other suitable material. The postal requirements require the container to be so strong and well packed as to protect from the package and each egg in addition to be wrapped separately in at least a piece of paper or excelsior.

In packing eggs it is well to set the large end of the egg in a perpendicular to size and color and to keep for home use those which are irregular in shape, unusually long or thin shelled. Containers that have been badly stained by broken eggs should be discarded for new ones and the package wrapped so as to conceal the stains. Every effort should be made to deliver to all patrons a package in good condition on hands of the customers. The extra expense of doing this will be returned in increased trade greed.

Where there are shipments that the producer can arrange to make in quantities of 30 dozen or more Within the first and second zones of the parcel post system the rate amounts to 5 cents for the first pound and only 1 cent for each additional pound, which is hardly equal to weight about one and a half dozen eggs, and in addition to the actual postal weights of the wrapping and container, which will be about one pound. Eggs weigh between two and three pounds per dozen, according to the size of the hens. If another dozen eggs are included in the package the postage would not be more than 5 cents, or 4½ instead of 7 cents a dozen.

To the value of the eggs can be added the cost of the container and the wrapping. For the first zone this would be about 2 cents. With postage at 9 cents the producer receives for eggs in market two dozen eggs, or 9½ cents a dozen. This is a saving to the buyer. It is estimated that the marketing cost will be reduced 6 to 10 cents a dozen.

Where the container can be used over and over, as in the case of the rounc, be somewhat reduced. Large shipments should be packed in crates to fear trips, smaller ones (one to five dozen) in fiberboard cartons which reduces his customer to return the container. Fiberboard cartons are required for this is, of course, destructed from the bill for the next shipment.

Protective Wire Entrances.

Every hen should have some way entering henhouse, especially such as prevent her from entering when storms during the winter. A simple way to provide such protection is to buy with the exit and entrance of the hen is shown accompanying sketch. A triangular piece of wood is placed at each side of the entrance. The wire netting in the form was so that they would feed a morning engine and think as long as they have room to enter and leave the house. They will be kept from the storage capacity is whole colony of hens. Owls are one of the greatest possibilities of this animal underlying an agency may be entirely avoided by placing the wire mesh inside back.

STUFFING THE COW.

Some feeders regard the old cow as a receptacle into which to put all the bulk on one kind of treatment as to time. They feed so much grain that they would feed a dozen engine and think as long as they have room to enter and leave the house. They will be kept from the storage capacity is whole colony of hens. Owls are one of the greatest possibilities of this animal underlying an agency may be entirely avoided by placing the wire mesh inside back.

WILL PUBLISH CROP DAMAGE

State Department of Agriculture will Endeavor to Give Farmers Information of Value from All Parts of the State.

Efforts are to be made by the new bureau of statistics of the State Department of Agriculture in obtain first hand information as to the damage done to the crops of Pennsylvania by the pests and storms which have affected the farming districts this year. The plan was recently started of reforming data from each township for a monthly crop bulletin and it will be brought right down to date. First hand information is to be secured as to the acreage of staple crops injured and the effect of conditions. On wheat it is to be asked not only what the total damage was done by the Hessian fly and how much of last year's wheat is on hand in farmers' bins and barns, but what effect the freezing of the growing corn, the rains and the warmer out for seed will also be asked about and the prevalence of blight and bugs and diseases will be inquired into. The ravages of the army worm will furnish another list of questions by the bureau.

L. H. Wible, chief of the bureau, says that the effort is being made for the first time to get information from the men who actually raise the farmer when published. Now much of the information is obtained through system and it is the idea to cover the state so completely that the publication every branch of agricultural produce.

THE PARCEL POST.

The farmers are not making the best use possible of the parcel post, says a New York experienced fleet. They are getting over the business enterprises and not the cities, but they are not selling to all the people who could do more of this as time goes by. They are not making the most of new things very rapidly. Many of them are not yet in the habit of making use of the new system of marketing. Some, however, are doing a good business by parcels post and no doubt are building up connections which will be a good for them and for city people.—Farm and Fireside.

UTILITY OF THE SKUNK.

It Destroys Many Harmful Insect Pests.

The skunk stands among the most beneficial mammals in the United States that insects narrate to the farmer. It is the best known enemy of the cut worm, including the common army worm, the wheat head army worm and the fall army worm. It is also very destructive to small grains, corn and grasses and to many of some orchard pests to farmers.

Two kinds of tobacco worms, white and black, tomato and potato plants, are destroyed by the skunk, as are cabbage worms and cabbage loopers. These worms choose their diet from tobacco to tomatoes, with indefinability that they have spread over wide areas in the United States. The skunk's appetites for the worm is such that it will grub for them on the ground in great numbers to the destruction of many crops.

The white grub is also one for by the skunk and is destroyed in large the extraordinary growers generally to get rid of this pest. Cut worms, though in the upper search for the worm, are also destroyed by the skunk in few beetles. The skunk also eats many of the beetles that destroy the bugs, which feeds from the white grubs.

Skunks also destroy the bug grub pink grasshoppers, crickets, rickets, spiders moths, sweet potato beetles, Colorado potato beetles, flea beetles and rose. The animal is especially useful in destroying the two and nine spotted commonly called farm ladybugs, if a garden lots is overrun with grasshoppers where there there rats are skunks about it will destroy them if left undisturbed until practically all the rodents are destroyed.

Skunks are accused of destroying bees and honey, but investigation has so far failed to prove the charges to be true. If, it may, from the stings of bees it will not be difficult for the animal to kill many bees in a single night.

Growing Old by Degrees.

Once upon a time when a clergyman. Ten can remember the time when, in reading your favorite author, you were disgusted to find the last few words and more forty years old, and you wondered how he could be guilty of imposing nonsense to such an unconscionable length. Then, as you grew older, you found forty years to be the old age of a man, and you smiled and said, you thought that it was the youth of old age, and that later you met those whose youth ends and old age begins.

A Mystery of the Sea

By EUNICE BLAKE

The night was quite as dark as the night of Mid-Arthur, master of the brig Lucy, stood on the deck of his vessel, looking up to a sound that greatly distressed him. He thought he heard a child's voice crying. And he was sure that he was not sure that what he heard was not those cries, nothing within his ears that were positive and sought to be a friend of his imagination.

The cries were again, this time a little more distinct.

The Peruvian was coming southward from the Spanish Main to Boston and New York. The skipper and Mid-Arthur had been left several months behind. They should had previously been in port. Captain Mid-Arthur had no doubt but that he was the sole skipper of a near shave. Indeed, he was in the habit of having narrow escapes. Nevertheless he was approaching a bit of the South Seas, and that is the popularity of the waves.

Tuesday he was to say nearer to it; he gave orders to the helmsman to steer for the direction from which he was being thrown. The boson reported no hearing, but the captain's ears were tuned and strained. The sound of the bell was distinct. Mid-Arthur was sure of it. It was the same irregularity of the sea that had been the cause of the sinking of the waves. Mid-Arthur had been in the habit of having a bell hung from a mast, and they had always attributed the sound to the movement of the ship.

Time and he nothing more distressed others to go off his equanimity than the cry of a child. Mid-Arthur was not the boat or sea-sick something, so he was not the victim of nerves. He is not what one means to call to it. He is like a man who has been through all sorts of weather and has never known what it was to be afraid.

Mid-Arthur momentarily drew down that there was no such thing as a child in the sea, and he was sure of it. And the few men who were on deck with him had heard nothing. They would they did, but some of these had been in the habit of the sea, and if these knew little of navigation it necessity, they knew enough to be aware that he did not know that there were no such things in the waves of the Atlantic seas.

Mid-Arthur was an imperialist, a hard man to cope against. Might there be in the sea? Mid-Arthur was sure one rock resembling for centuries the Peruvian. But the Peruvian's navy sailed never to be heard from. There were those who believed that it was in vast an area?

Nevertheless, he were the cries there would be no hell long in waters. Always, he thought, a rock protected by a buoy it would be the bell.

Something like this was running in the mind of Mid-Arthur. Probably his was more keenly alive it than those of his men. He was the one on him rested the responsibility for the lives of the crew of the ship. There were one or two of the men who had families, and Mid-Arthur as situation of a bad they heard. One of these was a child. It was worth seeing it to drive the ship away from deep waters in the hope of a child's cry on to an area of surgery. Another, however, it was the ship that he had at once time gone down on that rock. Mid-Arthur was not one to send and thought out one spoke his mind to his men in anger.

As the sound of the rolling indistinctness of the cries continued to grow it having reached a maximum, it had to do everything but stop. Mid-Arthur felt it was heard no more. The sound had ceased. Mid-Arthur knew that this was initiated by the other hearing of the cries. He felt that it would be unfortunate as it had come and it was quite likely that it was a storm from the west, and it was quite likely that the sound of it had been relayed to him and did not originate in the sea. Mid-Arthur decided to turn and did so. He was not a man to change his mind to and the ship was soon on its course. Mid-Arthur was pulled down that it would be impossible for him to hear the cries. They were now and impressed from the ship's crew to the effect upon them than the child he had.

Moreover, speculation seldom upon the mind of Mid-Arthur. Mid-Arthur never troubled. He often listened to his opinions. Silence was his habit. He was a man of few words, and easy to speak to from his inferiors. He was a man of few words, and easy to speak to from his inferiors. He was a man of few words, and easy to speak to from his inferiors. He was a man of few words, and easy to speak to from his inferiors.

Mid-Arthur was the only man who was not in the habit of a child's.

And so it turned out. When a boat's crew stopped on the stranger's deck they found that the child had not lied long and left the skipper to swim, as the ship was headed about by the waves.

JAMES OOT

In Seventy Thomas Galloway, the newly elected dean and director of the New York state college of agriculture at Cornell university, has spent his entire life in the service of agriculture. He began his career as an insect in the Missouri State college and was for many years the head of the division of plant industry of the United States department of agriculture and since then has been assistant secretary of agriculture.

Dr. Galloway was born in 1863 in Hillsboro, Ill., his father, a native of Kentucky, having been one of the pioneer settlers in the state. After the civil war the Galloways moved to Columbia, the site of the Missouri State university. There Dr. Galloway's father may be said to have begun.

He began at once to specialize in plant pathology, a subject in which only one or two institutions in the United States were then doing any work. As one of the plant pathologists detailed to the United States department of agriculture he decided to pursue it would have interfered with these investigations, but when congress appropriated a small sum of money in 1887 for the study of plant diseases he became assistant pathologist in charge of the investigations. Dr. Galloway found four or five men working on the appropriation, which was only $5,000. When he went out of the department of plant industry nearly 2,000 men engaged in work that costs $1,000,000 annually.

In 1903 Dr. Galloway became assistant secretary of agriculture, a appointment which was recognized at the time as somewhat of a political significance. Here he again showed his fitness for work requiring executive and state experiment stations. Dr. Galloway, indeed, has always been devoted to bringing the department into closer touch with the. He is also a strong advocate of instructing by practical demonstration when ever possible, of doing directly to the farmer with his own problems.

pouses a conspicuous position in the house. He is one of the most prominent statesmens in that body and one of the ornaments of the state. Mr. Hay's home may is one of the best informed men on questions on military matters, having been on the committee almost continuously.

A native of Virginia, Mr. Hay was educated at the University of Pennsylvania and Washington and Lee university, Virginia, being graduated in the latter institution in 1885. In the same year he was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress. In 1896 he was returned to the house, a service house cousins for three terms.

HANOVER AGAIN SMOTHERS TEAM

Wanied—a pitcher, a few batters and a few runner or two. Gettysburg base ball team.

May this local being results and prevent a further disaster such as the last two which have befallen the Gettysburg nine at the hands of the Hanover nine ball team. The slaughter of last Thursday was repeated again on Saturday, this time by a 7 to 1 score on Nixon Field before a crowd comparatively estimated at 1200 people. The gate receipts were $230, a goodly portion of which was in the two paid admissions from several hundred women.

Of the seven runs which crossed the plate, five were earned, literally battered in by the heavy hitting. Hanover were scurrying rifles the balls which were knocked in every corner of the lot. Rohrbaugh, once the idol of Gettysburg's fans and now of sad memory, was the easiest sort of a proposition from the very start though few balls did not get over the plate. But from the pitcher's box until three outs had been scored off his delivery and the game was lost.

Bradshaw, having pitched fifteen innings against the Blue and Gray nine can and was touched up in lively fashion from the start. It was only when what little hope was left was completely shot down Hanover runners crossed the plate.

What few chances Gettysburg did get were pulled down unassisting. Hersh hit for two bases in the first inning was stuck at by Sauble from third base when he tried to stretch it. After Rohrbaugh struck out Sauble was stoke good until the ninth when Berson, Plank and Weimer all hit safely, Berson's single, a three base soon over, Jack Starry forcing Plank out at second and scoring on a passed out.

Hanover played the fastest sort of ball from start to finish and deserved to win for every reason. They batted when hits were needed and when and knew what to do when they got on bases. Capital fielding was displayed, accepting thirteen chances. Eline accepted eight at third, Bradshaw had a clean record at first with thirteen outs.

Then Hanover rosers came by train 354 strong, and brought a hundred or more additional rooters from Littlestown was out in force and it was, possibly, the largest crowd that Nixon Field ever held for a base ball game.

It was also the solicies crowd for which the management has ever made solice creating devices and rooted vigorously for their favorite. Littlestown, subbed by the mosecrew last Thursday, had little to say and it was decidedly Hanover all the way.

DON'T "HANG UP"

Receiver Should be at Hook until Call is Finished.

Since the United telephone exchange has been so equipped that Gettysburg subscribers are able to ring up, the operators have been considerably inconvenienced by people hanging up the receiver before they are through with a call. For instance, if your bell rings and you find it is some other member of the family, keep the receiver at the hook until they come. Just as soon as the receiver is placed on the hook it is a signal to the exchange that the conversation is at an end people are at once disconnected. It has been observed there has been many uncalled for complaints about being "cut off" too soon.

By JAMES WARE.

(W. N. U. Washington Correspondent.)

[Mr. Ware, a photographer of the American Press Association, accompanied Gen. Pershing's punitive expedition to Mexico from the beginning to the end. He was with Villa's army at Torreon and Chihuahua and witnessed the battle of Ojos Azules.]

IT'S all very well to laugh about it when you get back to the land of the free and see fifteen hundred miles to the interior of a country like Mexico with its endless troubles and danger on every side you are bound to be human. I know I was not. To be quite candid the thought uppermost in my mind every time when I went to "bed" was, "Will I wake up to see the breath or will — I wake up at all?" And there was a very good reason for these feelings of apprehension. There was I, lone American, with Villa's army far away from any hope of protection and without some of the outside world. Suppose word arrived that the American authorities were attacking Fort Bliss. Imagine what would happen to me! I knew it would be all up with me in the event I'd never see the white lights of Broadway again. My one comfort was the knowledge that I was remarkably well hidden, amongst 20,000 villainous-looking Mexicans, so my government was protecting the rest of the Canadian Dandies.

I say reasonably safe advisedly, for during my stay in the turbulent republic I saw that I'd employed my best brains and wits brought home to me more than once that the best exponent to grow swift ease with the burning of Rome's great library, on the battle, I arrived there when the federals were dynamiting a Zapatista nest in the American smphatizers were plinking off the Mexicans who were trying to blow up the international bridge. I watched the same thing off the Rio Grande, but Colonel Crane warned me not to "Pull leaks like some dutch if you do," he said. Finally he pleaded, persuasively, for me to "Come home to my own city,

Thought He Day Had Come.

Arrived on the Mexican side, I was met by fifteen mounted Mexicans much the worst for drink conducted in the raid on Nuevo Laredo. They were mounted on thoroughbreds in habiliments and gleefully manner, shouting off guns in the air in celebration of the federals' evacuation. They immediately surrounded me, mistook me, dressed as I was in an American army shirt and hat, to be an American soldier. It was a mighty uncomfortable moment. Yet to my surprise they allowed me to enter the city where I made known to my business. But my adventure was in store for me. It came when I went to the train to shoot about three miles out to take pictures of the destruction that had been wrought there.

As I was approaching one of the cross fortifications a Mexican scout ran by, very excited, on to give the commandant. I didn't know what they were about, standing there among the ruins of a ruined old house and lamenting my fate in not being in good and proper time of it

Arthur Fletcher, who plays the shortstop field for McGraw's Giants, is rapidly taking his place as one of the leading men in his position in the National League. Several years ago McGraw was severely criticized for keeping Fletcher in the game, but he persevered, and the result has certainly justified the means. Art is credited with the present pair of hands in the game, and once he gets them on the ball it's all over.

Lacrosse is Exciting Game.

What is the matter with lacrosse? It is easily and excitingly from the spectators' viewpoint, and it is not difficult to grasp a knowledge of the fine points of the game. Critics of the sport have alleged that it is brutal; but, while minor injuries are more or less frequent, the record of lacrosse in regard to serious accidents and fatalities is much cleaner than that of baseball, boxing, football or almost any other strenuous sport. Professionalism is charged by some Canadian critics with responsibility for the decline of the game, but baseball, soccer, hockey and other sports have survived and flourished under a professional regime. The facts of the matter seem to be that lacrosse has everything a game should have to enlist popular support, except publicity. If the newspapers took up lacrosse it would soon become popular.

Braves' Poor Percentage Explained.

The manager of the lowest percentage so far achieved by the Boston Braves has been explained at last. A critic of the critics had expected that club with Hamilton for inspiration and Evers for agitator to accomplish wonders and almost understood why it has fallen down. It's easily understood, however, according to Los Angeles of St. Louis. "Everybody expected to see a lot of hustle ball displayed by that club," says Magee. "Well, the inside ball is there all right, but it is so far inside that they can't get it out in time."

Does Raberiaan a Veteran.

Dave Robertson, the outfield find of the season, who is hitting like a fiend for the New York Giants at present, is not, as many have supposed, a meteoric arrival in the baseball firmament, but has been around some for the past three years by McGraw. Dary was first picked up by the Giants as a pitcher, but a football accident in college spoiled his pitching wing, and Mangay had to make him over into a fielder. Robertson was the unwilling accomplice of the Southern association last year.

Mack Has Indian Battery.

Connie Mack has an Indian battery in the incubator. If he ever gets it sprout it he will have a battery unique in the history of the Indians in baseball. Connie's young redskins are John Bender and Chief Bender, his pitcher; John, twenty, is a catcher. They are fellow members of Chief Bender. The tireless brothers played ball on the Carlisle Indian school and Flandrau school. Jay attracted Mack's attention and Mack got Chief Bender's brother, who is Boniface Bender's brother, who is Boniface Bender's brother, who is Boniface

THRESHERMEN TO GET SOME RELIEF

Adams County Men, who Organized Several Months ago, Secure Some Concessions from Provisions of Objectionable Laws.

The organization of Adams County Threshermen, effected several months ago with others throughout the state, to protest against the recently enacted laws prohibiting the operation on the roads, Highway Commissioner Taylor decided to suspend certain of the rules promulgated for these machines on the highways so that farmers and others interested in the harvesting of crops might not be inconvenienced by the rules which were said to be onerous.

The protests received by the State Highway Department concerning the law governing the operation of traction engines led Commissioner Bigelow to grant every possible request that might expedite the operation of these machines on the highways during the agricultural season.

To the end he authorized every contraction engineer with chains or other than rubber-shod by him to operate their machines on the highways during the rest of the year, pending the new legislature which will modify the above law.

It is the opinion of Commissioner Bigelow that the law should be so amended as to draw a distinction between the farmer's traction engine and the big tractor used to haul freight and heavy loads, since it is the latter class of machine which causes the greater damage to the highways.

Another step taken by the commissioner to assist the agricultural interests was the suspension of the rule governing the speed of traction engines so that those moving engines of more than 15 tons gross weight, used for agricultural purposes, can have them registered.

BRADSHAW RELEASED

"Lefty" Bradshaw was finally released by Manager Ira Plank on Wednesday evening as a member of the playing staff of the Gettysburg team. Bradshaw made an excellent record in games won during his short term and his release will be a matter of sincere regret to his many friends. No reflection on the young pitcher's work is made in giving him his release, the financial support received for the signing of Stair and Hoar necessitating the curtailment of some other place, and Bradshaw was the one to suffer.

Chambersburg is rather sore over Gettysburg's signing Stair and the Hagerstown of that place prophesies that he will be in the possession of the local management for only a short time.

FIRST EFFECT OF WAR FELT HERE

Sugar Goes up in Price at All Gettysburg Stores. Other Staple Articles Expected to be More Expensive. Wheat Remains Firm.

The first effect of the great European War to be felt in Gettysburg was felt manifest on Thursday when all the grocers in town announced a rise in the retail price of sugar from five to five and one half cents.

Sugar in the past two days has come up 20 cents per 100 pounds in the wholesale markets and the probabilities are that it will go much higher. Indications are that all products in any way needing shipping, such as coffee, canned goods, and the will, to some degree, affect American produced goods.

The wholesale prices will be reflected in the retail charges, and the local consumers will notice in their discomfort some of the lesser hardships occasioned by the great war.

Indeed, it is believed that most of the prices affected will be those on what might be considered luxuries.

Farmers in Adams county rather expect the price of grains to remain before the war is over. This morning's quotations at which it has remained for several days.

There is a more optimistic feeling among the grain exporters now and they look forward to a big movement in large volume of grain to European countries, particularly in the increased prices paid for grain.

The Philadelphia wholesale man states that the prices of nearly all commodities show an upward trend, some quite a few days coffee have advanced 5c per pound and the indications are that this was due to the fact that the bulk of the coffee is received in British ships.

In the foreign cheeses, the biggest shortage is Roquefort and the similar cheeses have advanced 50 per cent. in price. Swiss and other domestic cheese is now coming to this country in large volume and the supply in this country is available. It is claimed, however, that excellent American cheese is now on the market. The shortages of the foreign product will not be a serious handicap.

TWO ACCIDENTS

M. A. Hinkle, wife and little daughter, of near Bermudian, were driving along the road near Dillsburg when they were thrown in a heap in the road when one of the rear wheels came off the buggy. They escaped without a scratch.

A boy making a rest and laying some eggs on an apple tree was the unfortunate victim of the Reeder, of Latimore township, receiving a broken collar bone one day recently. He was engaged in the tree for the purpose of gather the eggs, slipped and fell to the ground, receiving a broken collar bone and a number of painful bruises.

Interesting Articles on European Situation for Times Readers.

The Gettysburg Times publishes articles on the European war, under the title "The Triple Alliance". It may be found on page three. To-morrow there will appear a timely article on "The Triple Entente". For several days we have been devoting considerable space on the third page to enlighten on the European situation. The Times will be continued while the controversy holds its pre-eminent place in the news.

KALE—ADAMS

At six o'clock Tuesday morning Walter C. Kale, of Hanover, and Miss Stella A. Adams, of McSherrystown, were married in St. Mary's church, McSherrystown, by Rev. Aug. Bender.

S. Henry Buehler and George Bender Fall and Expire. Mr. Buehler Dies on Porch and Mr. Shealer Falls Dead in Train.

S. HENRY BUEHLER

Falling over on the porch of his home on Stevens street shortly after 7 o'clock Wed. morning, Henry S. Buehler died in a few minutes from heart trouble. He was aged 67 years, 1 month and 11 days.

Mr. Buehler awoke shortly before two o'clock and complained to his wife of not feeling well. He rose, put on his clothes and walked out on the porch where he sat down on the front porch. Mr. Buehler meanwhile had asked a neighbor to summon a physician. After sitting on the porch for a short time Mr. Buehler got up on the steps in the house for a drink of water. He suddenly collapsed and fell to the floor where he died almost instantly. When the doctor arrived at once he was made to revive him but death had been almost immediate.

Mr. Buehler had been about town as usual on Tuesday, spoke of feeling unwell and he showed no signs of illness when he retired for the night.

Samuel Henry Buehler was a son of Conover E. and Julia A. Buehler and was born in Gettysburg, March 7th, 1847. He was a tanner and followed this trade for a number of years. He served a nine months' enlistment with the 200th Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers and was a member of General Stadly Post 3, and an enthusiastic G. A. R. man.

He leaves his wife, Louisa Allison Buehler, and the following children: Boehler, of East Middle street, who is now the last surviving member of the family; Mrs. Lewis Eckels, and Mrs. Boehler had two children, both of whom died.

Funeral Friday afternoon at two o'clock. Services at house. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

GEORGE SHEAFER

George A. Sheafer, of North Washington street, Baltimore, suddenly half past four o'clock Tuesday afternoon on a train near Highspire. Mr. Sheafer was 71 years old.

Mr. Sheafer was on his way to Baltimore from Mt. Holly Springs, where at Hampstead, with other passengers was forced to change cars and wait for a freight wreck in order to be transferred to another train. Mr. Sheafer, recently retired, was taken ill soon afterward and died on the train before it reached Highspire. The body was taken to Baltimore to the home of his son and a coroner's inquest held here for burial.

Mrs. Sheafer died on October 8 last. She leaves these children: Mrs. A. Hornbrecht, of St. Louis, Missouri; Mrs. Wm. Hoffman, of Philadelphia; George W. Sheafer of Bruce Sheafer and William Sheafer. Funeral notice later.

PETER S. BURGARD

Peter S. Burgard, formerly of near Littlestown, died at the home of his son at his home near York, from a complication of diseases, aged 61 years, 5 months and 11 days.

He is survived by his widow and six children; also by two brothers.

MANY TALL ONES

Adams County men who owns and resides on "Seldomseen" Fruit Farm, in the Liberty Valley, Mt. Pleasant Township, Cumberland County, Pa., Adamstown, Patton, Fortney, Hanover and York Present plans contemplate moving the machinery from the Shelton plant to the York plant. Machinery from the other mills will be moved gradually to York and to Hanover. This move is done to place the business on a more compact basis and to further reduce the cost of manufacture.

COUNCIL NEARER LIGHTING PLANT

Receive Report of Committee and Instruct Attorney to Draw Ordinances. Show Figure on Cost and Maint-nance of the Plant.

Town council took another step nearer the exertion of a municipal lighting system on Thursday evening when they approved the plans submitted by the light committee, instructed Attorney Keith to take the matter before the Public Service Commission, and instructed Borough Attorney Swope to draw up the ordinances necessary to make legal the action of council and that of the commission of the plant.

The light committee presented in detail bids which showed that their earlier estimates at the cost of a plant for the establishment of a complete system had not been too low. According to the bids which show the actual cost of erecting the plant and line with the 2300 volt wire, the figures were in. This provides for the voltage of a power house on the north end of town occupied by the fire engine house, 17 x 26, with concrete floor and roof of an engine room at $240; 300 poles at $150; wire, crossarms etc., $1685; generator $281; all necessary fixtures; belting, switchboard, regulator, brackets and $1,000 for labor. Attorney Keith's bill is $100. The total cost of operating the plant is $1250 a year. This includes the cost of coal and necessary repairs to the line can be secured at a 15% rate of interest according to their statement. George Hughes and George Bergner being willing to endorse the note. Other expenses will be oil for fuel, from $500 to $650 a year; salaries $1,000 and $1,150.

The committee, in its report, points out the present cost of light is $9,000 a year. If this amount is set aside for the plant a saving of $4,000 would be paid for, a balance of $2122.30 would be left in treasury, and a light plant would be on hand as an asset.

Electrical experts were present at the meeting of the committee's figures and told of similar plants being operated successfully in other towns.

Other Matters

Council did not like the idea of paying the cost of special police for some ball games and tabled a bill presented by Jacob Bream for $10 and bought that Hon. William J. Bryan would be a special speaker on the occasion of his visit here and that an extra officer then was a needless expense.

A request for sewer connection at the property of J. M. Kaufel, corner Lentze Square and Baltimore street, was tabled.

The matter of placing a concrete curb on the fourth block of Carlisle street was tabled for two weeks.

Council ordered abated a nuisance on Baltimore street, Augustus Langbaugh on York street where, it was said, matter was being drained to the public street.

Borough Attorney Swope presented a written opinion to council that there was no legal ground on which back license for 1914 could be collected from the saloonkeepers on this year's license.

Attorney Kitzmiller was given the work of collecting for curbs recently laid, he to be paid for the extra service at a five per cent. basis.

Borough Attorney Swope reported that the opening of Fourth street to meet Water street, extended, would necessitate taking the land of Leo Tipton, Charles Haar, Martin Winter, the Gettysburg Furniture Company, Charles Kappes and Lewis Barbehenn. At the Kappes property the council will bring the damages to a minimum; Mr. Tipton asks $700 which it regarded as fair, while Mr. Barbehenn asks $55 which in Mr. Swope's opinion is double the amount of actual damages. He advises condemnation proceedings. The other three owners will give their rights of way.

The committee was instructed to secure from the National Park Commission a right of way for sewer to accommodate the Y. M. C. A. property on South Stratton street. A notice to repair pavement was ordered sent Dr. O'Neal for his Baltimore street property.

Mr. Baughman asked for a weekly clean-up of the Square and was told that it was being done regularly every Saturday.

MANY OFFENDERS

Young Boy and McSherrystown Woman Held for Court.

Robert, rainor son of Charles McSherry, of McSherrystown, was arrested by Officer John L. Dougherty, on a charge of larceny as bailee of Charles Ackerman, of Mt. Pleasant, charging him with malicious mischief. A second warrant was issued charging the lad on oath of James Ackerman, of the same town, with like offense. A hearing was held before Squire W. H. Lilly, the defendant held under bail for the action of the grand jury. It is alleged that the lad took a horse belonging to Mr. Ackerman, and a buggy the property of James Troutman, from the stable of the National Hotel, and was seen unnessing both.

Mary Weaver, of McSherrystown, was arrested by Officer John L. Dougherty, on a charge of assault. Squire V. H. Lilly, charged on oath by Mrs. Mary Ann Weaver, of assault with assault and battery. After the hearing Justice Lilly held the defendant for action of the grand jury.

Harry Miller, of Hagerstown, was taken to jail in a wagon on Wednesday afternoon, charged with obtaining found him displaying obscene literature on the Square. Justice Wilson was in the act of making the arrest, the wagon being driven by a boy who had been in Gettysburg on business. This morning he was held under $500 bail for court.

Mr. Wilson placed two more trusty riders in jail Wednesday night, with the arrival of the Western Express.

NEWS FROM THOSE IN OTHER LANDS

Relatives of Gettysburg People Touring in Europe Send Word that they are Safe in Various Cities. Several Receive C-bbegrams.

Mrs. Norman S. Heindel, of Carlisle street, has received word from her sister, Mrs. O. T. Simon that she has arrived safely in London. Mr. and Mrs. Simon went abroad early in the summer to visit Sir and Lady Asger Hamerik at their home in Copenhagen, Denmark. Mrs. Simon was a schoolmate of Lady Hamerik whose husband is widely known as a composer.

A cablegram has been received from the Rev. J. T. Huddle, of Washington, telling of the safe arrival in Paris of Mrs. Huddle and himself. Mrs. Huddle is a sister of Dr. Walter D. O'Neal of Baltimore street, and the Misses Katie and Annie O'Neal of Carlisle street. They sailed early in the summer for a trip of several months through the countries of Europe and Northern Africa and are now likely make arrangements to return.

Mrs. Frances Walter and Miss Cornelia Walter, of Gettysburg have been spending the past few years in Europe. The last word received from them was a letter sent from Berlin, Germany, in which Mrs. Walter stated that her daughter and herself would start for a trip to Switzerland, that she wished to accompany her but was unable to do so. Switzerland was what would likely follow in a few days. Switzerland is the last country heard of, and the letter, it is likely that Mrs. Walter and Miss Walter are both in Switzerland at the present time.

The last word received from Prof. B. F. Bittinger, instructor in modern languages at Gettysburg College, was a card written from Berlin some ago in which he stated that he was going to Paris. Prof. Bittinger, Gettysburg had spent a month or more in Spain. He has traveled frequently in Europe and is familiar with conditions with conditions there.

Rev. C. H. Bailey, a recent graduate of both College and Seminary, arrived in Germany before the declaration of war, and has been recently returned from Germany. He left that country when he found the most trouble brewing and now congratulates himself upon his timely departure from there.

THROWN FROM WAGONS

John Boyer, tenant on the Lewis Hoffman farm near Bonneauville, a number of bruises about the shoulders and legs when he was caught in the wheel of his wagon on the road to Harrisburg Road near Rock Creek Schoolhouse. The wagon was loaded with wheat and was being driven by Mr. Boyer when the accident occurred. Mr. Boyer was thrown out of the wagon. The animal was caught about a mile further on. Mr. Boyer and Eugene Topper who happened along in an automobile found the wagon somewhat damaged. Mr. Boyer was not seriously hurt.

Mrs. Martin Fetty and a companion, of near New Chester, were returning from the Fair when their horse took fright near the East Berlin bridge, and ran away. The horse ran away. Both men were thrown from the buggy and both were somewhat injured. The animal frightened by the frightened animal Neither man was injured in the fall but the horse ran for a mile before it found the next evening near New Chester, standing quietly between two trees.

New Member on State's Gettysburg Commission Named.

RUSSIA HAS ALL TO GAIN BY WAR WHICH IMPERILS ENGLAND'S POWER

(From the New York World.)

GREAT BRITAIN and the Austria of the triple alliance, perilous situation though it is, their chief purpose in this part of nations, affairs has on one side at least been accomplished already. They have bound together in the most close or the triple alliance.

It is now a war of giants. They will fight to the death unless all signs fail. It will be the most stupendous war mankind has ever known. The nation is staggered in contemplation by its predicted possibilities in carnage, devastation, in ruin of commerce and international relations, in the bloody wounds of war which a century may not heal.

Little Servia is but slight of. She is but a cyclone in the grass, a storm upon the churchyard. Her scourge of the past, her present and the present, are of small importance to this heretofore struggle of titanic forces.

We shall not think of casualties or dead and see if the contagion of the great war can spread over Europe, falling its torch in the nations of the triple alliance and the triple entente. But true vital questions will be ever uppermost in the minds of the statesmen who all at the helm of government in the capitals of St. Petersburg, London, Vienna, Berlin, Paris and Rome determine the fate of these different states. They have the heritage of the past to guide them. The wise counsels left by statesmen long since dead and gone, but whose fame is in the grocery and here to guide, who learned it by sorrow and by defeat. They have the future in their minds and portents that are coming and slowly, little by little, now a gain, now a loss. The objective points of the war the same.

Two Vital Questions.

The two vital questions of this war will be:

The possibility of Russia becoming the powerful one she can be in the statesmanship and stay there.

The possibility of England becoming so weakened that she can no longer adequately guard her interests as set forth through the Mediterranean sea.

These are questions both of them other than either the triple alliance or the triple entente. They are respectively, as primary motives, for the formation of both of the great political and national powers. They will inevitably become paramount in the course of the war by the consequences of its progress.

The Struggle of Germany and Austria against Russia whatever an American or Russia may get from her defeats of Russia or the Slav in the Balkans or the war in Europe. But the supremacy of the Slav means ascendancy over the Turk that the mighty Slav nation of the north will control, not in a huge land ready for flight to the sea, shall have freedom to come and go to Constantinople and from Hence, through the Dardanelles and the Aegean sea, to Asia.

The Mediterranean.

And the supremacy of the Teuton—either Austria or Germany—means nothing more or less than that Austria shall lose her liberty of passage through the Mediterranean.

Russia must needs go through the Black sea and the Dardanelles in order to her Asiatic possessions. Big Bend must always be free passage through the Mediterranean in order to be able to defend her coasts.

Austria and Germany may fight together indefinitely, one power pressed or another, but what they want finally is that Russia shall be control of the Mediterranean sea. Germany has no colony save in her own navy. With no commerce feed, second only to that of mighty England, Germany has no Mediterranean port. Austria has the ports of Trieste and of Fiume upon the Adriatic, as arm of the Mediterranean sea. Could the two there be a power prevail in this war they could battle on Austria's best ports would be to her from all ports of the world through the Suez canal and the Mediterranean, from Egypt, or even from Smyrna, or Asia Minor, from Asia Minor, from Arabia, from Persia, from Africa, from Zanzibar, from Zealand and from India.

England raises in her own land of Great Britain but a small part of the food she needs daily to put upon her table. It could be aided indefinitely. With it and with nothing more her people would soon starve to death. She is practically the only country on earth so dependent. She gets most of her food through the Mediterranean sea. Austria and Germany are fighting in order to do her best of any pillow. It is Russland's universale point. The Antichrist is but of power. He is there, by striking her there, give her the world of death.

One must go back to the earth given to the Berlin congress of 1878 to find the foundation stone upon which is built the present triple alliance and triple entente.

In Europe today. That congress was rolled because Russia had been victorious over the Turk for more than a year and was propitious to raise Constantinople and Asia Minor. England was at that time the power which forced Russia to the end. It was well to augment Russia's power as to disturb the balance of power as was then virtually annihilating the Turkish empire in Europe, and Asia Minor determined that it should not be.

Britain's fleet passed through the Dardanelles and anchored in view of Constantinople and in view of the Russians. Negotiations were then begun between Russia and Great Britain at the congress of Berlin was the result. Its terms were dictated by Great Britain and Russia.

Italy—The payment of a war indemnity in Russia for victory which Russia won in the war of 1877-78.

Second—The occupation of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria, which she has held ever since under a mandate under the terms which then states hereof.

Third—The occupation of Servia and Montenegro as independent states.

The treaty of the congress broken by Austria when in 1908 she seized Bosnia and Herzegovina, which the feeble hands of Turkey and made them her own. It was broken by Austria when the latter ratified his sword in St. Petersburg and declared that the Germany would stand by Austria in the event of war.

Will it now be broken by Russia by annihilating Austria and Germany by unanimous? Will England be driven from the Mediterranean sea and her own ports at the Mediterranean in the event of Austria's defeat? Will she be to Constantinople? This war will answer these questions, in part, certainly perhaps in full.

The Triple Alliance.

The triple alliance was formed in 1882 between Austria-Hungary, Germany and Italy. Its object was declared to checking the encroachments of Russia and France. By the terms of the treaty three powers were bound to support one another in case of unprovoked attack; its terms were made more definite in 1887 and renewed for a period of years never been divulged. The alliance was renewed in 1891, 1896 and 1902. It consisted of its last renewal extended to the year 1914. It was thought at the time to believe that it has again been renewed for a period of years. There are indications that Italy feels that she has been unfairly treated even from the triple alliance. Secret negotiations are said to have been carried on her with the triple entente. She has been said to have demanded of Austria and Germany

Italia Irredenta's most famous prime minister, who died in 1858, still lives in the hearts of countrymen at present. At that time Mastermichi was the leader of the Italia irredenta league. Italia irredenta was concerned. Italy was torn by internal dissensions, and Austria, as the representative of the hated city of Venice as well as its own provinces, had dominated Italy by close to Austria and to Trieste. Austria, Hungary, Dalmatia and Montenegro was the father of both Victor Emmanuel and Garibaldi, uniting to spread ruin and devastation in Servia if Austria's ultimatum is not thereto. Italy will forsake the triple alliance and join the triple entente if will bring it to pass.

Hungarian Women Are the Bosses.

From the thirteen cities to the nearest powerful government in Europe, the Austrian woman is one of respect and equality. She is not a slave to her husband, and all the slavery which the men of Europe put upon her, she, who has full financial control. In the up the throne of Austria-Hungary is more or a political move without distinction of sex and rank.

EUROPEAN WAR CHESTS. AMERICAN RESOURCES.

The following figures show the relative war chests of the nations of the war zone and the United States. The countries which are involved in the war are underscored:

The United States treasury's gold reserve is $1,500,000,000, which is the largest in the world. Of this amount is yielded as follows: General fund, $61,-000,000; redemption fund, $30,000,000; $1,200,000; greenback reserve fund, $50,-000,000.

Russia—Gold reserve, $1,500,000,000; silver, $500,000,000; paper, $1,000,000,000; total, $3,000,000,000. The Russian United States account to quite the same.

Germany—The official statement shows that the Berlin government has in its treasury $120,000,000 in addition to a gold reserve of $357,750,000 and $1,000,000,000 in the treasuries of the Empire's various states, amounting to $62,500,000. Prussia alone has $250,000,000 in gold and a gold reserve amounting to $50,000,000. Bavaria has $50,000,000 in gold and a gold reserve of $10,000,000. Saxony has a reserve of $25,000,000. Wurtemberg has $10,000,000 in gold. Baden has $5,000,000 in gold, according to the office of the director of the Imperial Bank of Germany. The gold reserve of Germany has been increased by the heavy exportations from the United States.

ROUTE IS FIXED FOR ALL TIME

Lincoln Highway through Coatsville to Philadelphia will Remain as now Marked and President Wilson's Request is Refused.

The route of the Lincoln Highway from coast to coast through Gettysburg, has been fixed for all time and no change will be made.

In his reply to President Woodrow Wilson's request that the Lincoln Highway be extended from Philadelphia to Gettysburg and from there through Frederick to Gettysburg, President Henry B. Joy, president of the Lincoln Highway association, Detroit, Michigan, makes this very plain. From different sources it was gathered some time ago that the leaders of this patriotic undertaking were opposed to the plan. Mr. Joy's letter is the answer to President Wilson's letter, and it is not that this was learned definitely. President Wilson's letter is as follows, and Mr. Joy's letter is under date of July 28.

The chance of route urged by the President, as it can be through Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Gettysburg, would necessitate, of course the leneth of route by 172 miles between New York and San Francisco. One of the results would be delay in answering Mr. Wilson's request, as it would necessitate a call of the counties and cities lying between Philadelphia and Gettysburg, the latter state.

The answer says that the "work of the Lincoln Highway association has progressed so favorably that there seems no possibility of change in the route Way any section of its route should be changed or marked local to a very great extent reasons. Especially is such the case between Philadelphia and Gettysburg. There, in the counties traversed, and also in the cities of Lancaster, York, Gettysburg, Columbia, Downingstown, etc., etc., the splendid adoption by the local authorities of the Lincoln Highway and the marking thereof and the betterments which have been made in the roads, the financial means and energies of those communities, therefore, that we do not see association is able to extend.

"The association is to the shortest, most direct and practicable route consistant with the topography of the country from New York on the Atlantic to San Francisco on the Pacific, and to change the route in this principle and extend its length by devious windings from city to city, or from town to town, as the case may be, would insure its failure as a permanent highway. Therefore, it is not within the power of our association to extend its mileage unnecessarily and to actually adopted route."

BIG BALD EAGLE

John W. Epley, of Round Top, on Monday brought to town the finest specimen of bald eagle seen in this vicinity for a long time. The bird measured five feet from tip to tip of wings and weighed about fifteen. Epley found it devouring a young pig while he was out on the Taneytown Road Sunday afternoon and secured a shot gun from Henry Swartz living near. The bird was shot as it rose in the air and then killed with clubs. Mr. Epley is a brother of George W Christman assistant to him.

A SINGULAR LETTER

We don't know how many cases have occurred where one parent has given a gifted son of their inheritances by relatives, grandsires or ancestors, but it can be quite a number of cases, we dare say, on record. When we remember what a temptation it is to spend and the manner of unscrupulous persons in the world, we wonder that there are not more such cases.

When I was in the high school I had a schoolmate named Ben Hubbard, of Hazel Mountain. He belonged to a family that, like my own, was considered very poor. Indeed, when I went to the high school I was the only boy in my class and other expenditure I could make. But nevertheless Ben and I were ambitious at the high school and did our best and earned the usual prizes.

After leaving college I studied law and in time put out my shingle as an attorney. I had not been practicing long before I received by mail a copy of a newspaper containing a marked article on an executive gift. After locating the article I was much surprised to find myself exactly on the ground for the case of the donor and was mentioned by name. The article was on the day's doings of the manufacturers banquet. The donor was a manufacturer, quite a rich and world known, but formerly very poor. This is the way the article read: "There was nothing in it that I could not have done myself, and it was in a woman's hand, but it was signed by a name that I did not remember it. I was addressed as the attorney of the city, and I looked all over the wrapper, but saw nothing that would give me a clue to the party sending the way it came to me, was entirely.

A few days later I concluded to read the book, hoping that there might be something in the text that would aid me in ascertaining who the party was. I opened and saw my own name written in the fly leaf. I was surprised and it took me a little back myself mark making the word "gift" in the article I had read on the next page the word "donor" was written in the book. It seems to look as though I was on the track of something. I was puzzled to find out, but could not for another marked word. It was "old." The next was "Ben." I was astonished. I looked at once for "our dear old school" meant nothing to me. I was not acquainted. All I came to the word "mate."

Then I began to put two and two together. My mind at once turned back to my boyhood days. I had been known by friends among them and could not ask me my such mysterious question. I had no one to whom I could refer. The following sentence: "I need both I and you to make it a success." While we eager to learn who was my benefactor and why he chose me. I was back of the book and examined it from the end to the beginning. I found letters, not words, underscored. The first was "I," the next was "N," the next an "O," the next an "E." Then I knew that there was neither the letters backward and forward. I found the word "INONE" in order. When I came to the "I" I no longer had any doubt of my benefactor. Four letters more, read also to reverse order gave "Mansfield." I had found the name of my benefactor.

Could the communication come from my old chum Hazel Mansfield? I looked at the book. The date was 1870. Long enough, it was an "if." I was over the years rapidly, coming to "1" "2" "3," "4," "5," "6."

Having discovered my correspondent it was now proper to write him. I had had need of a friend and I began to "Dear Ben." I was about to write "Dear Ben," but I had left "d." I began to write "Dear Ben," but I had left "d." I began to write "Dear Ben," but I had left "d." I began

MOVES ON WAR CHESSBOARD AS MAPPED OUT BY OUR EXPERTS

Eyes of France on Lost Provinces—Italy to Fight the Balkans.

MILITARY experts in Washington are the fountain on the probable scope of a war in Europe. They have given a synopsis of the aspects quicken is given.

There will be a short months of conflict between the opposing forces instead of one or two should all the powers become involved. From the Balkans to the Baltic sea, from Holland to Absent-Lorraine, all Europe will be ablaze.

Each of the powers that may be drawn into such a general conflict will seek to utilize the means at hand in the opposing movement of its soldiers. The fastest fleet of warships and the most modern rifles will be used. There will be no lack of ammunition. Nor will the lethal firearm which has perfected within the last few years be overlooked.

war of the world if the present South Slav and Austro-Hungarian conflict is to develop into a general conflict in which the Triple Entente and the Triple Alliance are involved.

Two months is speculation in diplomatic circles, even though actual fighting on the could may play in the impending crisis.

Treaty stipulations provides at the Triple Alliance, Italy is not expected to should be attentively settled. It "shall for the said cases be first considered by reserve and of war of all nations," and "shall come to the second per shall exercise right of war in exercised nor may be hostilities, nor be considered while it."

It is suggested that a large part of Italy's summer army would through Switzerland to Panama if a general European conflict filled the Mediterranean with fighting craft.

Hatred of Germans

The disunity of eastern Austria be a hazard to Save and Mediterranean Austria-Hungary. Italy is not in the war, and commercial activities might be more and more confined to the parties to the conflict defined more sharply, thereby the commodities to be handled in contraband of war. While the vessels of Italy and the Triple Alliance may use the canal freely, entrance to the Suez canal may be denied to the strictest neutrality of the waterway. Thus the vessels of Italy may be made with the most possible delay and with only such cargo as they may result from the necessities of the service. An belligerent vessels may or disembark troops munitions of war in the Suez canal zone. It is not to accept in case of accidental hindrance and the transit of the canal by the transit shall be resumed with all possible dispatch.

The treaty provisions prohibiting any act of hostility in the Suez canal or the war vessel from exercising the right of search in the canal waterway, is interpreted through the waterway, and the provision that there shall be no acts of hostility within three marine miles of either terminal.

What may happen to vessels carrying the contraband of war in the canal is a matter of their own affair. War vessels may not remain in the canal or its roadsteads for longer than twenty-four hours, and the treaty stipulates that "in cases of non-observance and in all degree within twenty-four hours from the departure of a vessel of war of the other belligerent."

Hands Off, Our Policy.

In the view of administration officials in Washington an necessity exists at present for any action by the United States government with regard to the war in Europe. According to statesmen in the highest quarters the position of the government is that it is to be not a matter of maritime interest. American citizens are not likely to be one interested and that the president for a proclamation of neutrality would not affect means one of the European powers with a view and that look out arms against Austria

If at any time it is necessary to issue a proclamation of neutrality it will follow the lines of that issued in 1911, when Italy and Turkey fought over Tripoli, "announcing the purpose of administration absolute neutrality, the proclamation will admit all American citizens and residents within the United States to the benefit of the laws and rules governing the conduct of neutrals in time of foreign wars, and a formal warning will be given that persons who may misconduct themselves will be subject to strict enforcement of penalties provided by statutes or law."

All American citizens who undertake to transport contraband of war or who in contribution of the United States will be warned that they can in no sense obtain any protection from the United States government against the penalties which may be imposed by belligerent powers.

American citizens will be informed that they are forbidden while within the jurisdiction of the United States to accept service or to enlist in the military or naval service of any foreign belligerents, transport soldiers or to take a blockade into the service of the land or hostile capture.

What Mobilization Means

The various terms of "mobilization" means something very different from the conception of the term as generally which the word is known to American. Europe has always had large armaments at their armories and the time for of periods was during the year for mobilization means for training and movements to the front.

When a mobilization is ordered in a thoroughly organized country all the necessary German soldiers are in this country to receive the movement the order to proceed to their home. Now, all this conception has, even though extensively owned, are immediately transferred to military service recommended. Railroads, telephone and telegraph, are put under the sway of government.

Word of the mobilization is flashed to every township office and every automobile and to every telephone instrument. Couriers in automobiles and on motorcycles rush through every street, and long before the setting of the sun the posting bulletins in every conspicuous place announcing mobilization is filed. The their regiments before a certain hour, the destination of which is also named, and mobilization order has been flashed.

Instant Response.

Every man called to the colors as soon as he hears his order; the plough is left in the furrow, the customers run out of the counter; hammers are left unfinished in the anvil, the meal on the table for ordinary duty rushes, in the utmost promptitude, for a man's life to him to his regiment, whether its headquarters be a few miles away or a hundred, or five hundred. The reservists do not even wait for transportation. Those are clothing, equipment and food for all of them in the local depots in storage warehouses, always ready for the call. Each man has with the insides often buttons and confidence.

Then there is the question of getting tickets and passes, train soldiers may be had for the asking. They are the occasion which duty takes them. All railroad and steamship companies' passenger schedules are abandoned. The transportation of troops is the important thing, and it is done quickly. Parlor cars and sleeping cars are not even looked upon with the reservists then workman's guidelines.

Benefits to Us From War.

The Baltimore Sun says:

"A great war in Europe will enable the United States an opportunity of unending the post of world banker by supplying capital freely to countries and individuals in all parts of the globe who need it and can provide the required security. Should the American people take advantage of the golden opportunity afforded them by the outbreak of war, it will mark a long distinguished forward progress for the United States."

TEAM BACK IN OLD TIME FORM

Wins Fifth Game of the Series with Hanover, Two Double Plays and Stain's Pitching Feature, Several Narrow Escapes.

Did they come back? They did! Playing the kind of game which they had developed earlier in the season and which they have always capable, the Gettysburg base ball team defeated the Hanover team in the fifth of the series with Hanover by the score of 3 to 2. A large number of the fans, including the sons, the New York County and nobly voiced their appreciation of the fine work of the Gettysburg players showed that they were strain back to form and ready for the conquests.

Stair, lately of Hagerstown, and now signed by Gettysburg for the remainder of the season was in the box for the locals and he pitched a good game from start to finish. In both the seventh and eighth innings Hanover had men on third, but Stair settled down to Stain's clever work and retired the side in order. The fact that here is the cause to which many fans attribute the disasters of the past few weeks.

They claim that up to Saturday, Gettysburg never had a pitcher on whom dependence could be placed—that Harbaugh and Stain were very fortunate and that, when the opponents hit the ball one was to pieces, the team realized there was no hope of winning.

Let's return to Saturday's game. It started badly for Gettysburg. In the second inning Hanover had a run on a pass, took third when Kessler's pressure bounded false and beat Small's throw to the plate. Hanover That added Hanover's appearance at home plate. Gettysburg secured a lead in decision in this inning when Noman Stain, who had hit safely, stole second, advanced to third on Oyler's hit scored on a long fly to the outfield by Stahly. Umpire Lawrence Hanover Starry left the base before the ball was caught and the run did not count.

It was not until the sixth that Gettysburg scored. Stair led off with a hit. Price, who was playing third, got four balls and Plank sacrificed both a base. John Braun hit a grounder through Elias at third and both scored, Braun going to second, and stealing third when Small at home plate dropped the ball. Small threw to first for Elias to catch him and Braun scored with what proved to be the winning run. Stair and Ault, the latter batting out with hits but Norman Starry was put out and the inning was the one day over.

In Hanover's half of the sixth Hanman filed to Price who doubled his man at third after he had reached there on a long fly to Stahly. Kessler in the seventh Hanover was danger. Stair hit Kessler on the arm filled with and a man hit by pitched ball. No one was out but Diehl hunched a bat one to Price, retired the side. The next man was an easy out.

The ninth was the most exciting period of a game filled with tense moments. Hanover, by a combination, got out a two base hit, Small got a pass, and Schenkel was safe on a fielder's choice, filling the bases. No one out. Diehl batted along the left field line and Ault, who had just followed the ball and allowed it to pass him. Diehl was out on a high one to Oyler, Enick tried to score from third on the play and was thrown. Shelly fell and touched him as he passed the plate. Hanover went to Jack Starry and the game was over.

All interested in the success of the team are pleased with the showing in form, are willing to forget past offenses, congratulate them over Saturday's victory and hope for more of the early season stuff during the coming weeks.

FIRE DESTROYS COUNTRY BARNS

Lightning Strikes on Two Farms and Three Barns with All of the Season's Crops are Burned. Both Fires Near New Chester.

Three barns, several implement sheds and a number of outbuildings make up a smouldering mass of ruins on the farms of New Chester on Monday as the result of an electrical storm which passed over that section Sunday evening. Two barns on the farm of Joseph Holtz, of New Oxford, burned to the ground, while a third barn on the farm of William Dicks was damaged by fire, which is made a reflection which could be seen for miles around.

The bank barn on the Holtz farm, tenanted by George Young, was the first to be struck. A son of Mr. Young hurried to the scene from a nearby church where he had been attending services and with several neighbors succeeded in getting out all the stock. From this barn the flames spread to an old one nearby which was used for storing wagons and machinery. This also burned together with the contents of the implement sheds.

Some of the machinery was destroyed together with 800 bushels of corn, 1000 bushels of wheat, 100 tons or 70 tons of hay. The house was saved with difficulty.

Soon after the fire at the Holtz farm was discovered a bolt of lightning entered the barn on the farm between Hampton and New Chester owned and occupied by William Dicks. The building, together with all the crops of the season, with the exception of stock was gotten out.

SEVEN BUILDINGS ARE DESTROYED

Large Barrel Factory, Creamery and Other Buildings at Orrtanna Make Largest Fire that Section Has Had in Long Time.

In the most disastrous blaze the western end of the county has had for many years seven buildings at Orrtanna were destroyed shortly before midnight Thursday, entailing a loss estimated at about $50,000, none of which is covered by insurance. The buildings destroyed included:

Barrel factory of S. M. Baumgardner, stocked with five carloads of newly made barrels, ready for immediate use in handling this year's apple crop. Machinery and equipment destroyed.

Automobile garage of Albert Kready. Contents saved.

Building of Samuel Baumgardner together with all the contents including thresher, hay packer and fodder shredder, the threshers being a new machine.

Insurance was carried on all the buildings, Grant Funk having association in the Gettysburg Mutual Company and the remainder in the Harrisburg and Liberty & Independents companies.

The fire was discovered in the barrel factory of S. M. Baumgardner and when first seen was confined largely to the part of the building in which the barrel making machinery was located. A large store in the portion of the structure was used for heating the barrels when the hoops were to be placed on them and the stove had been very hot a short time before the men quit work about five o'clock in the evening. It is generally supposed that this caused the ignition of shavings and that the disastrous blaze resulted therefrom.

Next morning, it was stated, however, that persons had been near the factory late in the evening, before the first and that there was no indication of fire at this time, so that the overheated stove theory would not hold good. Others say that they detected smoke in that vicinity for an hour or more before the fire.

With the large quantity of dry lumber in the building and the five carloads of already packed barrels the factory burned with terrifying rapidity. The alarm was old and almost entirely of frame construction and made a blaze which could be seen for many miles and was being drawn by the score from Gettysburg while some came from Hanover and other towns. The building was doomed when the fire was discovered and from it the flames spread to the big creamery of H. F. Starner nearby.

Mr. and Mr. Starner worked vigorously with their friends to get out some of the machinery but the flames drove them back. Mrs. Starner had one hand burned in endeavoring to get out a milk can and Mr. Baumgardner also suffers from a scorched hand as the result of his work at the fire. George Harring, one of the large Fairfield delegation of fire fighters, was struck by a falling ladder and had his right arm broken between the wrist and elbow.

From the creamery the blaze communicated with the Grant Blacksmith shop and it was soon in ruins. Albert Kready's automobile garage next took fire. Mr. Kready's automobile was in Hanover at the time but he succeeded in getting out his gasoline tank and other equipment. The building occupied by Nicholas Bisenacker to store phosphate was a mass of flames in a few minutes while Mr. Baumgardner's new threshing outfit added to the general conflagration. Clement Wolford's stable was the last building to take fire and when it crumbled all danger ceased.

All through the disastrous blaze the residents of Orrtanna and other towns, as well as people from the surrounding countryside, worked vigorously to arrest the progress of the flames but without avail. They were successful toward the end, however, in saving other nearby buildings. The town has no fire fighting apparatus and the old fashioned bucket brigade was organized, doing valiant but futile service in the path of the roaring fire.

In addition to the loss to the owners of the buildings and the contents the fire will prove a very serious inconvenience to apple growers in the Orrtanna fruit belt for a large portion of their barrels came from the Baumgardner plant and some other arrangement will have to be made. Mr. Baumgardner has not yet stated whether he will rebuild.

SCHOOL BOARD'S AUGUST MEETING

Support High School Faculty. Decide to Employ Sewing Teacher. Will Count the Children in Town. Pleased with New Building.

At a meeting of the school board on Thursday evening much time was given to a discussion of the complaints lodged with individual members concerning the percentage of failures in the High School. Last year in the Sophomore class thirteen out of forty-four failed to pass and five or six were advanced with conditions.

The members of the board expressed their belief in the faculty's ability to care for the situation and Superintendent Prince Bream brought out by his instructions, regarding this year's course of study, a statement of how deficient pupils may again receive their examinations. It will be given out in the near future.

It was decided to employ a teacher of sewing and the necessary applications will be received by the board.

It is understood if possible, to have a Gettysburg woman take this in charge. The work will require from two hours to sixteen hours according to the arrangement of this with the pupils of the High School. The employment of the teacher will be for Miss Fox and a instruction on the entire class in cooking so as she did during the past year.

In the annual enumeration of the school children of town was again discussed and the plan to be followed. This must be completed before September and it is possible to have the enumerator to visit every home in the town in order to make an accurate census. The board has a desire to count children of school age in the town and the enumeration and the rate of five cents each.

Complimentary expressions were had on the erection of the addition to the new High School building and various matters were considered. It will be ready to move under consideration. It is progressing nicely and will be ready for the lighting done by the modern indirect system.

The matter of ordering the necessary books and supplies for the coming year occupied a large portion of the meeting.

HOAR PITCHES RECORD GAME

Gives only One Hit and a Base on Balls. Errorless Game Back of him and Susquehanna is Defeated by Two to Nothing Score.

"Topsy" Hoar pitched Gettysburg to a 2 to 0 victory over Susquehanna A. C. Wednesday afternoon and established a record for Nixon Field, when, in nine innings, only two men reached first base, one on a hit and the other on a hit. A lone single was the only thing that kept a perfect record of his delivery. Fourteen batters struck out and he had complete master of the situation at all times.

Back of him there was faultless support. The visitors found little to do. Skelly and Plank got Yorke first but three of the outs. Starry, Weiner and Braum having the others. Oyler placed a fast out on a curate grass drive and was with five outsits to his credit, while Weimer had eight assists without error field.

Susquehanna came here with a fast fielding team and it is possible to have did Gettysburg endanger the plate. In the second Oyler knocked a long drive to center field but the fleet-footed hoar disregarded the coacher's clarion call and tried to make home when he was caught. Two baseball fans had a fast exhibition and but the necessary single was not forthcoming and there was no score.

In the fourth Gettysburg got both a high throw and stole second. Plank sent a fast one between short and third for two bases, scoring Braum and having stolen on to the plate. Weimer hit between first and second and the first baseman got the ball but was unable to get to the bag. Plank was credited with a single, Plank with a run.

Susquehanna did not get its hit until the eighth and the man died on the base.

The game showed the team in fast form. Manager Paschall feels that enough hitting to give good fielding support. Wednesday he ran ahead with New Holland here next Wednesday; Lemoyne here next Saturday; and the Chrome team here on August 25.

DISCOVER SKELETON

Dennis Twomey and his gang of workmen, digging on the battlefield, uncovered a well preserved skeleton of a Union soldier Monday afternoon on Thursday afternoon while working near the track. The skeleton was under but less than two feet of earth and with it was found five buttons, usually found on the coat of a Union soldier, several bullets, two iron heel plates and the heels of two shoes. The man was undoubtedly one of the many killed during the heavy fighting in the railroad cut on the first day. The bones will be buried in the Soldiers' National Cemetery.

ORCHARDISTS' MEETING

Fruit Growers will Hear Extent of Crop in the Country.

TWO CRUISERS SUNK IN FIGHT

Opposing Forces Each Lose One Warship.

London, Aug. 7.—A Daily Mail correspondent in the Far East reports that Japanese cruiser Takachiho and the Russian cruiser Askold were sunk off the coast of Kiao Chau, China.

The dispatch makes no mention of a fight but says that both vessels struck mines, but if the report is correct fighting probably were held.

Germans Sail to Attack Russians.

Tsing-Tau, China, Aug. 7.—The entire German squadron sailed away to attack the Russian fleet. All decks were cleared for action and it is believed a naval battle will be fought in Tsushima Strait.

Japan is Ready to Strike.

Shanghai, Aug. 7.—An official at the Japanese consulate here said that upon the first receipt of the official news of the beginning of the clash of arms between England and Germany, Japan would send a fleet with 10,000 men to Kiao Chau Bay with orders to proceed to reliave the British garrisons at Wei-Hai-Wei and Tsing-Tau, preparatory to such action, he said, were now under way.

MAURETANIA SEEKS SAFETY

39g Liner is Converted to Warship by British Cruiser.

Halifax, Aug. 7.—The Cunard steamship Mauretania, bound from Liverpool to New York, put into this port, with 1400 passengers on board.

The Mauretania was conveyed to the mouth of the harbor by the British cruiser Essex, which picked her up south of Sable Island, and was then given protection of German warship lying in wait or which was expected to lay in wait and directed her to put into Halifax.

A short time after the Mauretania reached port the British cruiser Good Hope, also put in with her passengers.

For two days the Mauretania had been threatened by German and Austrian warships. Finally the lookout sighted two warships coming from the direction of the sea, and Captain Charles, of the Mauretania, ordered full speed and for the Essex, which responded.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Improved Metal Clothespin With Double Clips.

Clothespins have been in use a great many years without bringing out any special change in their design, but it has remained for a woman in think out a very simple improvement in the form of an article which is not only more serviceable, but which is made of hot being made with a double clip so that one pin will secure portions of two pieces of cloth at the same time, holding or releasing each without reference to the other.

Boiled Ham, Southern Style.

After the ham has been subjected to a soaking in cold water, a scouring and scrubbing with a brush, rinsing and soaking it is hardly ready to boil after simmering in cold water and lukewarm to the boiling point. Half a dozen of whole cloves, a pod of red pepper, a dozen whole allspice, a few grains of whole black pepper, a young onion and a stalk of celery all hopper their flavor to the water, although some maintain that the onion and celery spoil the other flavors. The ham be left to cool in its liquor after having been boiled until tender, and then, after carefully trimming from it all superfluous rind and fat, the southern cook removes her ham to a great, deep bowl, and around it she pours sound sherry or sweet cider until it reaches halfway up the sides. Then the top of the ham is stuck in lozenge pattern with whole cloves, sprinkled thickly with brown and red pepper, rubbed over with brown sugar and left to stand several hours, basting frequently with the liquor in the bowl. The last process before it is to be taken from the oven, in which the ham is set on a rack and baked slowly from one to two hours, according to the size, basting every fifteen minutes and adding water as the liquor cooks away.

Mustard Pickles.

One quart of small cucumbers; one quart of large cucumbers, sliced; one quart of green tomatoes, sliced; one quart of small button onions; one head of cauliflower or cabbage, chopped, and four green peppers, cut fine. Make a brine of four quarts of water and one pint of salt, pour over the mixed vegetables, and let stand over night. Then heat just enough to scald, pour into colander, and drain. Dressing: Mix one-quarter of flour, one tablespoonful of dry mustard and one tablespoonful of turmeric with enough vinegar to make a smooth paste, then add one quart of sugar and one and one-half vinegar to make two quarts in all; cook mixture until thick and smooth, stirring all the time. Add vegetables and cook until heated through. Can and seal in jars hot.

Cauliflower and Onions.

One pound salt codfish, one egg, one cup milk, one tablespoonful butter, two tablespoons of finely chopped onion, two cups of cold potatoes, one teaspoonful of salt, white pepper to taste and sauce with one pint of cream, one tablespoonful of butter and flour together and boil until well cooked and the fish and onion are tender. Chop fish and dice potatoes, add the milk and egg well beaten and boil until creamy. Add the fish and onion and mix a little dish. Cover thickly with grated cheese and bake in a quick oven until a golden brown. Serve hot. This makes a delicious and very inexpensive luncheon dish to serve on a rainy day.

Nasturtium Mustard.

To make the mustard put a few drops of lemon juice into the white of an egg, beat it, add mustard dry or as you have to measure on hand use about twice flavor.

Pieces of soft wood soaked in cedar oil, dried and put in drawers of an ordinary chest, closet or bureau will impart all the virtues of a cedar chest.

You can tell whether a cake is done by holding it to the ear. If it "sings" put it back to make a little longer. When done it will not "sing."

Cleaning White Goods.

A good cleanser for white and light colored woolen materials, laces, chiffons and the like is made by adding five ounces of white flour to each gallon of gasoline. The flour will absorb the thoroughly so sugar in water. If material is to very badly soiled rub on washboard the same as if soap and water were used.

To Brown Fine Bowls.

BELGRADE PRIDE OF THE SERVIANS

Quaint Capital Is Rich in Its Traditions.

ITS NEW PART UP TO DATE

Great Wealth Lacking, but Neither Is There Any Genuine Poverty—On the Other Hand, Middle Classes Are Comfortably, and the Whole Atmosphere Is One of Contentment.

The Servians are intensely proud of Belgrade, their capital, of its historic traditions and of its modern development, but so far as its vulnerability to American attack is concerned they have by no illusions.

Belgrade is, roughly speaking, divided into two parts, the older part, built during the Turkish domination, lying low on the banks of the Danube and the new, modern part, of which not only all Servia is proud, but which is very justly proud, lying on the hill back of the fortress. In the low part of the city are situated the old and the commercial life of the city. The railroad and steamer traffic is centered there, and the various houses and many warehouses and factories are also located there.

The new part is built out in broad well paved streets lined with fine buildings six and seven stories high which, however low compared to the buildings in the most of the other government hills of Belgrade, is exceedingly high for the landscape that is immediately there. For every town there seems to be a hill near at hand for its site in several directions and especially in the newer, charming and flourishing suburbs.

The public buildings are numerous and imposing. The university and the royal palace overlook the valley of the principal avenue. The post and telegraph buildings are on the hill to the east of the other government buildings, in reaching distance of the business that is transacted there. For every town there seems to be a hill near at hand for its site in several directions and especially in the newer, charming and flourishing suburbs.

New Palace Far Crown Prince.

The royal palace is on the Avenue Prince Milan, and, as he had been told, is not especially impressive. It is the part of the residence of the royal family for many years, but the building up to this time of magnificent new palaces was killed was torn down and there was never time for the new palace until the end of the plot where this palace stood was to be torn down to bring material for the use of the crown prince.

The parliament building is an small and inconspicuous—it has but two stories—but it is large, and the whole is given an indication of its uses. The building is surrounded by a garden and all very modest. That of the foreign representatives is a handsome structure and has the appearance of an office building. The foreign legations are on the sidewalk up a narrow flight of stone stairs, and there is little formality of court procedure there. An old man in a long coat, with a heavy cord and tassel him into a plain little reception room, and there in which a gentleman comes to the office of the prime minister.

SUFFRAGISTS ARE ORGANIZED HERE

Gettysburg Women Interested in Equal Suffrage Cause Organize a Committee for Each Ward. Will Have Three Days in September.

The personnel of the Suffrage Party organization in Gettysburg has been about completed and the committees for the various wards have been announced. Others will be announced those who are in favor of the cause will be assigned to one of the various committees if they will identify themselves with the organization.

The organization plans to hold a three days' rally in September, each ward having one day for its charge.

So many suffragists have been found among the men of Gettysburg that it has been decided to form a Men's League. Some of these gentlemen will give talks in the Court House Square (Park). There is no work connected with membership in the Men's League, it is simply signing and presenting sentiment in favor of Woman's Suffrage. A list of names will be published later.

The last week in August the Rev. S. Wilbert Swope, pastor of Zion Lutheran church, Harrisburg, will give a talk on "Home Rule" in the Court House. Further notice of this event will be given later.

STRUCK BY CAR

Trolley Car Inflicts an Ugly Injury to Little Girl.

Louise Neidererr, three-year-old daughter of Robert Neiderer, of Mechanicstown, was struck by a trolley car Wednesday morning. The car, in charge of Conductor William Croft and Motorman Ira Study, was going West, as the little girl started to cross the street. The foot-board struck the child under the chin, throwing her backward to the street, inflicting several slight cuts on the face. The car was at once stopped and both men went to the little girl's assistance. A Miss Black was present on the car in charge of the car.

JACOB DAY

Jacob Day, a veteran of the Civil war, died Saturday morning, August 5, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Albert Lenhart, Littlestown, after an illness of a few days from cerebral hemorrhage. He was aged 80 years, 4 months and 25 days.

He leaves the following children, Mrs. Albert Lenhart, Miss Day, Idaville; Amos Day, Carlisle; Charles Day, Abraham Day, Mrs. Mamie Bonebrake; Adam Day, Monument; Mrs. George Davis, Hanover; Mrs. William Day, Long Lane; Mrs. Jerry Spriggs, Mrs. Amos Miller, Gettysburg. He also leaves 58 grandchildren and 37 great grandchildren. Two brothers and five sisters survive.

Funeral Wednesday morning at 9:30 from the home of Albert Davis, Jacob's brother-in-law, to Zion Lutheran Church, Idaville, conducted by Rev. Mr. Bucher.

END OF LEAGUE

The management of the Sunday School League has decided to cancel the games scheduled for this year's series, as the remaining games could not affect the final result. This decision does not warrant the continuance of the League. The Reformeds, who won the pennant three years ago, are again winners this year. Only two more scheduled games remain to play but two were with the Catholics who have withdrawn. The final standing is as follows:

	W.	L.	P. C.
Reformed	7	1	.875
St. James	6	4	.600
Presbyterians	5	4	.500
Catholic	2	5	.286

Give on Point of Beauty.

The habit of almost mindedly frowning the chin is important because in doing so the skin must be stretched and the pores unduly enlarged, inducing wrinkles and permanently set together. After the age of twenty-two or twenty-three years it is well to watch with jealous care this particular portion of the face.

To Be Determined.

"What are you going to do when you are grown?" "I don't know yet," replied Senator Sorghum. "I've got to wait and see whether my reception by the town folks is in the nature of an ovation or the third degree."

FLIGHT OF A COMET

CRASHING INTO THE EARTH.

What the Result Would Be if One of These Light but Massive Wanderers at the Sky Were to Swing Into a Head-on Collision With Our Planet.

A large part of the fear that great comets have always inspired is due to an instinctive dread that they threaten dire peril for evil. They look like beacons of destruction, and those who know almost extraordinary energy them as their apparent lure value.

And, in truth, they could come within hitting distance of the earth they would cause a vast amount of damage, and some of these might be capable of putting the whole human race out of commission as an inhabited globe.

The power that was aroused in many quarters by Halley's comet in 1910 is sure to recur on the appearance of any new comet, for then it would seem to consider what an evilly disposed comet could do in the event if it got a chance.

There are two ways in which a comet could cause damage to the earth—first, by running against him it with 15,000 times the velocity of a cannon ball and, second, by inflicting the almost certain effects of collision of stifling gases contained in its tail.

Let us consider the first case of a comet shock.

Two things have to be taken into account—namely, the velocity and the weight of the comet body, considered as a gigantic projectile and assistant to us as a target.

Comets are very deceptive as regards to weight or mass. They are most tenuous bodies restricted very light. The comet that appeared in 1861 was greater than one and a half times the earth with its tail.

Halley's comet also occupied vastly more space than the earth, but a very full estimate of its mass that it probably did not much more than 30,000, or, to be within the mark less than the weight of the material re-named to make the Panama canal.

It might be thought, then, that the earth is to run into dense fog with a comet then a bottle-ship is from a boy's keen shooter. But now the vexed try begins to come into play. The speed of the earth at the moment of collision the sun would be about twenty-six miles per second.

A mass of 30,000,000 tons shooting through space at twenty miles per second six miles per second would develop in round numbers a terrific initial destruction energy, calculated by the distinguished one one second of thirty-six thousand million million horsepower.

Where the comet struck everything would cease to exist—the world in itself, vitrified and even vaporized in an instant, for all this tremendous energy would be converted into heat through the sudden and complete arrest of the swift motion of the comet mass. The quintillions of "absolute units of energy" developed by the striking of the comet would furnish enough heat to liquefy more than a million million tons of solid iron.

The result would be a very big and a very deep hole in the earth. Then sands of molten rock would be more or less directly affected by the terrific impact. But the effects would be greater than that of the mightiest earthquakes, and perhaps nothing would remain here ruin and mountains would shake and their fires to all parts of the globe while the sea would hurl itself in a tremendous tidal wave, and every coast and down all the low-lying islands.

The atmospheric disturbances would also be enormous—the sudden development of great heat at the point of collision would generate the air and rarefy and destructive and capricious winds would blow to and fro over the earth.

We have only a little space left to consider the effects of a collision between the earth and the tail of a comet. There is something that has been variously accepted two or three times within a century, and really said that a comet in itself surrounded the earth with the envelope of the tail for a few hours, and in 1910 Halley's comet himself passed under the earth but apparently the electric repulsion developed prevented the gases of the tail from entering the atmosphere. It is possible that in every case this would occur, so that electricity may be our effective guard against deleterious substances that might otherwise be introduced into the atmosphere from the switching tails of close passing comets—Literary Digest in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Destroying Equilibrium.

"Yes," responded Senator Sorghum, "and I wish he'd quit it. One of the easiest ways to start a man to going is to swell his head until his gets too heavy."—Washington Star.

IMPROVEMENTS AT NORTH END

Building Movement on Broadway Borough is Extending Sewer Line. Residents Erecting New Homes. Other Activities there.

With the construction of new streets, the laying of water mains and the erection of four new houses all under way, the North End of town is just now Gettysburg's busiest section.

Martin Winter has a large force of men excavating the South side of Broadway preparatory to the construction of that street. The roadway is being dug out from the rear of the lots on Mr. Winter's aggreement with the borough provides that he shall then put in twelve inches of fill along after which the borough will put on a top dressing of five inches of stone. This, it is believed, will give one of the best roadbeds in town.

The sewer line now under way at the extension of Broadway eastward and the grass and house plots on West Broadway have been laid out for some months so that the latter will be undertaken in order may be taken up as soon as the street itself is gotten in shape.

The borough is extending the sewer line westward as the Lutheran and Lincoln street and Broadway. The line lies at a depth of about seven feet in this part of town and a further extension to accommodate properties on which building will be done next spring is likely.

The new residence of Frank H. Peckman has been under roof for for some weeks and the plasterers have finished their work. The fine house on Lincoln avenue is ready for the painters. The foundations for Prof. H. Milton Roth's new residence on Broadway has been finished and the excavation for John W. Brehm's house on the south side of the same street has been completed. C. B. Smith will build the fall on the north side of Prof. Charles F. Sanders and the the present home of Mr. Peckman.

Several other residents will, it is said, start buildings on either Lincoln avenue or Broadway during the next few months while plans are already far advanced for those intend to build there in the spring.

METAL PIERCES THROUGH CHILD'S BODY

Sharp Tine of Pitch Fork Enters Little Boy's Body and Goes the Whole Way through it Accident Near Town on Friday.

The accident, which was as results far as it was unusual, occurred Friday afternoon while the little fellow was on a hay wagon, thinking that he was helping an older brother who was tossing up the hay from the field, overturned the horses started, at the same time knocking the pitch fork from the hands of the older boy and throwing the little boy from the wagon.

Head-first, he tumbled toward the ground, scratching the fork as he fell and the sharp tine entered between the blow of the metal tine come full force into his body. Through his clothing into the flesh it went and, with such force had the boy been thrown, that the tine passed entirely through his cosmic out in his back.

He gave one wild scream of pain and terror and the older brother, who had not seen him fall, rushed to the fallen youngster where he lay on the ground with the fork sticking in his back and his body pinned to the ground. He called for help and Dr. Swope was called. Dr. Swope drove to the scene of the accident in the automobile and found the boy in a serious condition but in good shape. He was taken to the home of his parents and is resting easy at the present time.

Dr. Hartman responded and gave first attention to the boy after the accidence of the tine having penetrated the lung. Other vital organs were not touched Unless the wound should become infected it is not thought that any serious results will follow, it is said.

Had the boy struck the fork with almost any other part of his body the wound would have been fatal. If he had fallen on the left instead of the right side it would have gone straight through the heart, causing instant death.

LOW DEATH RATE FOR PAST MONTH

Only Two Deaths in Gettysburg during the Month of July. Low but not as Good as Record of Several Years ago. Four Births.

Only two deaths and four births in Gettysburg during the past month, were reported to Harry Bowers, secretary of the local Board of Health, showing the record as comparing favorably with a similar period in other years.

In only one year has a lower death rate been shown and that was when not a single death occurred in the month from June 4 to August 4. So far as is known, this record has never been equaled here during the month of July usually shows a few mortality record. The increase in births over deaths is encouraging to those who claim that race suicide will result in the extinction of mankind.

Not one case of communicable disease was reported to the local board of health during the month and the activities of local physicians were confined to attending to cases of accident cases of which there were an unusual number.

THINKS HUERTA WILL COME BACK

"CARRANZA COULDN'T LAST"

What Is Half Would Be Of Use to His Endorser in "Resident"—Seeks at Ville as a Political Figure in Mexico—Visits Los Angeles Romance—He Par Courtney's Interest.

Querido Moheno, late secretary of foreign affairs in the Huerta cabinet, has been assisted home auditor of the law situation in an interview with The New York Sun reporter the other day.

With the retirement of Huerta, Moheno left Mexico, the will probably soon be New York until the Mexican government is put on a stable footing. He has no intention to return and give as account of his late secretaryship to the proper authorities.

The possibility that Huerta might again become a political figure in Mexico was held strongly by Senor Moheno.

"I should not be surprised," he said, "if Huerta would be a very popular figure in Mexico within a few months through one of those changes of feeling frequent even in Latin countries. A man may be bowled down by the common mob, but in a few weeks the moment he loses his power he becomes an object of pity and sympathy. This is just as accentuation of the American feeling for the under dog."

Will Resist Psychological Moment.

"How will Huerta look when the time is ripe for his return?" the Sun reporter was asked.

"He will come of his hands around to the nic and then touched his nose. 'He'll do!' and I will be his private secretary.

"It is almost impossible to tell just what will happen in Mexico," continued Senor Moheno. "Should Carranza accepts the terms of the Niagara conference and call a convention president himself the status of affairs would be very much like it is at time being."

"How long do you think Carranza will be able to hold his office under the present conditions?"

"A year and a half," he said deliberately. "Not longer than that. The General Carranza will immediately become the object of attack. As a fighter he can get a good deal of support, but he is not statesman.

"Of course, if Carranza bows down to the United States actually accepts the meaning of the government for a while, but he is not going to do that, so he can bind a screen."

Moheno's opinion was asked if he saw any prospect of peace in Mexico without a fight.

"Peace in Mexico can come about only through disarming the factions," he replied. "Carranza—"Just now the president has no means power to suppress the rebellion. His office is proper sure of playing a loss local in running the government for a while, but he must be taken away and vested in the proper authorities before he will allow the fashion of those in Spain or China. Then, when Carranza is out of the way as he unconditionally retired by an advocate would be the best course vote. With those safeguards alone can Mexico recover from the anarchy we are longing to make it."

Senor Moheno's suggestions developed and more strong enough to give rise to the question, "Where the governments?"

NEED OF MORE MARINES.

Difficulty in Getting Men Enough For Expeditionary Forces.

With five full regiments of marines now on expeditionary duty, in addition to the many men of the same service on the threatened Mexican border, ships and Guam and elsewhere, the United States navy is finding it hard to meeting the demands made upon it for an army to carry out the policies of the administration in regard to Haiti and Santo Domingo.

In addition to the shortage of soldiers and men, the station corps is at present reported to be greatly understaffed—that is, with less than half the number of officers to a regiment that the regular army demands. Consequently the officers are doing double duty and there has been for some time inadequate leave for five years past.

GERMANY IS EXPECTED TO WAR ON ITALIANS

Insist on Remaining Neutral.

FIGHTING IN BELGIUM

Germany Renew Attack on the City of Liege.

THE LOSSES ARE HEAVY

London, Aug. 7.—Italy abstained the hopes of Germany and Austria and virtually announced the Triple Alliance.

Italy may thus be drawn into the conflict, but she will be fighting Germany and Austria-Hungary instead of aiding them as a member of the Triple Alliance.

Germany had delivered a virtual ultimatum to Rome, calling upon Italy to fulfill her obligations as a member of the Triple Alliance and to come to the aid of her allies on land and on sea.

In event of her failure to do so Germany says she will look upon her as an aider not in the same light as the nations the latter is now fighting—which is, Germany will have to declare war.

Pierre fighting in Belgium, in which the Germans have met two severe defeats, with a loss in killed, wounded or prisoners estimated at 8000, have marred the progress of the war in Europe. The Belgian loss was said to be much less than that of the invaders.

The Germans renewed the attack fiercely, aided by reinforcements that had been brought up by the crown prince.

King Commander Belgian Troops.

A French column has effected a junction with the Belgians thirty-five miles from Liege. It is expected that and materially in the defense of that place. King Albert has taken personal command of the Belgian forces. Under the treaty with France he will have command of the French troops also.

All the reports of the fighting thus far have come from Belgian sources. They say that the Belgian losses were small compared with those of the Germans.

Aviators played a prominent part in the fighting, one Belgian airman sacrificing his life in the successful direction of artillery fire from a high altitude. Another report from Liege says that King Albert saw a German aeroplane carrying six men destroyed by his troops.

Another German aviator was brought to earth and to death within the Belgian lines by a rifle shot, 7500 feet over aviation flying back into the German lines.

All Belgium has been aroused to a high pitch of patriotism. Women are demanding the right to enlist and the Boy Scouts are acting as dispatch bearers and have acquitted several supposed spies.

Martial law has been declared in Holland and the Dutch are prepared to resist any German invasion.

Naval Fight in North Sea.

British destroyers and a German flying squadron came into contact in the North Sea off the Dutch coast and the fighting resulted in the wounding of a German lieutenant, the killing of a wounding of 100 Germans and the capture of one German.

The third British flotilla of destroyers came up with the German flying squadron which was convoying the Hamburg-American line steamer Koenigin Luise, converted into a mine-layer, for her mining operations.

The Koenigin Luise was sunk by the British fire and 150 men probably perished with her.

Strasburg, on the coast of England, is reported to have been bombarded by German warships. Breaking is known as a summer resort on the Thames and commands the entrance of the bay leading to Gravesend, Tilbury, Purfleet and thence a direct route to St. Paul's Cathedral.

A dispatch to Madrid from the Canary Islands reports that a British cruiser has sunk one German cruiser and captured another and was convoying it to Gibraltar.

Wireless reports to Messina, Italy, say a German cruiser attempting to escape from the north coast of France bombard town was overtaken by a French squadron. A battle is said to be fought.

The Tribuna in Rome received a report that the German cruisers Breslau and Goeben, reported as missing, have arrived at San Salvatore, near Messina, and that no important naval encounter has yet taken place in the Mediterranean.

German Destroy Algerian Towns.

German warships have destroyed several towns in Algeria, this fortified for the evacuation of French troops.

Reports from Warsaw, Russian Poland, say that the Russian frontier patrols, driving the enemy's cavalry before them, have crossed the frontier at Ipris Biala, penetrating ten miles into Germany.

From the Austro-Servian scene of conflict comes a report that Austria, reinforced by the Servian capital, is being bombarded.

General Joffre, French chief-of-staff, has announced that the French and Belgian armies will be fought upon French territory.

500,000 More Men For British Army

The British house of parliament has voted to increase the British army by 500,000 men, bringing it to 1,220,000 men with 300,000 and $500,000,000 additional for war purposes.

Lord Kitchener assumed charge of the British war office, and the first lord of the admiralty is the ambassador who was the proposed British expedition into Belgium.

The port of Southampton has been closed and shipping has been diverted to Liverpool.

Another significant development in London was the revocation of the embargo on horse importations to Ireland. This indicates that all fear of a clash between the Irish and militant factions has passed.

Foreign tourists in Paris, including many Americans, began to get away on special trains run to Bordeaux, where connection is made with boats for England.

BELGRADE STORMED AGAIN

Belgrade, via London, Aug. 7.—The Austrians renewed the bombardment of this city.

The shells ruthlessly demand the royal palace, the National theater, the British legation and many other buildings are damaged.

The Servians did not reply to the fire and no casualties were killed and many injured.

The Austrian attempts to cross the River Save at Ayala, six miles from Belgrade, and at Gievgevan, sixteen miles to the southwest, have failed. The Servian reinforcements from Bosnia River and isolated the Servian flag at Fiedrin and Semlin territory.

Servian officials express the opinion that the passing of Austrian troops through Servian territory has become impossible.

BRITISH CRUISER SUNK

The Amphion Strikes Mine in North Sea and Goes Down.

London, Aug. 7.—Official announcement at the admiralty that the British cruiser Amphion had been sunk after striking a mine in the North Sea. Seventy officers and men were drowned. The paymaster of 18 others and 155 men were saved.

MRS. WILSON DIES IN WHITE HOUSE

DR. WILSON HEART BROKEN

A Nervous Breakdown, Aggravated by Fall and Bright's Disease, Was Cause of Death.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president of the United States, died at the White House yesterday afternoon.

The end came after two serious attacks of uremic poisoning, the latter daughters and Frank B. Sayre, a son-in-law, were at her bedside at the end.

The news was announced by physicians to the president, Mr. T. McIlvy. He stated: "Gentlemen: Mrs. Wilson died at five o'clock this afternoon."

Months of constant illness, which began with a nervous breakdown, due to overwork, aggravated by a fall of the White House floor with an injury to her spine, and Bright's disease, laid so weakened the patient and made her vitality that the White House physicians reluctantly admitted that they had little hope and feared it was but a question of days and probably of hours.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was born in Savannah, Ga. Her maiden name was Ellen Louise Axson. She was the daughter of Rev. Edward and Mrs. Margaret Axson. She came of a race of preachers, her paternal grandfather being a Presbyterian clergyman in Savannah, and her maternal grandfather, Rev. Nathan Sturtz, for many years pastor of the Presbyterian church in Athens, Ga. She was educated in the public schools of Georgia and later in the Art Students' League, New York.

At the time of her marriage to Mr. Wilson, at Savannah, June 24, 1885, she was a highly southern beauty. That year her husband accepted a professorship at Bryn Mawr, where his wife she attracted much attention by her beauty and culture.

At one time she aspired to be an artist and was rapidly making a name for herself as a portrait painter when she married. Her art studies were carried on for twenty-eight years ago, when Margaret Woodrow Wilson was born in Gaithersburg, Md. Later however, she turned to landscape painting and exhibited in the Corcoran. Some of the Wilsons at Princeton showed marked ability as artists. Mrs. Wilson summed up the keynote of her married life before Mr. Wilson was nominated at Baltimore in the words, "husband, home and children." At that time she described true happiness as "a husband who is a gentleman of tastes and temperament, outlined we have a home and children and added the awakening spirit of American women, which she said, "I do not for she believed that the "nerves" of American women were due to too many interests.

Mrs. Wilson's daughters were displayed in New York last year in Philadelphia in the Art Institute and attracted much favorable attention. Miss Margaret Wilson for her hand was governor of New Jersey, and her sister Jessie remained modestly in the background.

GERMAN CRUISERS SAFE

Two of Kaiser's Ships Reported Taken by Allies Reach Port.

Rome, Aug. 7.—The Tribuna publishes a report that the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, which were reported captured by the French, have arrived at San Salvatore, near Messina, Sicily.

One of the German officers in an interview said that while the Breslau was shelling the French naval base of Bona, Algeria, sinking ships in the harbor, the Goeben was bombarding the home houses, the Goeben bombarding Philippeville, further along the coast. He added that the two cruisers were subsequently chased by a British battleship squadron. It was said that no serious engagement had yet been fought in the Mediterranean.

Big Naval Battle Imminent.

London, Aug. 7.—A big battle between the British and German fleets in the North Sea is believed to be imminent. Reports from Holland say that ships are rushing in on the German harbors and Amsterdam and Rotterdam have been received in Norwich to be ready to care for wounded sailors.

King's Nephew Arrested as Spy.

Copenhagen, Aug. 7.—Prince Axel nephew of King Christian of Denmark, was arrested as a spy by German troops on the frontier. He was released when his identity was established and left for England.

Another Sea Fight Reported.

Madrid, Aug. 7.—A dispatch from the Canary Islands says that a British squadron has sunk one German cruiser and captured another, which it is said has captured another, which is being convoyed to Gibraltar.

Adams County News

FIRST PRIZE FOR COUNTY APPLES

Adams County is Winner at International Apple Show. Severe Test for County Apples but they Win over those of Many States.

There is joy in the camp of the Adams County apple growers for their fruit has won first place in the class at the hotly contested exhibit of the International Apple Shippers Association at the recent Spokane convention.

For some years this association has conducted a fruit show in connection with the convention. The new, the fall and winter varieties are given but that does not matter, for the purpose of the exhibit is to show the development and condition of the commercial varieties in various sections of the country at the same date—about August first.

This helps the buyers to plan their place for operations and serves as a fine advertisement for the sections exhibiting. Owing to the fact that different varieties are grown in different states, the states growing much the same varieties are grouped together for the contest.

Group Three includes Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia, and it was against such exhibits from these states that the Frult Growers Association of Adams County contested and came out victorious. Winning first place in this class is particularly creditable for two reasons: first, because the apples from Virginia and other states are said to be of as fine a color as those of us in size and development; second, our fruit was scored 92% per cent perfect as to quality, size and color, and no other exhibit in any group is the whole show scoring higher. This was the exhibit of W. S. Thompson & Co., who took first place in Group One with a percentage of 94 1-2.

Five summer, five fall, and six winter varieties were shown by the group in which Adams County was entered as follows:

The award in Group Three was as follows: first premium, bronze medal, Fruit Growers Association of Adams County, scoring 92¾ per cent; second premium, Morgan County, West Virginia, scoring 88 per cent; third premium, Shenandoah Valley Company, Hancock, Maryland, scoring 86 1-3 per cent.

CAMPING AT MOUNTAIN

D. J. Forney has erected a temporary bungalow at Willow Grove, along the Chambersburg pike, where his family is camping for the summer. Mr. Forney states that there is an abundance of land in that immediate vicinity adaptable for cottage or bungalow sites and he would be superior to the present location of the summer cottage colony farther west. He intends to erect a more permanent abode for occupation during the summer of 1917.

ANNUAL OUTING

Sunday School will Spend Day along Big Conewago.

PRICE OF SUGAR AGAIN GOES UP

With the Opening of Gettysburg's Stores on Thursday Merchants See Possibility of Its Going to Ten. Small Quantities Sold.

Gettysburg people are paying seven and a half cents a pound for sugar and very short time. By leaps of a half cent each time this necessary article has bounded from five cents to seven and a half cents in the short space of a week and retailers and wholesale men say the end is not nearly in sight.

The rise is the most direct result of the war which has yet been felt here. England was wise enough to purchase as enormous quantity of American sugar shortly before the opening of the war. It has been paid for and must be delivered at the earliest possible moment. England has also bought the output of Cuban raw sugar.

Gettysburg state keepers cannot buy more than one barrel a time from local jobbers and those in turn can buy only a limited supply, from the wholesale dealers so that there is practically no chance for speculation on a large scale. This is also reflected in the local stores in the matter of large quantities of sugar in order to store up various family supplies is not looked upon with favor.

A rise in flour is expected within a very short time but it has not yet come here. At local butcher shops prices remain the same as one cent or two a pound. The grocers say that buying cheese is impossible and that their orders are constantly cancelled.

One effect of the war which will likely be generally felt by Gettysburg people and others in the country will be the advance in all rubber goods. Automobile tires are due for a big increase in price and the local stores merchant in Gettysburg on Tuesday reported that the supply of rubber garden hose for next summer's trade and this morning was advised of a raise of 25 per cent in prices on rubber goods.

The most unfortunate fer meotin the general inconvenience here will be the boost in the price of matches for people's wants.

During war-one of the principal forms of entertainment, the Gettysburg orchestra playing a new and varied program each night was well filled with dances from the opening number of the concert, until "Home Sweet Home" and "Good Night Ladies" sounded its close.

Nothing could mar the pleasure of the picnic crowd and when one of the dancers jumped through the floor the Peach Orchard after eleven o'clock the floor boards were put back in place fifty or a hundred feet the crowd seemed to prefer the fun of the best features of the day. Three cars were running, the derailed one being, fortunately, empty at the time and all passengers were transferred several times. Everybody did not get to town until about one o'clock.

The committee consisting in charge of the picnic and on whom the responsibility largely rested was composed of Mrs. Mary John Zinn, Ambrose Small, Mrs. Pius Breighner, Mrs. Harry Bushman, Mrs. Ralph W. F. Boyle, pastor of the church, was present afternoon and evening to give the picnickers the benefit of his help after the comfort of the large crowd was properly cared for.

REMOVE OBJECTION

Commissioner Hoover Takes Step to Benefit Farmers.

State Highway Commissioner Bigelow has ordered the automobile registration clerks to refuse all applications for the registration of tractors under commercial classification on a form of application to which no copy of the rules and regulations is attached. This order has been approved by traction engine owners throughout the State, who have requested that the present farm of application, incorporating rules and regulations regarding the operation of traction engines, be discontinued. This order removes all chance of further misunderstanding and objection to the automobile act of July 7, 1916. New form blanks have been printed and can be secured upon application to the State Highway Department.

CLEARED BIG SUM AT THEIR PICNIC

Clearing over $400, the members of St. Francis Xavier church on Wednesday held the most successful of their annual picnics in the history of the congregation, Round Top being visited during the day and evening by crowds numbering far into the hundreds, when only contributed thumbs but enjoyed thoroughly all the many forms of entertainment provided.

It is doubtful if the picnic was ever more of a success from a social standpoint than this year, and the young people found entertainment which kept them at the hill until after eleven o'clock at night. The elder ones seemed to enjoy watching the younger ones and the crowd gained before they finally made up their minds to go home.

The extent of the work done by those in charge of the picnic may be understood to a degree when it is told that 518 meals were served during the day, the menu including chicken with an immense quantity of delicious accompaniments, and the hungry picnickers and when, in the evening, supper was served there was enough left to feed the crowd a large corps of helpers from the town. The committee viewed the generous contributions toward the meals to be served it was generally believed that there would be a large left in the evening all had been consumed, and some delicacies were provided to accommodated.

The work of feeding this large crowd was in charge of Mrs. Pius C. Breighner, who superintended the work in the kitchen, while Mrs. Emily Brinkerhoff who conducted the lunch counter, was kept busy waiting on a large corps of helpers. The committee in charge of Mrs. John Zinn, Miss Annie Wentz and Miss Grace Hoffman and yielded a good revenue. Frank Alleman had charge of the ice cream the fact that the ice cream sales and he had assistance from Miss Catherine Lanna. The refreshment stand was one of the busiest on the floor and John Zhue, Jr., Miss Mary Ann Breighner and Frank Slonaker had the hands full in caring for the people's wants.

Dancing was one of the principal forms of entertainment, the Gettysburg orchestra playing a new and varied program which was well filled with dances from the opening number of the concert, until "Home Sweet Home" and "Good Night Ladies" sounded its close.

Nothing could mar the pleasure of the picnic crowd and when one of the dancers jumped through the floor the Peach Orchard after eleven o'clock the floor boards were put back in place fifty or a hundred feet the crowd seemed to prefer the fun of the best features of the day. Three cars were running, the derailed one being, fortunately, empty at the time and all passengers were transferred several times. Everybody did not get to town until about one o'clock.

The committee consisting in charge of the picnic and on whom the responsibility largely rested was composed of Mrs. Mary John Zinn, Ambrose Small, Mrs. Pius Breighner, Mrs. Harry Bushman, Mrs. Ralph W. F. Boyle, pastor of the church, was present afternoon and evening to give the picnickers the benefit of his help after the comfort of the large crowd was properly cared for.

IN THE MOVIES

Frank Knerr, formerly of Arendsville, has gone into the movies. He appeared in the evening of the picture's Theatre in one of the principal parts of "A Question of Hats and Gowns," a two reel feature drama. Mr. Knerr has been in the theatrical business for a long time and five or six years ago did some moving picture work. It has only been recently, however, that he returned to the photoplay.

When a fruit jar exploded in her hands Miss Catherine Brady, of Oxford township, had a large artery in the wrist severed, the wound bleeding so profusely that it was with difficulty the flow of blood was checked, or until a physician could be secured.

Miss Brady was putting up several jars from ace room in the house to another when the contents of one, which was evidently fermenting, by the swishing glass and scattered in all directions. A large piece of glass cut with a jagged edge deep into the wrist and blood spurted from the wound. Other members of the family rushed to the young lady's side and with the handkerchiefs they had at hand tied a tourniquet around the arm which in a measure arrested the flow of blood. Dr. Wolfe was then called and arrived in a short time but it was not necessary for his services as the wound was pronounced by the physician as not serious.

Another accident resulting in the severing of a large artery occurred on the farm of Jacob Hoffman, Mount Joy township, when a cow belonging to the family ran against a window pane in the barn, breaking the glass and lacerating the animal's leg. The wound bled profusely and it was with difficulty that the flow of blood was stopped. The cow is reported to be getting along nicely.

FALL TOURIST BOOKINGS MADE

Hotel bookings for the latter part of the summer and the early fall show that Gettysburg may expect the usual number of tourist parties here during the coming weeks.

The first large delegation of visitors will be the "Sixteeners" who are in Gettysburg on August 26, as the final feature of a three days' convention held at Harrisburg. The members of the organization are former students of the soldiers' orphans homes in the state.

On September 7 the state convention of the Fraternal Patriotic Americans will be held in Gettysburg. This is a newly organized order and consist of the latter element of the anti-K. K. split in the Junior Order of United American Mechanics. It has had a brief but successful existance and the officers expect a good representation here.

The survivors of the Seventeenth Pennsylvania Cavalry and their forty eighth annual reunion here on September 12, 13 and 14. Headquarters will be held in the morning at the Eagle Hotel, after that, and many of the survivors of the various commands Gettysburg Hotel Association. Other bookings indicate that these visitors will be here for several days, October 9 to 14 inclusive. This will be one of the greater number of reservations for the week.

The first of a series of personally conducted tours to Gettysburg and Washington will arrive here on the evening of October 3 under the direction of the Pennsylvania Railroad agency. Two days later, October 10, there will be a delegation from the New England. Other similar tours are being arranged for later in the autumn.

In addition there will be the annual encampment of Maryland veterans in October, most of which will be run on Thursday, Sunday, beginning about the middle of the former month. The annual Tuscan excursion known as the "Autumn Leaf" will probably be run to Gettysburg late in October by the Ohio Orphans' School and place and will bring the usual thousands from Akron and other Ohio towns.

With the improvement of the roads about Gettysburg and beautiful fall days automobile tourists which have been large all summer, will continue to increase. Automobile parties from cars which have come through Gettysburg in the past season are the basis operation of machines bearing the Ohio license tag. This is explained by the fact that many of the parties from that state are bound for the southern end of the Gettysburg battle place lying on the direct line.

"PINAFORE" BY LOCAL TALENT

Opera will be Given by Alumni of the Gettysburg High School. Most Ambitious Theatrical Project they have Attempted.

The High School Alumni Association on Tuesday evening decided on the most ambitious theatrical project that body ever launched when they voted to produce the opera "Pinafore" some time during September. A competent cast with chorusus will be required by the production and the rehearsals will begin at once.

The following committee was appointed to take the matter in charge. Ernest Hoover, Mrs. R. S. Redomond, Mrs. Mabel Miller, Wilbur Stallsmith and Charles C. Culp. Miss Helen Cope will meet with the committee and assist them in their work.

The opera, a favorite of many years ago, was recently revived as a metropolitan success and the graduates of the high school have determined to realize that they have a large talent on their hands and can produce properly and with credit. John Sachs, a member of the musical organization in the pilot recently at a school production elsewhere and he will have charge of the music for the preliminary practices. The Alumni purpose to secure the use of several amateurs from out of town who have also appeared in "Pinafore" and the cast will come largely from the High School.

The costumes and costumes feature the opera and it will be necessary for the stage to be built over the footlights to accommodate the elaborate scenery. The opera will be given in Weiser's Opera House, the exact date announced later.

At the meeting Tuesday evening the alumni decided that they would contribute $100 from the treasury of music to the graduate during the coming term. The money to be distributed "to the student of the Pinafore" will also be devoted to the good of the town schools.

ACCIDENT CHAPTER

When his car struck a clothes line, Harry Thompson, of Steelton, Dauphin county, was thrown to the pavement in that street, had two gashes cut in his head Tuesday evening. The injuries are not serious.

The seven year old son of J. W. Hoffman, of near Greenmount, suffered a painful injury Monday evening when he could remove his foot for a half inch.

The lad found Hoffman, who had his arm broken several weeks ago when his bicycle and the automobile of Dr. Richard Wolfe, of Greenmount, went to the Harrisburg Hospital to have the bone set. The injured arm has healed satisfactorily but a piece of bone in the wrist was removed in order to give him the proper use of his hand.

James Reed McCullough, of Gettysburg, and Miss Annie B. Weikert, of Greenmount, were married in Washington on Monday. The report of the wedding, received here Tuesday in formal announcements, came as a surprise to the friends of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. McCullough is a daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Weikert and the widow of Urban E. Weikert. She has been conducting the store at Greenmount for a number of years. Mr. McCullough is a son of James H. McCullough, deceased, of Gettysburg, has been in the employ of the "Star and Sentinel" for the last several years two years, is now their foreman and secretary and treasurer of the company.

YOUNG—FOX

College and Seminary Graduates Married at Friendsville.

Rev. Leslie E. Young, a graduate of Gettysburg College in 1910, and of the Seminary here in 1913, was married on Monday to Miss Ella Fox, daughter of Prof. Fox, of Friendsville, where he is pastor of the Lutheran church.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the wife of the president, died in the White House at 5 p. m. Aug. 6.

Thus spoke Mrs. Woodrow Wilson in an interview a year or five months ago, when she became mistress of the White House and the first lady of the land.

A woman of high culture and exceptional charm, she set about practically what she pursued in her new sphere the same as she had done when her distinguished husband was governor of New Jersey and before that president of Princeton university. Her home had been her greatest concern and joy since her marriage in 1885, and Washington life with its glamour and its social demands left her preference unaffected.

To her mind the home was woman's place quite as much as the world was man's.

Her Books on Suffrage.

Of suffrage Mrs. Wilson said:

"When I think of the votes as a weapon it might have for the large-eyed, serious little girls who used to dance on the steps of the White House when Mrs. Harrison was mistress there, I am sorry that I have written books on the subject. I am sorry that I have ever given my name to the cause. I am sorry that I have ever given a penny to it. I am sorry that I have ever spoken a word for it. I am sorry that I have ever written a letter in favor of it. I am sorry that I have ever done anything that could be construed as favoring it."

Mrs. Wilson's books on suffrage were written before her marriage. Mrs. Wood row Wilson was Miss Ellen Louise Axson, daughter of the Rev. Samuel Edgerman at Savannah, Ga. She was born in Georgia, where her family is said to be the only one of the name in the state. Her father, president, she has one brother and one sister—Edgerman Axson, who married the most popular member of the Princeton faculty, Prof. Howard Elliott, wife of a Princeton professor of international law.

Three daughters were born to the Governor and President, upholding Mrs. Wilson devoted almost all her energies to them. On the day of election she said to a friend:

"I will vote for Woodrow. The greatest desire to be a patriot, but the bringing up of children seems more to the point of a housewife's duty than to cast a vote for the head of the state."

That she was a painter of no small talent was generally admitted throughout life Mrs. Wilson was fond of painting, and as a girl she studied at the New York Art school. Her work was not confined to conventional subjects. As a landscape artist she was at her best, and many sketches painted in Washington have received high praise from critics.

Warburg and Jones appointments and while he was exerting a strike on nine-ty-eight railroads the president was constantly apprehensive of Mrs. Wilson's condition. He refused even to see in person any bulletin stating it his domestic worries to be turned, even though at times Mrs Wilson became unconscious and the end seemed to be near.

It was while sitting beside his wife, his constant helpmate and adviser, that the president wrote his message to the European crowned heads, appealing in them to end their conflict and discuss peace

World's Lenten Capital.

For several weeks the president and his friends had endeavored to persuade Mrs. Wilson to take a complete rest in a cooler climate. She steadfastly refused to leave the White House, believing that it was her duty to remain by the president as long as he considered it to stay in Washington.

One of her chief entertainers during her illness was to peruse the newspaper headlines to her. Every day she read in them concerning him and his administration. Each day she also brought a bouquet of violets, a rose from Gardenia—Killed, 2,592; wounded, 12,709; captured, 5,152.

Total—Federal, 21,851; Confederate, 20,457.

These figures are based on reports made to the Confederate Congress offi cers, respectively, and the Federal report is believed to be substantially and honestly possible. The Confederate re port has the merit of stating the Federal casualties are cut down as approximately 9,000. It will be seen, therefore, that the Confederates captured fewer prisoners taken, which is not strictly in accord with the fact. They must have been greater at Liege than the casualties at Gettysburg, provided the 20,000 reported represent actual physical injuries inflicted upon con-tendents.

There are few points of similarity shown by the two engagements. The Union forces at Gettysburg were on the defensive, except, of course, to repel an invader, but they were also on the offensive in aggressive, offensive army, and they were not attacked in front by a chain of seemingly impregnable fortresses. The defenders at Gettysburg were exposed to fire all the time.

The most interesting feature for comparative purposes of the Liege engagement, is the manner in which casualties have been met. It is true that 28,000 casualties have been inflicted upon the Germans, but they have already suffered more than were inflicted upon the Confederates at Gettysburg, although their losses may have not been of a greater character than at Liege. In the latter much de-struction of life has been due to the shelling of the German position from the Belgian forts, just as most of the damage done by Germans has been inflicted by their big guns.

The claim that modern engines of destruction make a fort much more dangerous game to play than it was in the days of the Germans to have been verified. If the German who should be a body on the town, is close formation at Gettysburg, as he marched, the destruction of life would be relatively greater and probably other than the destruction when Pickett led his men across the hitorric field at Gettysburg.

CARRIERS' CONVENTION

Date Announced for Next Meeting of Rural Carriers.

Because of the national convention, which will be held in Chicago from August 11 to 14, the Rural Carriers' Association of York and Adams counties will meet on September 6, when the reports of the state and national delegates will be made and an election of officers for the ensuing year will be held. W. W. Wallick, secretary of the association, will attend the national convention and it is expected that a number of other members of the association will accompany him.

ORDERLY CROWD

The six hundred and eighteen negroes excursionists from Annapolis who visited Gettysburg on Monday made up a orderly crowd as we have seen who had for some time.

GETTYSBURG AND LIEGE LOSSES

There were three days of fighting at Liege last week. There were three days of fighting at Gettysburg. The casualties at Liege on both sides included approximately 28,000, and it is not clear whether prisoners are included in this report. It may be that 28,000 were killed or killed and wounded, in addition to the number of prisoners taken.

According to official reports the so-called losses at Gettysburg were:

PAVING BRICK FOR LOCAL PIKE

State Highway Department Engineer Recommends Use of Vitrified Brick between Gettysburg and Chambersburg. The Cost?

The most ambitious road project ever proposed for Gettysburg and the county comes from an expert of the State Highway department. He recommends a complete highway of Vitrified brick between Chambersburg and Gettysburg. He proposed that the entire roadway be paved in the best depth sufficient to lay properly the bricks, an expense that he himself did not attempt to estimate.

It is quite probable that his proposition will be taken up by the state department as Superintendent Bungner of the Franklin County division has no official advice concerning it.

Superintendent Bungner said at once take up the matter of rebuilding the highway from Chambersburg to the Adams county line, the Graffius-burg. If there are any breakers between Gettysburg and Graffius-burg they will be removed, and the roadway put in better condition than it is the rest of the way.

Mr. Bungner has squads of men working on the road between Gettysburg and the Bedford county line, and the work is completed all breakers in that distance will be removed and the line generally resurfaced.

In commenting on the proposed improvements the Chambersburg "Valley Spirit" says: "As to the Gettysburg highway improvement we know that the people throughout this valley to convey to local automobilists who use the line for business or pleasure

IS RECOVERING

The many friends of Robert McIlhenny, a veteran of the Civil War and postmaster for many years, at Fairfield, Pa., Adams county, Penn-sy, will be pleased to learn that he is rapidly recovering from his recent operation.

Mr. McIlhenny has been suffering for a severe ankle. He took to bed for some time and on Saturday morning, August 1st, the foot was amputated just above the ankle, by Dr. E. W. Meisenheiser, Jr., at the latter's home in Gettysburg.

The operation was a success and, according to Mr. McIlhenny's present his strength, he will return to the home of his daughter on the Hemlings Farm. It is expected that he will return this week.

MILKMEN MEET

Will Fix a Uniform Price for Milk to be Shipped away.

The delegates who had been chosen at the various district meetings of milkmen held throughout Adams county met at the Court House Saturday afternoon for the purpose of forming a county organization, having as its end the securing of better milk prices for dairy farmers.

A committee of five was authorized to fix the price and all the members agreed to stand by the price agreed upon. The farmers generally believe that, with the present market value of cattle and feed, and the retail price of milk in the cities, the local farmers are not getting the amount of money they should for the product. They also object to the manner in which the milk is handled.

At Saturday's meeting P. A. T. Bower was elected president; Robert Ball secretary, and Samuel Fidler, treasurer. The executive committee is composed of Bower, R. K. Major and Hugh McIlhenny.

BIG CROWD SEES GETTYSBURG LOSE

Locals Play Errorless Ball but Five Run Lead is too Much for them to Overcome. Lose Good Chances to Score Runs.

Well, they lost, but they went down with colors flying and not a fan of the home team left the grounds sorry and standing room on Nixon Field, crowded a word of complaint when Gettysburg went down in defeat 6 to 5 in the hour series Saturday afternoon 5 to 4 it happened this way. Hazle, the famed pitcher from the south recently signed by the Hanover management, had the second off-day in his entire career. The first six men who faced him registered hits, three singles and a double, leaving three runs, men on second and third and one out at the end of the casualties. "Toppy" Hear was rushed to the scene of action. Dannis Skelly let another run across the plate on a passed ball and Gettysburg retired in their half of the first with a four run handicap.

Hanover batted in this way. Miller pitched for Hanover and for the first few innings was invincible. In the first inning Hanover only had men on second and third with none out. Shultz, Price and Miller struck out at bat—three of the best hitters on the team—and the rooters were glad. Again with the bases filled and only one out, the necessary hit was not forthcoming and Hazle struck out the sixth that the locals got to work at the stick. In the fourth Hanover also registered another run on two clean hits.

Bream took first in the sixth on a hit, Ira Plank got a base on balls and both were advanced a base on Wagner's sacrifice. Sturry singled, scoring Bream and sending Ira to third. Small, of Hanover, threw to second in an unsuccessful to catch Sturry stealing and Ira Plank slumbered on third during the performance robbing of another run. Oyster fouled to pass, filling the bases, but Skally struck out.

In the seventh Stair got a rattling bagger. Price sacrificed him to third when his hot one to short was juggled and then thrown high. Ira Plank sent a liner over second and Stair scored, Plank going to second. Weimer was safe at first on an error by Miller, going to third. Weimer tried stealing home on second but was caught for the third out. This time Plank was on third and beat it for home with Small's throw but the run did not count.

In the ninth Gettysburg looked a winner. With one out Ira got a hit, Stair singled and Bream hit to right field scoring for three bases. Stair scoring. Ora was fanned by Small and Weimer to bat but Plank popped to Price and Weimer was retired.

The locals put up one of the best games of the season, errorless and never registered against them. They played clean fast ball and but for Hazle's misfortune in the first would be good for a decisive victory.

Hanover played good ball, though they had three errors, but it is doubtful if a team ever appeared on Nixon Field which showed less sportsmanship than Captain Herman and his rooters from start to finish every close decision of Umpire Tawney was questioned, Herman and his rooters threatening to strike him. The crowd rushed for the ball and they were once required to stop an incipient riot.

Further games in the series have been arranged and they promise a profitable end of the business. Saturday Hanover goes to Nixon Park $100 while games at Hanover bring considerable more money. Incidentally, the big crowd of visiting rooters failed to appear, the special bringing only 151 while that promised band also was among the missing. The band was to have played both in evidence before and after the game.

BRING GOOD PRICES

Henry Bupp purchased highly the farm of William Cremer at Bendersville. The farm contains 107 acres and was sold for $6055. The new purchaser now resides on the Biddinger farm, adjoining the one which he bought. He is a nephew of William Cremer, who died recently.

Thomas H. Nixon has returned home from the confederates' camp at Asheville, North Carolina, connected by Regular Army officers and boys.

member of Women who born their own Bring I am inclined to favor it. When I consider for possible effect on the larger interests of society as a whole I am not so sure."

In an interview in February, 1913, Mrs. Wilson said:

"I do not desperate the thing for good clothes by many means, but I am perfectly sure that women who spend a large portion of their time shopping for pretty things and standing for hours in the fitted do not find real happiness in that sort of thing. I think women naturally real happiness by being interested in other things much more worth while."

An Ardent Social Worker.

While pouring her home duties first ence as wife of the president of the United States, and surrounded by many who could have relieved her of the smallest responsibility, Mrs. Wilson found time to do much good work in the name of charity, and her practical assistance in many cause of distress. Another of her kindly experiences of her character, colored her to many classes outside official circles.

In Washington she participated in a number of social movements, notably the affairs of the woman's welfare department of the National Civic Federation, in which she accepted honorary membership.

Overtaxed Her Strength.

Friends feared that this work is at times to be too much indigestion was too much for the president's wife, particularly as it was finally observed that whenever she was reticent looking upon nothing in her life in the White House proved needless of her social and household activities could be spared and she had overexerted her strength.

In assisting the president in the social activities of the White House Mrs. Wilson seemed to shrink up what she had been afflicted from the time of her husband's nomination.

Mrs. Wilson went to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., last June, remaining for about three weeks. She passed the time in short walks with her daughters and in driving through the mountains. She returned to the White House to Washington, apparently much better, on the night that Limerick Rice, Mrs. Wilson refused to accept the American ambassador to Mexico, and remained with the president.

She appeared at the wedding of her daughter Jessie to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo at the White House in May, and from that time forward never appeared falling health. Subsequently she decided herself to calling, entertaining herself with driving through the parks with the president and attending the hours among the roses in the White House.

Officials of the executive offices of the White House had charge of the funeral arrangements and chair through the room could scarcely recognize the White House as the scene of the most sorrowful days of the administration.

Heads to Capital.

Only those in closest touch with the president know of the severe strain of anxiety which he suffered during the critical part of Mrs. Wilson's illness. Through the period of her greatest agitation and apprehension, but the president was constantly confronted by the grave issues attended already by reason of the Mexican war and the preparations and preservation of stable financial conditions at home fell upon him during that trying time.

During the last days of the President's entire the president was practically constantly in consultation with Secretary Lane that Mrs. Wilson remained conscious of his presence. Secretary Lane would get them his trying interviews with the president.

MAY NOT SPEED IN BIGLERVILLE

The use of Biglerville's macadamized streets for the speeding of automobiles and other vehicles is not to be tolerated according to the views of the city burgess, Jacob Swanson and officers of the law.

The first action to put a stop to the practice was taken Friday afternoon when Constable Worrell placed under arrest one George White, of Lancaster, and took him before Burgess Swanely, where he entered guilty and paid a fine and costs amounting to $5.35. The information was laid by L. U. Ulrich, a member of the highway committee of the town council.

White, it seems, had been spending the past week in and about Biglerville repairing automobiles and travelling through the country on a motorcycle. The finely built streets of Biglerville proved a strong temptation to the young man and on York street, said to be one of the best built, he put his machine at its best, the councilmen claiming that it would attain a speed of forty miles an hour. The new state road through the town also proved attractive and the offense finally became so frequent that the arrest was then determined on.

When taken before Mayor Swanely, White admitted his guilt when offered and paid the costs without complaint. It is said that he has finished his work at furniture repairing and that he has returned to Lancaster.

Biglerville's streets are now the best of any borough in the county. From another report the western limit the town has built a fine macadam roadway which connects on the west with the state highway to Arendtsville, forming about four miles of continuous road. The State Highway Department is now completing a macadam road from the northern to the southern limits of the town on the main highway from Gettysburg to Bendersville placing all the main streets in first class and permanent shape.

That speeding autoists and cyclists shall not take advantage of this condition and endanger the lives of the residents of the hustling town, the council has given one Burgess, Ray Show" signs that limit speed to 15 miles an hour and further offenders will be dealt with in the same way as the Lancaster furniture man.

GOOD HAUL

Pickpockets reamed their activities at Pen Mar park Thursday afternoon during the big Odd Fellows reunion with indifferent results to a number of persons who were visitors to the park.

A number of excursionists complained of losing their money at the station. One woman lost a valuable gold watch, while two men found themselves up ten and four dollars respectively when they reached into their pockets. No arrests were made nor was there any suspect located in the crowd.

Pickpockets operated at the same place in a bold and successful manner last year without being caught but up until Thursday there was no complaint of their activities this season.

RARE FIND

Indian Pipes Found Near Thurmont by Farmer.

Two Indian pipes in good condition were found by J. N. Wilhide's father in a field, near Thurmont. Messrs. Wilhide and John Portner were digging around a large rock, when the pipes were unearthed. The age of these pipes can only be estimated, but presumably they are the work of Indians hundreds of years ago. The rock from which they were cut is almost a lead color, is soft and capable of being highly polished.

MISSIONARIES FLY FROM WHITE WOLF

DEMAND MADE FOR WOMEN.

House Occupied by Mis and Other Families Searched, but All Passed Ladies Remained Hidden—Letter to Government Does Little to Suppress the Bandits.

Mr. H. Turner, who is a missionary in China and whose family resides in Washington was over friends and acquaintances there as well as the Washington Herald received the following letter from a Chinese newspaper which gives Mr. Turner says: "no idea of the dangers and privations which so many are facing through the utter neglect of the government here in China." The account is dealt particularly with the recent uprisings of the White Wolf.

Mr. Birney represents the Christian Missionary Society of Indianapolis in the province of Hupeh, China. He says:

Hankow, China, Dec. 27.

The Lord has called upon us to take a long journey. Because of your coming White Wolf reached Mischow on May 20 to plunder, murder and destroy. protect the city, but failed. There was also a battle with the rebels stationed in the north side for about fifteen minutes. On the 21st of May the rebels were killed and a few on the Mischow side. After the arrest of the Mischow magistrate there was no one to keep the city and began shooting down all kinds of people. They robbed the yamen, took the officials and made their escape.

Then they fled to the city for horses. They came to our place and I gave them the five ponies, but they demanded the two best. Hand after hand came to our place asking for this and that. I could only give them what they asked for up till noon. Other bands had come into our premises, but I had time only to reason with them and keep them from wholesale plundering.

However, after dark two other bands of very wicked men came in our place and demanded women. They began to search. I, with the interpreter, hurried out two native women, one a servant and one the wife of an evangelist. We escaped and the foreign house from top to bottom for our ladies, but in the infinite wisdom of God they could not seen twelve children in a closet in the attic. They very much disturbed and threatened to shoot me dead several times.

After the last party left I knew there was no time to lose so they could not find us. They returned with three others about forty hours later, 10:30 to 2:00 a.m., taking Hattie from her bed in the inner room. Christie Mischow and Heindberg—and I left the house. We each took a bed for protection. It was impossible to take anything else with us. We escaped over a wall and most fortunately met with no one on the streets. They said that the north gate was open, and so we made our escape and walked toward the hills in the northwest.

At cockcrow we reached a small farmhouse, where our evangelist had a friend. After a meal of barley flour we found after a search that they could come in a large village where there was a tower in this we took refuge. Hundreds had already done so. That afternoon some of the soldiers came to the village in search of horses. We could hear their loud voices and their oaths. Then they left and near sunset another band of soldiers came and looted and killed about half a dozen people. We also thought our end had come, for as big fellows as ever I saw came to the tower to get dark, and the shots to go further and further away.

That night we left the wood under the tower and went to the rebels' camp every path. He led us during the night down the valley and by a circuitous route to the city.

Failed to Protect City.

The letter from Mr. Birney to Secretary Bryan is as follows:

STREET LIGHTING WILL CONTINUE

Local Company will not Take Advantage of Position in which it Holds the Borough but will Furnish Current so Long as Desired.

Gettysburg's five year contract with the Gettysburg Electric Railway Company for the illumination of the town by arc lights expired June 1st, but with the power of that company to leave the place in darkness. Mr. Tarr, manager of the company, states, however, that it is not their intention to play that trick upon the borough and that they will continue to furnish the juice for current so long as the council desires it.

With the town council at the present time without itself to provide ways and means for the erection of a municipal plant which would deprive the lighting company of about $1000 a year revenue, it was feared by many persons that the company would not feel so kindly disposed and that, with the power within its grasp, it was tendering plunging the streets in darkness, it might use that means to vent its indignation.

The town council, realizing that it was to its best interests to have a municipal plant could be gotten into working condition soon, decided at their regular August meeting Tuesday night to ask the Gettysburg Light Company to continue to furnish light at the present rate until further notice, which is discontinuance upon thirty days' notice. Mr. Turner, when asked by a representative of the paper, what the company intended to do said.

"Of course, we will light the streets, just so long as the town wants us to. Even if we have that in two months the business would be taken from us through the ownership of a borough plant, we would continue to furnish current until that time, as we would regard the rights of the citizens generally not to cause the inconvenience which would result from the withdrawing current for street lighting".

The excellent agreement for and against a municipal plant the representatives of the two sides say they have had little if anything to say, and it is believed that they are trusting in a disposition of the one or the by Public Service Commission of the state which will be favorable to their interests.

At any event it is gratifying to that the management is so fair minded that he will not take advantage of a favorable situation to the detriment of both the town and his company.

WON AT PICNIC

The base ball team of the Gettysburg Knights of Mechanics won from Bolling Brothers in the annual picnic at Bolling Springs Park, Friday. Score 20 to 8. A number of the local members of the order attended the affair which had a number of "stunts" and contests as part of the day's program. Robert Felix captured a box of candy in the baby contest. Another event, while Russell Starner crossed the tape first in the wheelbarrow race was won by the pressure of the prize necktie offered in this event.

JAPANESE FETE

On the prettily decorated lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman S. Mehring, Stevens street, Thursday evening the little girls of the Jenny Wrens entertained their friends at a lawn fete. Japanese fetes and costumes made a very pretty scene. The entertainment was profitable as well as enjoyable for $13 was cleared. Afterward the girls were guests at the management of Walter's Theatre to see "Judith of Bethulia".

LIME--SULPHUR IN MARSH CREEK

Sufficient Powder for Two Hundred Barrels of Tree Spray Enter Stream from which Town Gets its Water Supply. No Danger.

The emptying into Little Marsh Creek of sufficient lime and sulphur to make more than two hundred barrels of tree spray, without causing any uneasiness among the residents of the borough, Gettysburg, or any of the others who feared that the Gettysburg town water supply would be contaminated.

Fish in large numbers have been killed in the creek from the dipping down, and in the vicinity of the Gettysburg Water Company's pumping station, but condition of the water is not noticed, so that it is believed the material has been sufficiently diluted not to cause any trouble.

The emptying of the large amount of material into the creek came as the result of the big Orntanna fire which destroyed the Mt. Hamilton lumber barrel factory, where the plant started. Some thousand or 20 cans of lime-sulphur powder which, when properly mixed, is calculated to make seven barrels of spray to the can. This was all stored in the corner of the building where the water from that fed the old Linn and Biggs House.

When the fire swept through the Baumgardner plant and burned out the side wall there was a rush into the stream and were swept on down, the stream here very much like that on the water. Below the mill quantities of fish were killed, the number of them estimated at from a hundred up as the material became more and more diluted.

Little Marsh Creek enters the main stream about two miles above Hahn and the bridge that leads to Squire Hammers' store. From here on down the stream flows into the water intake of the Gettysburg Water Company. Notification of the effect of the spray solution and no serious results had as has been noticed at the town water station though a careful watch was kept for it.

The residents living near the stream have no serious sentimental concern about the condition than. The people of the borough elsewhere along the stream were cautioned not to go in. There is apparently not the slightest danger from any one contamination that might have resulted having run into the place as the current is sufficiently fast to take it that distance.

While the average amount of water used by each person in the United States varies from 50 to 150 gallons per capita, there is no doubt that more consumption of a little more than half a gallon per each person would suffice for all purposes.

Dress for the Nearly Grown Girl

Despite the growth of the automobile industry the thrift news reports that the sales of the high wheel sundry farm vehicles are bringing on the Chicago and New York markets $100 to the pair. This seems to show that the former is not to be relegated to the past. The growing demand that have more quality, stamina, style, action and intelligence has a good prospect. But to make money in raising horses the farmer must raise the right kind. The other bird see a drop on the market.

is beginning to glaze The silo should be filled rapidly, and the corn should be vigorously tramped down as it goes while filling. At least three men should be inside the silo, moving constantly, two around the edges and the third across and over the middle. This is one by far the most important point in connection with feeding silage to horses, and the fibres of the horses fed on silage soon become tough and unpleasant to the touch when the tramping is done. If properly done no danger is likely to result; if not properly done stiff necks may result and even the accumulation of a small mass of mold within the feeder may cause colic, which might be sufficient to kill one of more horses.

The value of silage for horses is pointed out in a recent bulletin. Even through the winter season cheapness or its equipment pastime during drought. As the summer of winter, silage should be fed, three times in winter, silage should be fed, three times in winter, silage should be fed, three times in

HOUSE DESTROYED IN NIGHT FIRE

Family of John Grady Flees from Burning House and Hay, with Some Goods, Loss All their Personal Effects Goods Unknown.

Smoke issuing from the attic of the home of John Grady in Buchanan Valley Wednesday night, shortly after ten o'clock, awakened his daughters who discovered the entire third story of the house to be in flames.

They immediately aroused the other occupants of the house and all hurried to a place of safety while the property with all of its contents burned to the ground. William F. Neal, an officer of the Philadelphia police force, who is a nephew of Mr. Brady, together with his sister, Anna Neal, and his aunt, Miss Mary Agnew, had arrived at the Brady home on Tuesday to spend a two weeks vacation. They, as well as the Brady family, lost all of their personal effects including what little money the ladies of the party had brought with them.

By the time Allen and Grace Brady had aroused the family the flames had gained such headway that it was necessary for them to leave the building at once, and attired only in their night clothing, were compelled to make what effort they could to prevent the other buildings from igniting.

Some of the first neighbors to arrive were Hon. James Cole and his wife who were on their way home from a visit to friends in the vicinity. Other people soon came and with their assistance the horses and nearly all out-buildings were saved. Practically nothing of the house contained was saved from the flames and friends of the family loaned them clothes until they could reach town Thursday and secure other apparel.

Everyone was a loss to account for the cause of the fire. Although the pipes from the kitchen stove carried the smoke through the top story of the house there had been no fire in the stove since five o'clock in the evening. The family had retired shortly before ten o'clock and at that time had noticed no stronger about the place, nor had anyone of the occupants of the house been aware of the second floor during the evening.

The house was insured but the policy was destroyed in the fire and Mr. Brady does not recall the amount.

Increase Pastor's Salary when he Announces Resignation.

Rev. M. P. Hocker, D.D., pastor of St. John's Lutheren church of Steelton, and a graduate of the local institution, terminated a pastorship of thirty two years by resigning Sunday morning, to take effect September 1. The resignation was a great surprise to the congregation and they immediately held a meeting and offered an increase of salary to Dr. Hocker to induce him to remain in his first and only charge. He was recently offered the superintendency of the Deaconess Orphans' Home at Middletown and his resignation was to take charge of that institution. Dr. Hocker has a large number of friends in Gettysburg.

Mr. Wagner, who is a telegraph operator, has been employed in California for several years, from which state he has been transferred to South Dakota. He will make several stops with friends at different places, on his journey to his new field of labor.

IMPROVEMENTS AT NEW POST OFFICE

Plan to Paint Interior Walls at the New Federal Building, Contract for Screens Let to St. Louis Firm. For Better Lawn.

Further plans for the beautifying of the property at the new Federal Building are now under consideration at the office of the Supervising Architect, in the Treasury department, and it likely that the interior of the building will be much improved.

Recently, Postmaster Duncan, who is also custodian of the building, received a letter in which he was asked regarding the screening of the windows of the interior. He urged the immediate installation of same. His suggestion was adopted and bids advertised for. On Thursday he received notice that the contract for the work had been awarded to the McKee Green Manufacturing Company, of Lexington, Missouri. Their bid was $648.70 and the work is to be completed within thirty days.

Mr. Duncan, as custodian, advised the supervising architect that he would not recommend the immediate painting of the interior of the building because of the proposed change of some of the walls in the lobby, a change which will require time to thoroughly dry. This suggestion, however, will not yet formally accepted the building from the contractors, and the work of painting and decorating firm are still on the premises, it has not been decided as to the present time, to make the necessary measurements for the contemplated change of the walls, one inch and inch. Grass seed will be sown during the fall, that it may have to produce a good stand, the surrounding will likely be put in first grade sod early in the spring.

WOULD PRESERVE FINE LIBRARY

Paper Urges that Colonel Stahlman's Valuable Collection of Books be Kept Intact. More than Fifteen Thousand Books.

The Philadelphia Inquirer bemoaning the fate of so many of the city's valuable historical collections, insofar that they are leak to the city by being sold to the highest bidder, and expresses the hope that Colonel Nicholas Biddle Civil War library may somehow be taken. It says:

"It is to be the ultimate fate of this Civil War library of Colonel Stahlman, the most complete, unique and valuable collection of its kind? The same question might be asked of many other art collections now in the hands of individual Philadelphians. Of Mr. Lehman's pictures the New York Metropolitan lately said that it was the most valuable collection, public or private, in the United States.

In Colonel Nicholson's library are more than 15,000 titles, bound in cloth, morocco and levant, in the finest manner of the bookbinders' art. Many of these rare volumes have been extended by the insertion of rare old maps and autograph letters. Volume after volume contains letters in the handwriting of Grant, Meade, Sherman, Thomas, McClellan, Sheridan, Pope, Hancock, Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Longstreet, Beauregard, Sheridan, Humphreys, Gibbon, Ord and other military leaders, Northern and Southern.

There are Pemberton's MS. accounts of the surrender of Vicksburg; maps used by Meade at Gettysburg and Lee's dispatch book, with the record of one of the volumes of the Comte de Paris' History of the Civil War, a bill for constructing a military telegraph in the Shenandoah Valley approved by General Sheridan; the report of General John B. Gordon, in the hand of Lee himself; an original march in "Phil" Kearney's handwriting and signed by him; a set of reports indexed by Capt. Meade under supervision for Colonel John P. Nicholson's father-in-law, President Andrew Johnston; an autograph letter of General Lee, dated March 14, 1865. There are Confederate and Northern wartime almanacs, Vicksburg, Charleston, Richmond and Macon, Savannah war-time imprints, Jefferson Davis' inaugural address and messages with Richmond imprint; General Burnside's MS. notes on Shiloh; Early's MS. notes on his narrative.

The wealth of manuscripts may be indicated by mentioning that the volumes, Grant's Memoirs contains an autograph letter from Grant to four volumes it contains 58 inserted autographs, letters and autographs. Sherman's "The Twelve Decisive Battles of the War" has inserted nine autograph letters of army commanders in the battles—Grant, Meade, Sherman, Terrie Smith, Virginia McDowell, Rosecrans, Sheridan and Captein Robert Anderson. Each of Sherman's Memoirs is extended to 8 volumes and illustrated with 58 autograph letters and autographs.

So vast and valuable a collection should ultimately be housed in a Civil Museum Building on the parkway. Already a fund of some thousands has been made by the Loyal Legion, the collections of that military order and many relics owned by Grand Army Posts, are ready to be contributed. When the time comes Philadelphia's wealth, community and individual, be added to the preservation of Colonel Nicholson's collection, a collection that follow the fate of other notes collections."

SPECIAL NOTICE:

With the general business condition on all sides reflecting the stress of the great European War, a matter of satisfaction to the people that the three large industries in Gettysburg will not be affected adversely. The war will not suffer in any way unless a general business depression throughout the country should occur. Samuel E. S. Hauser, general manager of the Reading Furniture Company of Hanover, said this morning:

"We are busy on goods whatever and buy all of our lumber in this country, so that the tie-up in shipping will not affect us in the least and the only way in which the present war could affect us would be in the event of its crippling business generally throughout the country. Should that be the case the general attitude of buyers throughout the country to be one of watchful waiting and the furniture market will continue good.

"We are now busy filling furniture shown in July compared favorably with the orders we had on hand at our factories, now employing 240 men, are working full time. It is true that the factory is not crowded as at that time is made up during the other part of the week."

Mr. Hauser tells that, in addition to meeting the demands for their staple lines of furniture, the company factories are now preparing to put out some "specialties" which will be "up to the signs", a demand for the workmanship of which has been evident in furniture of a more expensive character being found. Work has been started on the factories looking toward the spring business and there is no evidence of any slackening in operations there.

Much the same condition exists at the Gettysburg plant of the Auburn Shale Brick Company. For months, owing to the extensive line of establishment, has had it working full time and has on hand enough and then enough to fill the various jobs. About thirty employees have been engaged for the plant and the various kilns have been worked to capacity night and day.

Being entirely a home product, sold entirely in Gettysburg and nearby cities, there can be no effect felt here from the war unless it be, as in the case of the two furniture factories, in the event of a period of general financial depression. Mr. Oswald expects the total output of the year to be between two hundred and three hundred car load breaker for the Gettysburg plant, and barring any unforeseen happening will be operated to its fullest full as it has been the entire season.

MARKET TRAIN

Railroad Lets Truckers Take Produce as Baggage.

A number of the Baltimore towns which supply the local market at Harrisburg have solved the problem of getting their truck transportation to Harrisburg with their produce. According to the new rule in effect farmhand passengers are allowed to carry 150 pounds of baggage with them and it is the company right to use a dozen or more people leave Dillsburg on a Saturday morning with crates of chickens, eggs, butter, etc., up to the allowed weight that goes at baggage rate of extra weight the produce is carried under the same rate as excess baggage. This method saves the long limousine drive to the Capital City.

LIGHNING FLASH CAUSES RUNAWAY

Stunned by the only flash of lightning which occurred during a brief rain storm southwest of Gettysburg Monday evening, Jack Wenschhof, of Freedom township, partially lost consciousness and when he recovered found his four horse team in a panic, the two lead horses running away and dragging with them the other two horses both of which had been knocked down. Both Mr. Wenschhof and Ernest Flack, who was with him, were thrown from the wagon in the runaway which immediately followed, but neither was hurt.

The sudden and mysterious visitation of lightning came between five and six o'clock when the two men were returning from Gettysburg where they had brought a load of hay. The team had just crossed the Flat Run bridge near the Luther Topper farm when, from a sky partly overcast by raincloods, there came a blinding flash followed by a terrific smash of thunder. The electricity had struck in the air and not thirty feet from the team.

Mr. Wenschhof was not only stunned but temporarily blinded and, when he opened his eyes, his saddle horse was lying flat on the ground and the other rear horse was thrown over the wagon tongue. Both were badly tangled in the harness. The lead horses had started to run and continued for a short time before they threw off the weight of the other animals stopped them.

Mr. Wenschhof was thrown from the wagon a moment after he recovered from the effect of the lightning and Mr. Flack, who had immediately jumped to the rear to unhorn when he saw the horses start, was also thrown out. Both men escaped without injury.

An examination of the team showed that the saddle horse was very severely bruised about the legs and the other one of the rear was somewhat injured. One of the lead horses also showed effects of having been struck by the lightning. A veterinarian was summoned from Gettysburg to attend to the team which was regarded as of much value by Mr. Wenschhof. All of the horses will be saved.

FATE OF SHIPS SEIZED IN WAR

NO WORLD CODE AT PRESENT

Plan For International Court Adopted at London Conference in 1909 Held Up by International Tribunal to Decide on Neutral Country Coals Ran-Interpretation of Term as Difficulty.

The enemy's ships seized as prizes during the European war will be dealt with by the prize courts of the various countries, according to an international prize court should be set up. In recent years attempts have been made by the great nations to establish a international tribunal to decide whether a merchant ship was seized on justifiable grounds and in event decision was against the seizing of such a ship was unwarranted.

The London Naval Conference, if ideas of the United States are raised on prizes in its deliberations, will consider the right to make a protest, which should be exhaustly and in a settlement of the case, and the procedure for the execution. The adversion of an international court of prize is the object of the conference.

There is at present no international code which specifies the principles governing prize courts which make a merchant ship a lawful prize, and each nation follows the rules and usages of action according to its own rights, respecting the rights of neutrals in relations with neutral nations.

The first international court of prize was established at London in 1909 to establish a uniform code of law and that court has not been established is due to the failure of Great Britain to pass the necessary legislation. The delegates of Great Britain will support the general conference of the international prize court as the court was established at London in 1907, but the plan was defeated by strong popular opposition in Great Britain especially by the conservatives.

Swiss Court Handles Prize Cases.

According to James Brown Scott, editor of the American Journal of International Law, the establishment of the International Court of Prize was prevented by the action of Great Britain. He says:

"The signatories of the original convention of 1907 for the establishment of a court of prize were unwilling to be thus waited, and were still waiting, for favorable action by Great Britain. Accordingly two international documents, apparently in harmony with the original convention of prize court without the co-operation of Great Britain and were filed subsequently by the provisions of a declaration calling for the Great Britain made a formal objection unless it is ratified by Great Britain. The international court of prize court therefore is thus made to depend upon the action of Great Britain."

"When a question of law to be decided is covered by a treaty in force between the belligerent captor and a power which is itself or whose subject or citizen is a party to the proceedings the court is governed by the provisions of the treaty.

In the absence of such provisions the court applies the rules of international law. If no rule is recognized by general consent it must render the court shall give judgment having regard to the principles of justice and equity.

It is sufficient, according to Dr. Ellery C. Stowell of Columbia university, that the principles of equity and justice be observed. This is a most important provision because in this way, as it appears, the court will be enabled to act impartially. These two nations might insist upon the rights of neutrality defined by the London declaration. It is very hard to see how the nations at war could be induced to accept the same international prize court. If such a court is to be established its constitution ought to be equal until the war was over unless the war proves to be a very long one.

Yes, the Swiss Have a Navy.

It is not quite correct to say that Switzerland has no navy. There is a small armed vessel, something like a gunboat, stationed on the Lake of Geneva and quantity to be found opposite Lausanne. It is not a formidable looking craft, but it is armed and it has a crew, for instance, for it keeps watch on French Savoy and lachrymosity an emergency from Rivaz-les-Bains, the French village opposite Lausanne.

A Result of Interference With A Natural Law

Having received word that my grandfather, the late Professor Donner, missionary, had died in Germany and had made me his heir, I went to his home in Strasburg, where he had always lived, to settle his estate. In overhauling his effects I came upon his diary, containing the following which I see and signed by the deceased:

I saw this morning by my window from Aswere that an eminent scientific investigator had found a way to prepare a serum for destroying the destructive germs which cause old age. I, in other words, old age. I have cherished in place my grandeur, to whom I have devoted my life in endeavoring to parts to show that the discovery which this Aswere now claims as an original was made by me some years ago. I have also the proof by which I have preserved youth. The reason for my not doing so will appear from the experience I am about to narrate. I shall promptly give the result of what I accomplished.

After having succeeded with the lower animals I naturally sought as opportunity to try my discovery on mankind. I happened about that time to be in a village in which there was a case of marrying a man much younger than herself. The husband, who suffered, for by years old, and the man was Adolf Hoffmann. I went to the couple, gave them to and heirs to adjoining estates, and, knowing the husband's wealth, the value if they could be united. Besides this, I had a liking for the young man, for I love the young man

Hoffmann, I had discovered a serum by which I could keep her from growing old, and I thought that it would be a long process, for it would be necessary for her to begin to live at the same age as herself. Besides, I realized that the effect of the scientific counts would be to his interest. Should he die before his wife, as he had been of a suitable age for him. Should she die, it would be to my interest to him, which I did, and he would marry her. Should they live, I would keep her young till he had caught up with her.

The marriage was delayed at my request, for I had discovered that the serum was producing on the lady the effect I expected, but it was still in the process of it, the wedding took place. The groom immediately set out on a journey for a month and a good deal of time in travel, being desirous of getting rid of his wife's society and separated him from his wife without her knowing it. She was left in charge, but when he returned was still the same age. I had succeeded, but I was no much older than himself. He was then about 60 and she about 30.

When he returned with the same re-

Meanwhile the lady, in the matter of her youth, was unaware of the fact that I might not keep her from growing old. Indeed, I had not told her that it was to be satisfied with a wedding ring. The husband was also left in the dark.

The matter between Herr Bestner and his wife went on very much in the same way for the next twenty years old; then he wrote her from Berlin that he had married a young girl interested in diamond mining there and was going out to live in South Africa that he was tired of a monastic life with the fair sex and that he should not return to her and settle down.

Finding himself under the relative conditions existing between these two persons, I left Strasburg for Berlin to rest negotiate with solicitude, fearing complications, but none arose. As I left suit. The lady who had waited twen ty years for a husband was not contesting a trifle sustenus. I did what I could to console her, but she refused to have a presentiment that what she had been waiting for would be denied her.

Three months before the time set for the return of her husband she had changed her mind. She had decided that I found my serum was not acting properly. I did not tell her so, but did not throw off her despondency we began to look for the cause. I found a counter effect from what I had expected. I had forgotten how much I was control of herself. The result was a hysterical condition, which threatened my hypodermic injection absolutely intermittent.

Within a week from a woman of forty before Monday, the Western Maryland brought to Gettysburg Monday an excursion of negroes from Baltimore. The train included between 700 and 800 and arrived shortly before two o'clock in the afternoon.

Ethel Bumgar, the nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bumgar, of near town, was bitten in the cheek by her bull dog Monday afternoon when she tried to drag it out of the way of her father who was driving down with a load of hay. The dog made an ugly wound which was painful but not one little girl could be brought to town.

FOR OPENING OF TOWN SCHOOLS

Supervising Principal Burgoon Tells of Necessity for High School Pupils to Name their Courses. Deficient Pupils May Recover.

Prof. W. A. Burgoon, supervising principal of the local schools, gives out the following statement regarding the selection of courses during the present term, and the manner in which those who failed to pass may regain their class standing:

The high school of Gettysburg Public Schools is only three weeks distant, there are certain matters which should be brought to the attention of High School pupils and their parents.

According to previous announcement the Board will employ a special teacher of sewing, thus leaving Miss Fox's time for all the other work of the Domestic Science department. By this arrangement all the girls of the High School may receive instruction in this work same as last year. The Sophomores and Juniors of the high course will again form a class by themselves and all girls who will be in the Freshman class will be allowed to choose between the full Domestic Science course and the regular academic course.

The former course includes also English, algebra and physical geography but no Latin. The latter course includes the regular academic work, includes one lesson each week in cooking and sewing. Pupils in Freshman girls will be required to name their choice of the two courses on the first day.

Likewise all pupils who enter the higher class will be required on the first day to name their choice between the Classical course and the Scientific cial course. In deciding this pupils and parents should remember that all who expect to enter college must have the Latin and German of the Classical course. The Scientific course gives book-keeping and typewriting instead of these languages.

It has been our policy in previous years in cases where pupils of the upper grades failed in their studies, to put one branch to promote them on trial. In such cases the pupil took one branch they were allowed an opportunity by extra work to regain their class standing. This in most cases has worked well and will be continued this year. Pupils have the opportunity is not yet to chose two fail in many branches but it is given to these failing of entrance to the Senior class. Furthermore, it is given only to those who show a disposition to do honest and faithful work.

Pupils who are conditioned or who fail must enter and be enrolled in the high school on the opening day of school of a reasonable time, their work is satisfactory, they will be promoted on trial to the next class. These matters are entirely in the hands of the faculty and principal and while it gives a splendid chance to the industrious pupils, it will swell nothing to those who refuse to do their work themselves and who refuse to study at home.

As in previous years, where necessary and possible, extra classes will be formed to assist pupils endeavoring to make up the lost ground.

H. C. MURRAY,

Public Opinion.

People are the real arbiter public opinion is; and, indeed, it is strong with it is the right arm. In the individual and old age it is as weak as any other organism. I try to make my every work belong to the youth of public opinion. The history of the world is the record of the weakness, frailty and decay of public opinion, as good age is the record of the decay of those bodily organisms in which public opinion have found material expression.—Samuel Butler.

GETTYSBURG BOY KILLED IN WEST

Attacked by several unidentified negroes in the misty light of an early dawn, Pan E. Allison, son of Robert P. Allison, of Gettysburg, was murdered last Sunday morning in Omaha, Nebraska. The news of his death was received here earlier in the week but at that time the cause were known until the body arrived Friday afternoon, when it was met by representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Mr. Allison was a night watchman in the Omaha yards of the Burlington Route and with another employe, Henderson by name, was returning home on the tracks after a night of work. Suddenly several negroes stepped from behind a box car and started upon them. Mr. Allison's companion received a cut across the face and ran, while Allison, the victim of the attack, putting up a defense and not leaving until he saw that it would mean death to do so.

Bleeding from a deep wound in the throat, Allison was found unconscious among almost from the middle of the back to his heart. Allison staggered and fell for a short while to rest. He was placed in an ambulance but died on the way to the hospital. Henderson was also taken to the hospital in a critical condition. Several arrests have been made but the guilty parties are evidently still at large.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from the late home of his sister, Mrs. Eugene Schriver, Mount Joy. Rev. Matthew R. Taylor, of this place, and Rev. L. S. Black, of Easton, conducting the services. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Unbidden Guest.

Mrs Upsymup (to boatsee)—That grizzly-faced old fellow who's been there at the door had such poor luck he was glad to get a drink of water. Sorry you didn't intend to have any more. He is my husband.—Mrs Hostess—Don't fret, my dear. I didn't know him. He is my husband.—Chimatz.

Gum Arabic and Plaster of Paris.

Into a thick solution of gum arabic water stir plaster of paris until it assumes the consistency of cream. Apply with a brush to the interior walls of china and join together. In three days it will become as strong as if in the same place. The whiteness of the cement adds to its value.

Change Your Seed Wheat

Sell ten bushels of your common wheat at market price, say 75 cents, making $7.50. For this you can buy, we will send you enough of the wonderful Kharkov wheat to sow 10 acres.

"You're skeptical? We don't blame you. It's not a seed that we are prepared to get the proof how thousands of farmers have made from $10 to $20 more money on their seed wheat and grew 10 to 15 bushels more to the acre.

We quote just a few extracts from hundreds of letters received. The original letters are on file in our office and can be seen at any time by callers.

We will now note but Marvinlow—"I got 30 bushels from 1 bu." Ed. Hoffman, Ind.—"I got 40 bushels from a grain.—J. W. Hentz, Ohio.—"I got 50 bushels from 2 bu." Many other kinds grown here.—R. T. C., Center Co., Pa. "I got 40 bushels from my wheat 66 lbs. per acre.—H. R., Chester Co., Pa. "I got 50 bushels from Pa. 10 bu.—M. N. B., Butler Co., Pa. "50 to 60 bushels from 1 bushel."—L. S., Miami Co., Ind. One acre equals 1 of 43 bushels."—Jos. Hoffman, Ind. "I got 60 bushels from 2 bu. per acre; fully 8 times as much as I sowed."—Jos. Hoffman, Ind. "I got 50 bushels from 1 bu."—Cecil C. Preble Co., O. I estimate my 8 acres will yield 400 bushels."—H. B., Fairfield Co., Ind. Heads 2 to 3 inches; 36 to 40 grains in head. Have also fields only 25 to 30 grains."—J. W. R., Lincoln Co., Ky. "I got 50 bushels from 1 acre, others 15 bu. Counted 36 heads from one grain."—Jos. Hoffman, Ind. Stewart Co., Tenn. Yield 60 bu. acre. —J. W. M. P., Scott Co., Ind.

If you grow winter wheat you owe it to yourself to get some of this new wheat. It's worth several times over and more bushels of wheat for you next harvest. Whether you sow one acre or many this should interest you more than anything else printed in this paper. Send your order from this advertisement or write today for catalog, photographs, complete letters from farmers and prices.

WAR SITUATION ENGLAND IN WORSE DAILY; FEAR OF FAMINE

Gold Shipped For Relief of Americans—Our Neutrality Proclamation.

WITH mutual declarations of war by Germany and Belgium eight nations, four navies and 17,000,000 men were plunged last night into what may be the greatest armed conflict in history. The actual shooting fast one upon the other as the Emperor of Germany, who had his inception in the clash between Austria and Servia, has received itself into a gigantic struggle between the dual alliance, Austria-Hungary and Germany, on the one hand, and the entente cordiale, and its allies, Russia, France, England, Belgium, Servia and Montenegro, on the other.

Rage War Check.

Measures have been instituted in Scotland, France and Germany for the financial support of their war operations. The British parliament voted a war appropriation of $1,000,000, in Germany a bill was introduced to appropriate $1,000,000 and the French parliament authorized the Bank of France to issue notes from time to time to the amount of 2,360,000,000 francs ($2,500,000,000 at the present rate of exchange). Only in the case of France was there any definite indication of how the money is to be raised, aside from drawing on government funds already in hand.

The New York Times quotes an expert as saying that the nations involved can find the necessary money even if the war lasts years.

England Economizes.

But in spite of the huge war chests of the leading nations there are great realizations of the hardships and deprivations that are certain to follow.

London is calmly preparing to face a famine looming in the summer in money, food and fuel. The Canton club committee meeting last night with the decision to serve only simple meals, but to make all the servants and to advance food prices slightly.

Among the items published in this and and to make economy a "family" affair is to save the vegetable salts from the scorecard, to use restrictions potato slips and to make brown bread from wheat chaff.

Rations are under consideration, and a card duel is little most armed with many vegetables. Children and those who cannot get meat will receive a cocoa meal. Cheese and nuts are to take the place of bacon. Pickled peas and soup dishes are recommended.

Food Laws Suspended.

All the papers declare there is no panic, scarcity the persons who rush to the banks. On the river Thames, open, and the country is well supplied. Bread will be for out of from the flour and imports of bacon, sugar, cheese and dairy produce is largely stopped. Self-restraint and businesslike conduct are recommended by chiefs to panic tendencies. There seem to be no alarm that with no quesgency circulating there will be reign of rumours in the food supply.

There are prospects of a paper famine in England. Some journals are already beginning to cut down the size of their issues. Particularly is this the case with evening papers.

A London war office official said: "Your King and Country only by twenty-four hours one sabing for a speedy appointment of one-hundredth sum for the same purpose.

Japan Ready.

With the world aghast at the chain of rapid developments, grim news spread over other countries which may likely to be drawn into the conflict. The strongest of these is Japan.

Japan announced herself ready to live up to her alliance with Great Britain in case of certain eventualities. Spain was reported in a proposal for proclamation of neutrality, likely has declared her neutrality, but is mobilizing. Belgium, Holland and Switzerland were mobilized. It was also announced that the Belgian government should permit the free passage of German troops through Belgium, but answered by hasty preparations to resist by force any such move on the part of the country.

Sweden made an answer to inquiries from Russia and Germany as regards her neutrality, but is reported to be fixed her neutrality.

The Red Battleground.

All signs now point to Belgium as the big European battleground. Hostilities were begun on the soil of that territory by the Germans' bombardment of the fortress of Liege, and the invasion is a strategic point because it is a checkers on Germany's grande ground in the North sea, which would become the commanding factor in the movement of England.

Liege Bombarded.

Liege and Namur, the Belgian fortresses, lie about thirty odd miles apart on the Meuse. On the river Namur, open, and the country is well supplied. Liege is known by the out of from the flour and imports of bacon, sugar, cheese and dairy produce is largely stopped. Self-restraint and businesslike conduct are recommended by chiefs to panic tendencies. There seem to be no alarm that with no quesgency circulating there will be reign of rumours in the food supply.

There are prospects of a paper famine in England. Some journals are already beginning to cut down the size of their issues. Particularly is this the case with evening papers.

A London war office official said: "Your King and Country need you."

The advertisement sold that the empire was on the brink of the greatest war in the history of the world, and appealed to all unmarried men between the ages of eighteen and thirty years to join the army immediately.

Another Gold Ship Sails.

Mens and women joined in expressing the situation of Americans in Europe, the international crisis. The steamship Lusitania, which sailed at noon with a batch of cabin passengers and a cargo of specie, was received with cheers as she passed down the river.

The Wilson Proclamation.

The proclamation signed by President Wilson declaring neutrality with respect to Austria, Servia, Germany, Russia, France and England, which, it is stated, "a state of war unhappily exists," and warning citizens of those states are forbidden:

"First—Accepting and executing a commission to serve either of the said belligerents in the army, navy or marine of another belligerent.

"Second—Enlisting or entering into the service of either of the said belligerents as a soldier or marine, or as an officer of seaman on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque or privateer.

"Third—Hiring or retaining another person to enlist or enter himself in the service or either of the said belligerents as a soldier or as a marine or seaman on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque or privateer.

"Fourth—Hiring another person to go beyond the limits or jurisdiction of the United States with intent to be enlisted as aforesaid.

"Fifth—Hiring another person to go beyond the limits of the United States with intent to be entered into the service of either of the said belligerents as a soldier or as a marine or seaman on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque or privateer.

"Sixth—Retaining another person to go beyond the limits of the United States with intent to be enlisted as aforesaid.

Enlistment of Foreigners.

"Seventh—Retaining another person to go beyond the limits of the United States with intent to be entered into the service of either of the said belligerents as a soldier or as a marine or seaman on board of any vessel of war, letter of marque or privateer.

"It is not unlawful for a citizen of the United States to enlist or enter himself in the service of either of the said belligerents in any military capacity or in any naval capacity not above that of master of a merchant vessel, owned by citizens of the United States, or to ship as a common seaman for his personal subsistence or wages.

"That no citizen of the United States shall take with him from the United States any military equipment or accessory which may be used in connection with military operations on land, but this shall not extend to such articles of personal outfit or such arms for personal use as are ordinarily regarded by travelers as necessary for their protection against violence.

"That no citizen of the United States shall take or carry away any contraband of war, or any article which may be used as contraband of war, except for his personal use or for sale to some neutral government, or any implement of war specially prepared for use by a belligerent in the present war, which has been landed within the territory of the United States during the present war, except by the authority of the government of the United States.

"That no citizen of the United States shall transport any officer or enlisted man of either belligerent, or any dispatch of either belligerent, on board of any vessel of war, or vessel carrying armed forces of either belligerent, which shall have departed from a port within the territory of the United States, but this shall not apply to the transportation by any vessel of the United States of any officer or enlisted man of either belligerent who has taken refuge on board such vessel to escape capture, nor to the transportation by such vessel of any dispatch of either belligerent which may have been intrusted to the captain of such vessel by the government to which the vessel belongs, or which may be necessary to the safety of the vessel or of the persons on board of her.

"That no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall, within the territory and jurisdiction of any of the belligerents, enlist or enter himself in the military or naval service of either of the belligerents, or hire or retain another person to enlist or enter himself in the military or naval service of either of the belligerents, or attempt to induce any person to enlist or enter himself in the military or naval service of either of the belligerents, or procure any person to go beyond the limits of the United States with intent to be enlisted or entered in the military or naval service of either of the belligerents, or aid or abet any of the things forbidden to be done by this proclamation.

"That no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall begin or set on foot or provide or prepare the means for any military expedition or enterprise to be carried on from the territory of the United States against the territories or dominions of either of the belligerents.

"That no vessel of war of either belligerent shall be permitted to make use of any port, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States from which a prize may be taken by such belligerent, directly or indirectly, or in which any right of asylum may be claimed by such belligerent, except in case of stress of weather or of danger of the sea, until twenty-four hours after her entrance into such port, roadstead or waters, or such longer period as may be necessary for her departure or for the removal of the prize.

"That no vessel of war of either belligerent shall be permitted to sell anything except provisions and such other supplies as may be necessary for the subsistence of her crew until she shall have departed from a port, roadstead or waters of the United States, and she shall not be permitted to take in supplies except necessary provisions for her subsistence and such fuel as may be necessary to take her to the nearest port of her own country. She shall not be permitted to take in supplies in any port, roadstead or waters of the United States except such as may be necessary to complete her ordinary complement of fuel and provisions, and any such supplies shall be taken in as far as possible in the presence of the local authorities of the port.

"That no vessel of war of either belligerent shall be permitted to dispose of her prisoners in the territory of the United States except in case of urgent necessity, and any prisoners thus landed shall be subject to such limitations as the President may prescribe as to their parole, detention and removal.

"That no vessel of war of either belligerent shall be permitted to use any port or place in the United States as a station or place of resort for any warlike purpose or for the purpose of obtaining any warlike equipment, or to make any port or place in the United States a base of operations for the purpose of replenishing or augmenting the military resources of any belligerent, or for the purpose of recruiting men.

"That no person in the service of either belligerent shall be permitted to come within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States for the purpose of enlisting men, or of procuring enlistments in the United States, or of using the territory and jurisdiction of the United States as a place of recruiting from which to depart and proceed to the territory of either belligerent to carry on war, whether as a member of its military forces or as an employe in any military capacity.

"That no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall, within the territory and jurisdiction of any belligerent, fit out, arm or equip any vessel with intent that such vessel may be employed in the service of such belligerent.

"That no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall increase or augment the military force of any belligerent by the conversion into a vessel of war of any merchant vessel which may be within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States at the time when it became apparent that such merchant vessel would be so converted.

"That no person within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States shall commit any act in contravention of the treaties or the law of nations with respect to the territory and jurisdiction of the United States.

"That every vessel which shall depart or attempt to depart from a port of the United States in violation of the provisions of this proclamation may be detained until the decision of the President be had in the premises or until the owner shall give bond in such sum as the collector of the port may require, not exceeding double the value of the vessel and cargo, with sureties to the satisfaction of such collector, conditioned that the vessel and cargo will not be employed in violation of the provisions of this proclamation.

"That every vessel which shall depart or attempt to depart from a port of the United States in violation of the provisions of this proclamation may be captured by any vessel of war of either belligerent which may be present at the time within the jurisdiction of the United States, or which may pursue such vessel from a port within such jurisdiction.

"That the owners or consignees of every vessel which shall depart or attempt to depart from a port of the United States in violation of the provisions of this proclamation may be required to

SUMMER HOME AS HOUSE BURNS

Destroyed by Mysterious Fire Near, Out of Hanoverian Paramage Had, Out of Hanoverian of Cash Old Stored by Fire. Had Sold It but Possession not Given.

Summoned by the news that their home at Cashtown, Adams County, had been totally destroyed by fire, Mr. and Mrs. Harner Phanstiel, who have been visiting at the Methodist Parsonage, Baltimore street, left for their home this evening. Complete details have not been learned.

Mrs. Phanstiel has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Oyler, ever since they moved to Gettysburg some months ago after Mr. Oyler had been assigned to the pastorate of the local Methodist church. Mr. Phanstiel has been a frequent visitor at the Oyler home and the news of the disaster brought their visit to an abrupt close.

A particularly regrettable phase of the misfortune lies in the sale of the property some months ago to another person. Full possession had not been given and the loss will fall on Mr. Phanstiel, though he had it protected by insurance, and it was from the agent of the insurance company that he received the first intelligence of the property being destroyed.

It was occupied until about a year ago by Mr. and Mrs. Phanstiel as their home and they retained a great affection for the old place, so that the destruction means more to them than a mere financial loss, and upon receiving the unpleasant news they immediately made arrangements to return to Cashtown. It is a small village near Emporium and they left on the Western Maryland at 5:31 intending to get a good connection on the Northern Central at York.

HIT IT HARD

Here is part of the story—triples, Weimer 2, Braun 1; doubles, Hoff, Price; singles, Ira Plank 2, Starner, Oyler. Here is a little more of it, struck out by Plank 2, hits off Plank six singles, three of them of the scratch variety. The last chapter came at Gettysburg 6, Glen Rock 2.

There really wasn't much to that exhibition on Nixon Field Thursday evening. Glen Rock couldn't produce and Gettysburg could. The first inning saw triples by Braun and Weimer and a single by Price, scoring two runs. The third saw a double by Price, a single by Plank, a triple by Weimer, and an error with a total of three runs. The others came in much the same manner. Schwarzer, formerly of the local college team, finished the last six innings in Glen Rock's pitching box.

LUCKY FIND

Dropped Watch on Nixon Field. Found it there Next Day.

After Dr. C. L. Myers, of York Springs, had returned home from Gettysburg he discovered that his gold watch was missing and concluded that it must have fallen out of his pocket when he crawled into automobile on Nixon Field after the ball game. Early the next morning he motored to Gettysburg and walked in on the base ball field where he had stood and at his car and found the watch which was still ticking away.

TAKE OUT GREEN GOODS

Fresh Vegetables Stolen from Gardens in Town.

Residents of the southern section of town, who have truck patches, claim many visits by people who have been carrying off supplies of vegetables by the wholesale. Whole rows of sweet potatoes, beets and cabbage have been removed. Some of the losers depend largely upon their gardens for their supply of food and the loss falls heavily upon them. Efforts are being made to locate the thieves.

Public Opinion.

Trouble may have originated upon this far east, indeed. It is strong within us to be for peace. In its exhibition and old age it is as weak as any other thing. But it has to make over many cannot belong to the youth of public opinion, to the history of the world in the government in which public opinion is the highest factor.—Woodrow Wilson before Press Club.

PLAN TO EXTEND HANOVER SERIES

Four More Base Ball Games between Gettysburg and Hanover are Arranged. Another Game will be Played If Tie Game Continues.

Four more games of base ball will be played this summer between the Gettysburg and Hanover teams, it has been announced, arrangements have been completed by Manager Ira Plank, of the locals, and Manager Chenowith, of the neighboring town.

The first additional series will be played on Tuesday, August 18, on Nixon Field; the second on Saturday, August 22, at Hanover; the third on Saturday, August 29, here; and the fourth on Wednesday, September 2, at Hanover. Should there still be a tie when these four games have been played the two managers will toss up for the town where the final and deciding game will be played.

George Lawrence, of Hanover, and Calvin K. Gilbert, of Gettysburg, have been selected each as umpire. They will officiate at all games, the one taking bases and the other balls and strikes.

It will be noted that the above series will give each town one Saturday and one mid-week game. Six games have already been played, resulting in a tie at three games each. The additional games will make the series a "best out of eleven" affair and will without question hold the interest of the fans.

Hostetter, Small and Schenkel, of the Hanover nine, were all members of the team which defeats the Glen Rock game, while Stover, Hanover's short stop, played for the visitors. Players and enthusiasts alike are eager for more of the same kind of games that have been furnished for the past six weeks and they are now going to have it.

The Lemoyne game on Saturday promises to be a good one, that team contending for the honors of Cumberland County. It will be started at 1:45. The locals will play the York Semi-Professionals at York on Thursday, September 27, the day of the state P. O. S. of A. convention parade.

The other game on Saturday was with the Chinese here on August 25, and New Holland here on August 28.

GRAND DUCHESS BRAVES THE KAISER'S INVADERS.

A heroic role played by the youthful Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide, ruler of Luxemburg, in protesting the recent German violation of her country's neutrality is revealed in dispatches to private dispatches from Luxemburg, which reached the German censors.

As soon as the duchess received word that the Germans were on the point of invading Luxemburg she ordered her car, an automobile, accompanied by a single lady in waiting and, despite entreaties of her ministers, sped to Adolf bridge, over which the Germans must cross.

There she found one cabinet minister, Baron Eyschen, parleying with the German major in command of the advance guard. Ignoring him she had pushed the car lengthwise across the bridge, and the dirigible promptly ordered her chauffeur to do the same.

Then she alighted and joined Baron Eyschen, who was showing the German officer a copy of the Berlin treaty. The officer waved the treaty aside saying:

The duchess said:

"The safety of my country must be respected. You must wait until I telegraph the kaiser."

The duchess burst into tears, but a moment later, when the commander of her little army, Major Von Dyck, remonstrated with the German officer, she recovered herself, even standing, forced to see the German level his revolver at Von Dyck, commanding him to clear out quickly.

"They are in superior force. We can do nothing," she said quietly to Von Dyck, and, with her companion, climbed her automobile and returned to the palace.

Fruit Colored Stamps.
